New Flight Record.
Gold Snakes For Ladies.
British "Flappers" Win.
Napoleon and the Air.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

ACCOSTA and Chamberlin stayed up in their Bellanca monoplane 51 hours and 11 minutes, breaking all records for continuous flight. Their joy is not unmixed. When they rose in the air for a test, if they had started straight for Paris instead of flying around New York, to see if they could do it, they would be in Paris now the first ever to have crossed the Atlantic ocean in a straight one-hop unassisted flight.

BRITISH ladies, anxious to attract attention, and perhaps not quite as beautiful as they once were, wear snakes made of fine, flat gold wire twisted around their necks. The snake goes around two or three times, hanging down in front. How do you explain that psychologically?

A FEW years ago, Mrs. Pankhurst, trying to get votes for British women, could be seen struggling in the arms of brawny, good-natured policemen, tearing her away from the entrance to the house of commons.

Now Premier Baldwin tells the commons of his plan to let women vote at 21 years of age. Hitherto British women had to be older than men before they could vote.

THE British "flapper," with her little box of cosmetics, and very little skirt, will get the vote, and probably won't want it.

But that doesn't diminish the value of the work that Mrs. Pankhurst did, when she compelled British statesmen to pay attention to British women.

JACOB Wasserman, able German novelist, author of "The World's Illusions,' can "find no happiness in this country." He calls Chicago's industrial life "intensely depressing."

Chicago industrial workers might call Mr. Wassermann's life intensely depressing. It is hard to judge. The prairie dog in his little village may be as happy as Napoleon looking up at the Pyramids. The prairie dog doesn't have to go to St. Helena.

AMERICAN SHELLS RAIN ON NANKING

U. S. S. CINCINNATI'S BROADSIDE SILENCES CHINESE FORTS' GUNS

No Yank Casualties When Gobs Reply to Attack Made as Vessel Proceeds up Yangtze to Hankow.

SECOND CLASH WITHIN 24 HOURS

Shanghai Hints State of Disorder Prevails in City Which is Held by Nationalists Under Chiang Kai Shek.

SHANGHAI, April 16—Once again American shells rained on Nanking today.

The U. S. S. Cincinnati was fired upon by forts in the vicinity of Nanking at 8:45 this morning as the vessel proceeded up the Yangtze to Hankow, where a naval concentration has been ordered due to the tense situation which exists.

Destroyer Ford Fired Upon.

The Cincinnati returned the fire of the Chinese forts with a broadside and silenced the Chinese guns.

As far as reports indicate there were no casualties on the American boat.

The attack today on the Cincinnati, following an attack yesterday which caused the U. S. Destroyer Ford to open fire on Nanking, has led to the opinion here that Nanking may be in a state of disorder.

The attack on the Ford yesterday was attributed to northern troops, but the forts in the vicinity of Nanking are still understood to be held by Nationalists and it is believed they are responsible for today's attacks.

Chiang Kai Shek Dismissed.

Chiang Kai Shek is in command at Nanking and it is not believed that he would countenance order for firing on foreign vessels, and this leads to the belief that the troops may be out of control.

Reports from Tunghchi state that a northern cruiser has engaged southern forts at Chinkiang, but was forced to withdraw after the arrival of the Nationist cruiser Huiyang.

Open Warfare Continues.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Open warfare between the factions of the Chinese Nationalists continued today, with clashes of a serious nature reported from Canton where approximately 100 Chinese are reported as killed and wounded, while efforts of the centrists and extremists to enter into parleys were delayed.

Denial was made today of reports widely circulated in the United States yesterday to the effect that Chiang Kai Shek and his centrists had met in Nanking and passed a resolution impeaching the Hankow government and ordering the arrest of Michael Borodin and other avowed Communists in Hankow.

FARMS FLOODED

New Orleans Streets Flooded.

NEW ORLEANS, April 16. — The lower Mississippi valley today prepared for the greatest flood in its history.

FIVE MEN HELD FOR STRIPPING LISBON AUTO

AWAIT HEARING

Alleged Car Thief Bound Over to Grand Jury.

Alleged to have stripped two tires from an automobile owned by George Nick, Lisbon junk dealer, five East End youths, ranging in age from 18 to 22, are being held by police upon suspicion following their arrest early today.

The suspects are Everett and Dale Brookes, brothers; Ernest Stitz, Marzie Banfield and Clinton Murrill. It is probable that they will be taken to Lisbon this afternoon for a hearing before Mayor Robert Clark.

The youths, driving a Ford car, are said to have stopped at the Harry Crubaugh garage, Lincoln highway, near Lisbon, at 1:30 o'clock this morning and removed the tires from the Nick machine which was parked near the building. Another motorist who saw the boys hurried to the Crubaugh home where he awakened the garage owner. When Crubaugh

SCORES HURT AS BOMB, STILL OR GAS WRECK BRICK STORES

Fire Turns Row of Buildings Into Seething Furnace.

VICTIMS TRAPPED

Identification of Bodies, Charred and Mangled, Almost Impossible.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Eight were killed and scores injured today in a terrific explosion that fire that turned a row of one-story brick stores into a seething furnace. A dynamite bomb, a still or escaping gas were thought responsible for the tragedy.

Perish Like Rats in Trap.

The dead were members of two families living in the rear of the stores. Trapped as they slept by tons of flaming timbers and bricks, they perished like rats while hundreds of neighbors, hearing their agonized screams, stood by, powerless to extend aid.

Identification of the victims was almost impossible, so badly cearred and mangled were the bodies. From information obtained from neighbors however, police believed the dead to be:

Sam Levin, 45, tailor; Rose, 45, his wife; Albert, 20, a son; Leo, 15, a son; Harry Sokolsky; Sarah, his wife; Sam, 15, a son, and Rose, 16, a daughter.

The injured whose exact number police have been unable to ascertain, are persons living in the vicinity of the death scene, struck by flying glass and falling timbers.

The condition of the ruins made it all but impossible for authorities to determine what caused the tragedy.

Graphic Account of Tragedy.

One theory was that escaping gas from the Levin tailor shop slowly filled a room and was suddenly ignited, exploding with tremendous force.

The Levin and Sokolsky stores received the full force of the blast. They were completely destroyed, with only a few charred bricks and timbers to show where they stood.

H. S. Venable, who lives across the street, gave authorities a graphic account of the tragedy.

"I was thrown to the floor by the explosion," said Venable." "I rushed to the windows and found them all broken. Across the street flames 70 feet high were shooting toward the sky. Even from the distance I was I could hear screams and moans."

Venable rushed to help the victims but the heat of the conflagration was so intense that he could approach no nearer than 25 feet.

Two Black Powder Bomb Blasts.

CHICAGO, April 16. — Two black powder bombs were exploded against Chicago buildings today, resulting in no injuries and only slight damage.

One bomb was exploded against the Shirley laboratories and the other against an apartment house.

Owners could give no reason for the blasts.

Cleveland Mansion Wrecked.

CLEVELAND, O., April 16.—Three persons had narrow escapes from death or serious injury here early today when an explosion of mysterious origin which rocked the exclusive Edgewater district for blocks, wrecked the mansion owned by James C. Pettee, causing damage estimated between $15,000 and $35,000. Pettee, his wife and a maid were thrown from their beds by the blast.

Police are searching for owners of an automobile which was seen parked near the residence shortly after midnight.

WELLSVILLE POLICE MAKE RUM RAID IN SALINEVILLE

VILLAGE MAYOR PUTS HIS NAME ON AFFIDAVIT

Lloyd Gearing Charged With Possession of Liquor.

ASSESSED $600

Chief Fultz's Squad Confiscates Whisky and Empty Kegs.

Charged with possession of intoxicating liquors, Lloyd Gearing 22, of Salineville, was arrested last night at 9 o'clock by Chief of Police John Fultz, of Wellsville, and Patrolmen Hanlon and Cole on an affidavit sworn out by Mayor R. B. Smith, Salineville.

Police are said to have found six gallons of liquor and a number of empty kegs.

After filling out the affidavit, the Salineville mayor procured the services of Chief Fultz and the Wellsville patrolmen and went directly to Gearing's home in the East End of Salineville.

Gearing was not at home at the time. Police searched the house from top to bottom but were unable to discover anything but the kegs.

The search then was extended to an outbuilding which apparently was empty, a quantity of straw covering the floor.

Police pushed the straw aside, tore up floor boards and found the liquor cache in a hole directly under the flooring.

The authorities awaited Gearing's return and a short time later placed him under arrest.

He was brought to Wellsville, and, at a hearing before Mayor W. L. Fogo, was fined $600 and committed to the county jail.

Mayor Smith, of Salineville, was unable to act because recent councilmanic legislation placing him on a salary to permit him to try cases under new state statutes, will not be effective until next week.

GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE ANSWER

Pete Viola, as plaintiff in error in his case against the City of Wellsville, as defendant in error, has been granted leave by Judge W. F. Lones to file his petition in common pleas court.

In this case, however, Viola has been ordered to give $1,000 bond, with the sureties to be approved by Mayor W. L. Fogo of Wellsville. Viola was recently fined in the Wellsville mayor's court and after the hearing his counsel, J. E. O'Grady, gave notice of intent to appeal. The bill of exceptions has now been admitted to the record.

Local police, accompanied by Viola's attorney, James E. O'Grady, went to the workhouse at Canton today to obtain Viola's release, on the $1,000 bond, pending the appeal hearing.

POLICE FIND RECORD STILL

Get 125-gallon Container in Former Maggio Home.

A 125-gallon still, probably the largest ever uncovered here, was hauled to the city hall this morning by Mayor W. L. Fogo, Chief John Fultz and Patrolman Edward Pugh from the old Frank Maggio residence, in Fifteenth street near Central ball park.

No arrests have been made in connection with the discovery of the still.

The still, as well as 20 gallons of liquor, an empty barrel and seven or eight empty five-gallon cans were found by the authorities.

The equipment was discovered in a false cellar, apparently constructed for the purpose inside of the regular cellar.

The Maggio house had not been used for a number of years as a result of a fire which practically destroyed the upper portions of the structure.

Golf Balls Kill Birds.

That golf balls are becoming destructive to birds, animals and even fish, has been reported following the felling of a sparrow in flight by a sphere that had been driven by H. C. Kinch, a professional, during the Croydon and District Alliance tournament at Chipstead, England. The ball hit the bird over the right eye. J. Bamford, another professional, killed two wagtails in one play at Chester, a gull and weasel were slain by balls at Hawick, a partridge was felled at Hertz, and at Newark a "pill" landing in a river killed a two-pound trout.

LEONARD KEAY WEDS RUTH RIEL

Miss Ruth Riel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Riel, of Fifth street and Broadway, became the bride of Leonard Keay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Keay, of Broadway, at a wedding yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the First United Presbyterian church at Lisbon.

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. John C. Cameron. The couple was attended by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Riel.

The bride was attired in orchid.

Following the ceremony the bridal party returned to the Riel home here where a 6 o'clock dinner was served by Mrs. Grant Smith and Mrs. Frank Wiegle, places being laid for the immediate relatives.

A pink and white color scheme was carried out in the decorations. Roses were used in the adornments and a large wedding cake centered the table.

The bridegroom, a local high school graduate, is employed as a chemical tester at the American Sheet & Tin Plant plant here. The bride formerly was employed at Eckfeld's Book store.

They will reside at 310 Tenth street.

SALINEVILLE

The Kiwanis club of Salineville held their noonday luncheon Thursday at the United Presbyterian church. The Senior Missionary society served luncheon. Frank P. Judge, lieutenant governor of this district, delivered the address. Music was a feature. The directors held a short meeting after the regular session. They discussed the fresh air camp, to be built on the county farm under the auspices of the Kiwanis clubs and similar organizations of the county. There will be a special meeting soon to take up the matter. Committee on entertainment for next week will be R. E. Madison, Herman Graubner and W. S. Dorrance.

RAYMOND FICKES, AGED 26, DIES

Following a brief illness of complications, Raymond Fickes, 26 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmet Fickes, of Irondale, died last night at 8:30 o'clock in the East Liverpool hospital.

He had been employed for several years at the United States Pottery here.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by the following sisters and brothers: Mrs. George H. Ward and Mrs. Charles Beveington, of Wellsville; Mrs. Dean Taylor, of Irondale; Harry and Clyde, of Irondale; and Clarence, of Walnut Creek, California.

Friends may view the body this evening at the D. N. MacLean chapel, Riverside avenue.

Funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence in Irondale. Interment will be made in Morning View cemetery, Irondale.

GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE ANSWER

Pete Viola, as plaintiff in error in his case against the City of Wellsville, as defendant in error, has been granted leave by Judge W. F. Lones to file his petition in common pleas court.

In this case, however, Viola has been ordered to give $1,000 bond, with the sureties to be approved by Mayor W. L. Fogo of Wellsville. Viola was recently fined in the Wellsville mayor's court and after the hearing his counsel, J. E. O'Grady, gave notice of intent to appeal. The bill of exceptions has now been admitted to the record.

Local police, accompanied by Viola's attorney, James E. O'Grady, went to the workhouse at Canton today to obtain Viola's release, on the $1,000 bond, pending the appeal hearing.

POLICE FIND RECORD STILL

Get 125-gallon Container in Former Maggio Home.

A 125-gallon still, probably the largest ever uncovered here, was hauled to the city hall this morning by Mayor W. L. Fogo, Chief John Fultz and Patrolman Edward Pugh from the old Frank Maggio residence, in Fifteenth street near Central ball park.

No arrests have been made in connection with the discovery of the still.

The still, as well as 20 gallons of liquor, an empty barrel and seven or eight empty five-gallon cans were found by the authorities.

The equipment was discovered in a false cellar, apparently constructed for the purpose inside of the regular cellar.

The Maggio house had not been used for a number of years as a result of a fire which practically destroyed the upper portions of the structure.

Golf Balls Kill Birds.

That golf balls are becoming destructive to birds, animals and even fish, has been reported following the felling of a sparrow in flight by a sphere that had been driven by H. C. Kinch, a professional, during the Croydon and District Alliance tournament at Chipstead, England. The ball hit the bird over the right eye. J. Bamford, another professional, killed two wagtails in one play at Chester, a gull and weasel were slain by balls at Hawick, a partridge was felled at Hertz, and at Newark a "pill" landing in a river killed a two-pound trout.

CHOIR DEPICTS IN SONG LAST WORDS ON CROSS

Dubois' Cantata Presented at Methodist Episcopal Church.

HOLY WEEK MEET

Musical Production Features Good Friday Observance.

Depicting in song to an organ accompaniment the "Seven Last Words of the Christ," a cantata by Dubois, which expresses the agony, suffering and death of Jesus on the cross, was rendered at the First Methodist Church by the Congregation's choir of 35 voices last evening. The services concluded the five-day downtown Holy week series of meetings.

Under the direction of Prof. Hugh Laughlin, choral director, with Mrs. T. C. Flick as organist and Miss Grace McNutt and Messers. Rowland T. Kaufman and Wilbur F. Glenn, carrying the soprano, tenor and baritone themes, respectively the rendition in conception, balance and exactness of execution stood out as a distinctive musical contribution and triumph.

Immediately after the Good Friday service under the auspices of the Women's Home Missionary society, led by Mrs. T. T. McCann, which followed Communion given by the pastor, Dr. Frank G. Fowler, the production, presented in semi-darkness amid a rich setting of Easter lilies, tulips, ferns and palms, intermingled candle lights, balustrated by the Christian and American flags and fronted by appointments necessary to the Lord's Supper, deeply impressed, the throng that filled the auditorium.

Miss McNutt, in her solo parts, exhibited a pure soprano voice and rare dramatic quality; Mr. Kaufman was excellent in his slightly robust tenor, rich in its tonal qualities, and Mr. Glenn, with ringing mellow tones, filled admirably the role which called for baritone, prayerful qualities of sounds.

The ensemble response of the chorus to the inter-weaving solo numbers was good and all that was desired from the vehicle utilized.

Both the choral renditions and the solos were splendidly supported by the superb tonal effects produced by Mrs. Flick on the organ. Her work was all that could be desired; her vividness of reproduction of the varied scenes, thunderous, mild and sublime, necessary to be depicted, was keen, exact and recognizable.

With such a setting, the majestic silence engendered, the universal response to parts written by the director, soloists and chorus, the whole made for what it was intended to be—a superior, worship of the Almighty God and His Sacrificial Son through the offices of the prevailing Holy Spirit.

At the missionary gathering preliminary to the cantata, Mrs. Hugh Laughlin spoke on "The Men of the Cross;" Mrs. Charles Larkins discussed, "Our Lenten Offering," and Mrs. E. D. Makle gave an Easter reading. The music was in charge of Mrs. Homer J. Taylor, while Mrs. Barrett assisted Mrs. McCann in the meeting's leadership.

The communion service began at 4:30 o'clock and was carried on intermittedly until the musical production began.

The benediction, beautifully and feeling reinforced by the organ chimes, was made by Dr. Fowler.

SCIENCE FORESEES CHEAP GOLD DUE TO METAL TRANSMUTATION

WASHINGTON, April 16. —To say that science looks forward to a time when gold will be as plentiful and cheap as iron or any other everyday metal that sells by the ton instead of the ounce, troy weight, would be a trifle too previous.

DR. PAUL R. HEYL

To say further that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has made up his mind what to do if such a thing happens would also be to anticipate somewhat.

But it's only a plain statement of fact to say that atomic experts like Prof. Paul Heyl of the government's bureau of standards, and other scientists, think it quite possible we'll presently be turning base metals into gold whenever we feel like it.

It's equally true that treasury officials have been asked, "Wouldn't it play the dickens with your department if gold were to become as common as pig iron?" and that they've answered, "It wouldn't bother us enough to be worth first page position in the newspapers."

LET'S consider the atomic theory. A chunk of lead, for example, consists of a vast number of atoms. Each atom, in turn, consists of a little sun, with planets whizzing around it.

Ditto a gold atom, only, for the sake of argument, let's assume that the gold atom's sun has only eleven planets to a lead atom's dozen and that they don't whiz in the same pattern.

Our scientist takes a lead atom, knocks a planet out of it, sets the rest of 'em to whizzing in the right pattern and (behold!) he has a gold atom. All he has to do is to repeat this with a sufficient number of atoms, and his chunk of lead's transmitten into a chunk of golf. Nothing could be simpler.

(Prof. Heyl undoubtedly would cry out loud at such an inaccurate, unscientific description, but it'll do for amateurs.)

SO far is this suppositious performance from being a mere crazy idea that there are reputable experimenters who claim to have accomplished it.

Science isn't altogether sure of it yet, but it thinks maybe they did. It thinks maybe it can be done, even if they didn't. In short, firstclass authorities of today accept "transmutation of metals" as within the bounds of possibility.

However, nobody—not even the experimenters who say they've done it—can suggest any method of changing a chunk, say, of lead into a chunk of gold except at an expense far greater than the golden nugget's value.

Commercially, this certainly is a drawback.

YET a time may come when it can be done at a profit—at an enormous profit. Only, of course, it wouldn't stay enormous. Naturally the price of gold would slump in proportion to gold's availability.

A yellowback would represent only its value in old iron or some such thing.

Then what would the government base its paper money on?

Ask this question at the treasury and they refer you immediately to Actuary Joseph S. McCoy, because there's no imaginable treasury problem he hasn't worked out and isn't prepared to answer.

He had this one pat, without any hesitation.

"The best thing to secure a country's currency on," he said, "is its property. You can't take the value out of real estate and crops and manufactures, by transmutation or any other process. That's what we'd base our money on—our resources."

"But wouldn't it cause no end of confusion?"

"The government could make the transfer just as easily," rejoined Actuary McCoy, "as it started us on the federal reserve system, which hardly caused a ripple."

Business And Stocks

American business this spring is rather peculiar. Some observers say it's good and some say it's bad. The fact seems to be that conditions vary with industries, sections and individuals more than they did last year. Thus opinions often reflect partial views. People can find justification for almost any opinion, good, bad or indifferent, though it is evident that the average is pretty good.

The stock market tells a very different tale. Securities have risen, and there is a steady and growing demand for them. The stocks of many corporations are rising apparently quite out of proportion to their indicated earning power. The investors pay little attention this year to balance sheets. They evidently think that, if stocks are not paying particularly well now, they are going to pay well later on. So we have a bull market, even while some business critics are emitting bearish business reports.

Some of this movement is doubtless due to the plenitude of money for investment in this country, and the easy credit available. But there is more to it than that. The investing public—which is a far larger part of the nation than ever before—evidently expects a renewal of last year's remarkable prosperity, after a slight pause.

There is no evident reason, in fundamental economic conditions, why this should not be the case, and a general belief in good times is a powerful factor in making times good.

More Domestic Equality

The equality between the sexes that women have been demanding for some time is gradually becoming thorough. In Wichita, Kan., the other day a husband threatened to go home to mother if his wife didn't stop beating him. The threat worked. The wife, in the presence of two witnesses, signed a pledge not to hit or in any way injure her husband, the father of her children, so long as they live together.

The threat to go home to mother is supposed to have brought a good many disagreeable husbands to revise their domestic methods. Sometimes it has been used toward perfectly good husbands by tyrannical wives.

It looks like a step toward justice and equality to have an abused husband get away with the same threat—if he really can get away with it. But there may still be a catch. This sort of equality hasn't yet progressed quite far enough to insure the husband who really does go home to mother against prosecution for desertion.

Bows And Arrows

Bows and arrows are coming back. Archery is becoming a popular sport. And a fine sport it is, taking one outdoors and developing strength, skill and health. Mostly the shooting is at targets, but some devotees actually go hunting with these weapons.

Why not come all the way back? Why not equip armies again with bows and arrows, and perhaps occasional spears to vary the monotony? They were good enough for William the Conqueror and many another world hero, and ought to be good enough for modern would-be conquerors, provided opposing armies were similarly equipped.

Fighting is fighting, no matter how it is done.

If all nations agreed on this, and quit making guns and explosives and using poison gas, battles would be just as decisive, and would cost far less, and do infinitely less damage to life and property.

Respectfully referred to the league of nations preliminary arms conference at Geneva and the proposed arms conference at Washington.

Conservatism

Sylvia Pankhurst breaks into the news again. The younger generation may not recognize her name. The middle-aged will remember her as the fiery young daughter of the volcanic Mrs. Pankhurst who 15 years ago was leading the militant suffragette movement in England. The Pankhurst family for several years kept British politics in a turmoil, and Sylvia created her full portion of that turmoil. She was then, to England, about what a Bolshevist would be now, only more so.

Well, the fiery Sylvia, now gentle and broke to the harness of established politics, is running for parliament. On the Labor or Liberal ticket? Not at all. On the Conservative ticket, against an incumbent who belongs to the Labor party.

Thus, having got what she wanted, like many another radical, this once dangerous woman turns respectably conservative. It is the way of the world.

The fact that Sacco and Vanzetti are radicals may be important, but has nothing to do with the charge on which they were declared guilty and sentenced to death. What the public would like to know, before they are electrocuted, is whether they really committed that murder.

"Our Indians are yellow," says a western critic of the once noble redskin. And if that can happen, it may be also that the yellow race is turning red.

WHERE HE REALLY LEARNED TO RUN

When Cuban ball players first began to break into the big leagues, John McGraw, manager of the Giants, took on a youth from Hanava who gave promise of developing into a good batsman and a swift baserunner. The recruit accompanied the team on the spring training tour where he showed considerable speed. But after the Giants had started back North for the beginning of the regular season was when the little brown-skinned chap really proved to his associates how fast he could travel.

To fill a date for an exhibition game, the players reached Macon, Georgia, on a day when a reunion of Confederate veterans was being held. With the rest of the visitors the young Cubans lined up on a sidewalk curbing to watch the parade.

As the old soldiers came swinging down the street the little chap became enthused. The martial music, the dancing battle-flags, the cheers of the crowd, the decorated store fronts, the patriotic spirit which filled the whole town appealed to his Latin blood.

"Great stuff, eh Kid?" inquired one of the older members of the club, whose reputation as a practical joker still endures.

Almost too full of emotion for utterance the Cuban nodded.

"Well, then, I'll tell you how to make a hit with these people. Coming from a foreigner like you they'll appreciate it more. You just step right out there to the middle of the street and take off your hat and swing it 'round your head and yell out as loud as you can: 'Rurrah for Sherman!' If they don't seem to catch your meaning the first time just keep on yelling it! Sherman was one of our great American generals and these folks down here in Georgia are just crazy about him. All you have to do is just mention his name."

The guileless alien followed instructions. But he only had to yell once. It was immediately after that he demonstrated to Manager McGraw and all others present that he knew how to run.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 16—Manhattan is filled with lonely and respectable ladies, who, having grown a trifle passe, come to town in hope of a little youthful rejuvenation. Many were ex-belles in their home towns contracting desirable marriages and were widowed.

Their incomes are sufficient to live in gilded hotels or maintain elaborate apartments. Yet in New York they find it difficult to mingle in that stratum of society to which they have been accustomed. They are often the prey of those designing youths who live by their wits.

The older and eligible men are more interested in flappers, the worth while youths are merely courtous, and so the wastrels often become the only surcease from loneliness. A number have been adroitly jockeyed into paying polite blackmail.

New York is the most difficult of cities for lonely, respectable women of wealth. The odds are against them. They play a lone hand. It is one of the metropolitan complexities that these people they really desire to know adopt an aloof attitude.

If they remain, they are eventually shunted almost completely to themselves or the companionship of a white poodle. New York, more than Paris, is attuned to the spirit of youth. Gay widows have their place but the respectable seem beyond the pale.

On the other hand the lone woman who goes in for business here receives more encouragement. I believe, than almost any place on the globe. The consideration for them is extremely chivalric. And their success is more often than not phenomenal.

It is noted that on Fifth and Madison avenues there are some 50 women in trade who are netting more than $50,000 each yearly. And it is recorded that 75 per cent launched business careers after passing 40.

The cafe caricaturists are arriving here from Europe in large numbers. The stunt has worn out over there and many, who are really artistically ambitious, are regarded as posts. Nearly every dining and dancing place now has a long-haired caricaturist with a corvine manner who stands over your table to make a quick pecking impressionistic caricature. His rewards are what one is disposed to give for the completed work.

Another innovation in the cafe is the picaninny who can twank a banjo or click off a few hot steps. It is quite amazing how many of these half pint youngsters have a genuine flair for entertaining. They have been picked up off the streets of Harlem and some of them are paid $50 and $75 a week for a few hours' work nightly.

I often wonder if the gay old boys have much fun after all. Many of them appear to be merely kidding themselves. There is one long ago burnt out by the Broadway pleasures who is seen everywhere the lights flicker high. His companion is a straw blonde given to cosmetics, diamonds and pricelessly cocooned in ermine. He sits all evening in a state of sleek maleability, answering her gay chatter in monosyllables. Sometimes he nods. Always he seems fearfully bored. The pipe, carpet slippers and chimney corner would fit him perfectly but instead he must carry on—or perhaps face a breach of promise suit.

A sun tanning parlor in the Thirties specializes in removing prison pallor from those just released from prisons. Thus are many able to give the appearance of having returned from Florida.

There is also a lady who makes a good living specializing in "at home" talks on period furniture. She provides a smattering of knowledge on the subject and is said to have a large clientele among the new rich who want to distinguish a Sheraton from a Heppelwhite.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Guarding Navy Yard Workers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16—Within a short time the industrial workers at the various United States navy yards and naval stations are to be protected from hazards to the head, eyes, and respiratory organs whether they want to be or not. For some years safety apparatus has been supplied to the workers with the request that it be used, but under a new code soon to be issued, the workers will be required to use such apparatus as is given them.

Furthermore, the Navy is endeavoring to standardize the safety devices to be furnished so that the same method of safeguarding the workers at all stations will be used. Formerly it has been customary for each yard and each station to meet its own problems in the best manner that could be devised by those in charge. Naturally this resulted in satisfactory methods in some cases, and in not so satisfactory in others.

In the fall of 1917 definite action was taken by the Navy Department for an efficient organization for the promotion of safety among the workmen and the intensive educational work, which has come to be recognized as indispensable in developing and maintaining a real safety interest among the civilian employes.

A safety engineer was assigned to each of the major navy yards, and these engineers did valuable work in the establishment of safety standards, the installation of needed safeguards, and the promotion of safety in general among the workmen.

In 1911 it was decided to centralize these activities and accordingly two engineers were appointed to direct the safety work of the naval establishment. One of them was assigned to Washington and was in charge of the yards and stations on the East Coast, while the other was assigned to the Mare Island Navy Yard and had supervision of the yards and stations on the West Coast.

In addition to the appointment of these two engineers the Office of Safety Engineering was established in the Department at Washington under the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and functioning as a part of the Navy Yard Division. A safety engineer is in charge and is responsible for the Navy's entire activities in safety work.

At Navy Yards And Stations.

At each of the major navy yards and stations offices of safety engineering are established under the direct supervision of the industrial manager and the general administrative supervision of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. At each of these yards and stations an officer is assigned as safety engineer who is placed in charge of the work and who has working with him a medical officer and such other personnel as appears necessary.

This safety engineer is required to inspect all shops as often as necessary and practicable, noting all conditions which might be a possible cause of injury or disease. He recommends safety and sanitary measures and appliances in the shops and buildings, as well as throughout the entire yard or station. He must follow up each industrial accident or disease reported and take suitable action to prevent a repetition of such cases. He must keep a record of all such accidents, stating the time lost, the loss in wages, cause, and other pertinent data.

Perhaps one of the most important things required of these safety engineers is that they conduct educational campaigns among the employes. By means of safety posters, lectures, and the distribution of literature the employes are acquainted with the correct methods of protecting themselves against industrial accidents and industrial diseases. They are warned against carelessness and its penalties.

In June, 1926, the Navy Department addressed a plea to the supervisors of all the navy yards and naval stations asking their co-operation in reducing the number of industrial accidents among the civilian employes. It was explained in this that in view of the fact that there are 1,250 civilian supervisors of the 30,500 industrial civilian employes, and only one safety engineer for each of the 16 major yards and stations, it is logical that the civilian workers should be better acquainted with the supervisors. The limited personnel of safety workers must, accordingly, rely to a great extent upon the co-operation of the supervisors in their efforts to afford safety to industrial workers.

Daily Inspections Asked.

The supervisors were urged to make daily inspections of their departments and working locations for the purpose of finding and eliminating dangerous conditions. They were asked to see that all the workmen in their departments complied with the rules; that they were not doing their work in an awkward and unsafe way; that only tools and machinery in good condition were used; and that no guard or safety signs were removed without being replaced. The importance of keeping the passages and aisles free and clear of material, and proper clearances maintained, was stressed.

The Navy has given special attention to protective clothing and devices which are issued to those workmen requiring them in the work they are assigned. Rubber boots and oil skins are issued to laborers when their duties are such as to require such articles, and special goggles to such workers as gas and electric welders, furnace operators, boiler makers, and others whose occupations present a hazard to the eyes.

In the new code soon to be issued special attention is given to goggles and face masks. Different occupations present entirely different problems with regard to protection of the head, eyes, and respiratory organs. A face mask which would protect against dust might be entirely useless against certain gases. It is therefore necessary to make a careful study of each type of worker and his requirements.

In order that apparatus of good quality, and such that will furnish adequate protection, is issued the Material Laboratory of the Navy Yard, New York, has been designated as the inspection and testing center for all safety appliances. Special equipment has been installed at the laboratory so that this work may be carried on.

That the Navy has achieved unusually satisfactory results in its study of protective apparatus for industrial workmen is evidenced by the fact that at a recent meeting of the Federal Specification Board, under the direction of the Bureau of Standards, the majority of the specifications of this new code were adopted. They will be used as the basis for Federal specifications which will be the standard for all Government Departments.

Business And Stocks

American business this spring is rather peculiar. Some observers say it's good and some say it's bad. The fact seems to be that conditions vary with industries, sections and individuals more than they did last year. Thus opinions often reflect partial views. People can find justification for almost any opinion, good, bad or indifferent, though it is evident that the average is pretty good.

The stock market tells a very different tale. Securities have risen, and there is a steady and growing demand for them. The stocks of many corporations are rising apparently quite out of proportion to their indicated earning power. The investors pay little attention this year to balance sheets. They evidently think that, if stocks are not paying particularly well now, they are going to pay well later on. So we have a bull market, even while some business critics are emitting bearish business reports.

Some of this movement is doubtless due to the plenitude of money for investment in this country, and the easy credit available. But there is more to it than that. The investing public—which is a far larger part of the nation than ever before—evidently expects a renewal of last year's remarkable prosperity, after a slight pause.

There is no evident reason, in fundamental economic conditions, why this should not be the case, and a general belief in good times is a powerful factor in making times good.

More Domestic Equality

The equality between the sexes that women have been demanding for some time is gradually becoming thorough. In Wichita, Kan., the other day a husband threatened to go home to mother if his wife didn't stop beating him. The threat worked. The wife, in the presence of two witnesses, signed a pledge not to hit or in any way injure her husband, the father of her children, so long as they live together.

The threat to go home to mother is supposed to have brought a good many disagreeable husbands to revise their domestic methods. Sometimes it has been used toward perfectly good husbands by tyrannical wives.

It looks like a step toward justice and equality to have an abused husband get away with the same threat—if he really can get away with it. But there may still be a catch. This sort of equality hasn't yet progressed quite far enough to insure the husband who really does go home to mother against prosecution for desertion.

Bows And Arrows

Bows and arrows are coming back. Archery is becoming a popular sport. And a fine sport it is, taking one outdoors and developing strength, skill and health. Mostly the shooting is at targets, but some devotees actually go hunting with these weapons.

Why not come all the way back? Why not equip armies again with bows and arrows, and perhaps occasional spears to vary the monotony? They were good enough for William the Conqueror and many another world hero, and ought to be good enough for modern would-be conquerors, provided opposing armies were similarly equipped.

Fighting is fighting, no matter how it is done.

If all nations agreed on this, and quit making guns and explosives and using poison gas, battles would be just as decisive, and would cost far less, and do infinitely less damage to life and property.

Respectfully referred to the league of nations preliminary arms conference at Geneva and the proposed arms conference at Washington.

Conservatism

Sylvia Pankhurst breaks into the news again. The younger generation may not recognize her name. The middle-aged will remember her as the fiery young daughter of the volcanic Mrs. Pankhurst who 15 years ago was leading the militant suffragette movement in England. The Pankhurst family for several years kept British politics in a turmoil, and Sylvia created her full portion of that turmoil. She was then, to England, about what a Bolshevist would be now, only more so.

Well, the fiery Sylvia, now gentle and broke to the harness of established politics, is running for parliament. On the Labor or Liberal ticket? Not at all. On the Conservative ticket, against an incumbent who belongs to the Labor party.

Thus, having got what she wanted, like many another radical, this once dangerous woman turns respectably conservative. It is the way of the world.

The fact that Sacco and Vanzetti are radicals may be important, but has nothing to do with the charge on which they were declared guilty and sentenced to death. What the public would like to know, before they are electrocuted, is whether they really committed that murder.

"Our Indians are yellow," says a western critic of the once noble redskin. And if that can happen, it may be also that the yellow race is turning red.

WHERE HE REALLY LEARNED TO RUN

When Cuban ball players first began to break into the big leagues, John McGraw, manager of the Giants, took on a youth from Hanava who gave promise of developing into a good batsman and a swift baserunner. The recruit accompanied the team on the spring training tour where he showed considerable speed. But after the Giants had started back North for the beginning of the regular season was when the little brown-skinned chap really proved to his associates how fast he could travel.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS.

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, is a somewhat colorless little girl, who works in the mailing room of a printing and bookbinding establishment. One day a girl who had formerly worked in the mailing room comes to call. Her name is

LUCILLE OVERMAN, and she is now working in pictures. She takes Hattie to the studio where she, Lucille, is to have a screen test. Hattie there is seen by the famous director,

DE BRISSAC, who makes a screen test of her and offers her a contract. Hattie lives with her married sister,

ALICE, and her baby daughter, Emily, and

GRANDMA, a querulous semi-invalid. They all start for California with De Brissac, who suggests books for Hattie to read to "form her mind." On the train she meets

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man. De Brissac makes love to Hattie as part of her training for screen work and Hattie seems powerless to resist him. She refuses to go with him on his yacht away from her family, however. O'Malley, to whom she becomes engaged, advises her to try to get work at another studio and invites a lawyer to look over her contract with De Brissac. A rival studio gives her a part and she goes to work for them.

She is a failure without De Brissac and finally she sees him in a restaurant. He asks her not to tie up with the other concern for more than one picture.

The Alice's husband, who has deserted her some years before, comes back—one more for Hattie to support.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR.

There, in the living room, stood Alice's husband; rather shabbily dressed, laughing in an uncertain way, hesitating, not sure whether Hattie would expect to be kissed. His complexion, she thought wasn't very good. It was red on both sides of the nose, over his cheekbones, and he looked softer about the mouth; he seemed aware of this, and kept pressing his lips together with an air of self-conscious firmness. And he had a cough.

"Funny, wasn't it!" he offered. "I dropped into the Alhamabra up in Portland. You know I thought all the time there was something familiar in that name, Harriet John. But I didn't really think it could—you know how you do—until, bless my soul, if there wasn't our little Hattie, big as life! And I said to myself, 'what do you know about that?'"

"You mustn't keep standing, dear," cried Alice, with a sudden almost fierce air of defending him. "You sit right down! He's been sick, poor boy," she explained, with that same defiance, as she sank shamelessly on his lap and hugged him and smoothed his thinning hair. "And I tell him his little wife's just going to take care of him."

The last way's work at Plantagenet Town was light. Mortimer dismissed Hattie at noon. He wasn't unkind about it; took her hand and wished her good luck; but that scene in her heart of failure had been at no moment more final. And she went alone into the studio restaurant.

Someone was waving at her from a table by a window. A slim dark girl, a pretty girl. She hesitated, frightened at first, then incredulous, staring. It was . . . Lucille! She rushed over there, with the sensation of greeting an old friend who was very dear, dearer, in a way, than anyone in Hollywood. There were no old friends here.

Lucille held her off and looked at her, then made her sit opposite and looked at her again.

"Well," she said, "the same little mailing-room girl, as I live! Hattie, how do you do it? Six months in Beverly, the biggest personal success of the past two or three years and yet here you are not changed at all! Even your clothes! Now me—I can't help looking experienced. And they don't like it. They want that wonderful innocence of yours. Why, child, you're a knockout! You're a sensation! Everybody on Broadway's talking nothing but Harriet John! I expected to find you lying back in a Rolls-Royce in summer sables."

Hattie lip quivered.

"I'm through here today. They don't want me any more. They don't like me."

"Wait a minute, child. You've got me all mixed up. Who don't like you?"

"Mr. Mortimer. All of them. I'mt no good. I can't act." In a moment, if she didn't take care, she'd be crying, here in the restaurant. She stopped that line of talk, and asked—

"How'd you ever happen to come out here?"

"Oh, I'm with D'Urberville Picture people all travel in a groove, you know. No use trying to hide from anybody in this business. You can't get away with it. But never mind that—let me understand this astonishing situation! You've been working here?"

"Yes."

"But aren't you in de Brissac's new company?"

"I didn't know he—"

"You didn't! Why, I thought you—"

"I left him."

"You left him? But good God, child—"

"Lucille—I've got something to—I'm engaged to be married"

"Really! That's nice! But I want to get this de Brissac business straight. You say you left him, and they don't like you here—did you say all that, or am I just naturally losing my poor old brains?"

Hattie nodded. "I'm no good, Lucille I can't act. I don't know anything about it. And when they see this picture everybody's going to know it. Oh, if only I—"

"Don't make me laugh!" said Lucille. "And don't talk so fast. Why did you leave de Brissac? Tell me that first."

Hattie began hesitatingly to tell Here at last was a confidant to whom she could pour out her heart; not the doll, but a real person who would understand her. It was her one heart-breaking need at the moment. She gave up to it. The words and phrases began tumbling hotly forth. Lucille had to caution her to lower her voice. And after a hurried lunch they went out and walked all the way into Beverly, while Hattie talked on and on. She had begun with de Brissac's first words to her, and their stolen moments together. She felt now that she hated him. Her fear of him became, for the moment, anger; the attraction she felt toward him became bitterness. And through the anger and the bitterness ran this new sensation of relief that mounted into savage joy. And yet outwardly she was that same timid girl, with a light high voice that wasn't quite clear in quality.

Lucille heard her out; and at last asked, with a manner of shrewd quiet—they were walking slowly past the Spanish-looking hotel now with its crescent of palm trees in front and with its row on the long porch of actors and continuity writers sitting in the rocking chairs reading the early editions of the evening papers, and its other row of elderly women knitting, and its children playing among the parked automobiles—

"Is this camera man — this man you're engaged to—"

"Henry O'Malley."

"Yes. Does he seem to be of a particularly jealous disposition?"

"No, I don't think so. He's really awfully kind and nice. Of course, his mind is always so full of his inventions that it's hard to get him to think long of anything else."

"I see. . . . . Well, I don't suppose you're especially interested in my opinion of all this."

"You know I am, Lucille. Why, if we weren't dear old friends do you suupose I'd tell any—"

"I think you're the most astounding little fool I ever heard of."

"I don't see how you can say that!" Hattie was hotly red now.

"Think it over for yourself. Here are about a million of us who would give everything in the world to have Armand de Brissac take just a little interest in us. Clever girls, some of us. Ambitious, hard workers. But he passes us all by without a look, picks you off a bush, offers you all his power and influence and all his art, and actually keeps his word—makes good with you—and you run from him—throw it all away." There was bitterness in Lucille's tone, too.

"But to do wrong, Lucille—when you feel it's wrong—"

"Oh what is wrong? And what is right?"

"But we know what's right—"

"Is it right to marry a man you don't love?"

For a moment Hattie was silent Then she cried—

"But I don't love Henry!"

They were confronting each other, on the corner by the drug store.

"At least," remarked Lucille, drily, "we can go in and have a soda."

Former Pupil Brings Riches.

Kindness to a pupil brought a fortune to Rev. Ernest Owen, who died recently at Ashford, England, leaving an estate valued at more than half a million dollars. While head master at Llandaff Cathedral school at Llandaff, Wales, he won to a remarkable degree the confidence and affection of his pupils. One of his charges later went to the Malay peninsula where he became actively engaged in the rubber industry. Remembering the kindness of his former instructor, he wrote to Reverend Owen and urged him to invest all his savings in certain rubber companies Owen followed the advice and became wealthy. He later asquired Stancliffe School, Derbyshire, and sold it at a large figure.

A Good Thing—Don't Overlook It.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains a valuable suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it—for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

"No, I don't think so. He's really awfully kind and nice. Of course, his mind is always so full of his inventions that it's hard to get him to think long of anything else."

"I see. . . . . Well, I don't suppose you're especially interested in my opinion of all this."

"You know I am, Lucille. Why, if we weren't dear old friends do you suupose I'd tell any—"

"I think you're the most astounding little fool I ever heard of."

"I don't see how you can say that!" Hattie was hotly red now.

"Think it over for yourself. Here are about a million of us who would give everything in the world to have Armand de Brissac take just a little interest in us. Clever girls, some of us. Ambitious, hard workers. But he passes us all by without a look, picks you off a bush, offers you all his power and influence and all his art, and actually keeps his word—makes good with you—and you run from him—throw it all away." There was bitterness in Lucille's tone, too.

"But to do wrong, Lucille—when you feel it's wrong—"

"Oh what is wrong? And what is right?"

"But we know what's right—"

"Is it right to marry a man you don't love?"

For a moment Hattie was silent Then she cried—

"But I don't love Henry!"

They were confronting each other, on the corner by the drug store.

"At least," remarked Lucille, drily, "we can go in and have a soda."

Former Pupil Brings Riches.

Kindness to a pupil brought a fortune to Rev. Ernest Owen, who died recently at Ashford, England, leaving an estate valued at more than half a million dollars. While head master at Llandaff Cathedral school at Llandaff, Wales, he won to a remarkable degree the confidence and affection of his pupils. One of his charges later went to the Malay peninsula where he became actively engaged in the rubber industry. Remembering the kindness of his former instructor, he wrote to Reverend Owen and urged him to invest all his savings in certain rubber companies Owen followed the advice and became wealthy. He later asquired Stancliffe School, Derbyshire, and sold it at a large figure.

A Good Thing—Don't Overlook It.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains a valuable suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it—for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

NEW YORK READY FOR FIFTH AVENUE EASTER PARADE

SKIRTS REVEAL KNEE CAP; BOBS WEAR HELMETS

Reptile Shoes and "Black Bottom" Stockings all Rage.

GOWNS COLORFUL

"Typical" Outfit for Girls Will Cost $160.

By James L. Kilgallen.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Easter styles, as viewed along fashionable Fifth Avenue today, disclosed that skirts continue to reveal the knee cap, that bobbed heads are adorned with helmet hats and that reptile shoes and "Black Bottom" stockings are all the rage.

Not in years have the Fifth avenue shops done such a heavy pre-Easter business. The weather man has more than done his part.

The gowns are colorful but not freakish, snappy yet tasty—and all of them express the spirit of youth.

Spend Less Money for Clothes.

Inquiry in the shops revealed that girls are spending less money for their Easter layouts than they used to. They "change" oftener. Instead of one or two Sunday gowns they now have quite a wardrobe.

Miss Gertrude Andrus, assistant manager of a Fifth avenue shop, said that girls and women are going in for more but less expensive clothes. She estimated that the average Easter outfit the girls will parade to church in tomorrow will cost between $125 to $200. Taking pencil in hand, she outlined a "typical" outfit, the cost amounting to $160 it is:

Shoes $10, stockings $4, dress $25, hat $10, gloves $6, underwear $10, either a fur piece or spring coat $75, accessories $20—total $160.

Getting Away From Masculine Modes.

"I notice the girls are getting away from masculine modes," said Miss Andrus. "They're wearing fluffier things. The skirts are fuller and many of them have pleats. We are getting away somewhat from the severe straight lines that make for the boyish figure.

Greens, violets and beige are the favorite colors for dresses. There is a warm spot for black and whites, too.

"Snake skin oxfords, garish in design and quite unique, have taken the popular fancy.

"Every other girl you see is wearing the 'Black Bottom' stocking—either light or dark stockings with a black heel.

Furs—Silver fox, beige and red fox—are part of every girl's attire."

Straight Lines Passe.

"I think the straight lines are passe; that skirts will remain fuller with the waist more ample. The only masculine style being affected is a brown man-tailored suit that many of the very young girls regards as specially snappy. For evening wear there is a popular dress which is cut above the knee in front and comes down below the knee in back. But for the most part skirts are exactly knee length. I don't see how they can go any higher."

In another shop the information was imparted that many of the girls in the Easter parade are wearing what is called a "pantee-too"—a combination and a corset together which doesn't do the shape a bit of harm.

Carnival Spirit in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 16.—Ablaze with color and with a carnival spirit in the air, Atlantic City today prepared with evident relish for its annual Eastern Sunday parade tomorrow.

Special trains arriving at brief intervals brought visitors by the thousands from all over the east—tumbling over each other in their eagerness to take part in the festivities.

It was estimated today that 300,000 persons, bedecked in Eastern finery, will parade along the expansive boardwalk Sunday providing, of course, that the weather is as nice as anticipated.

In the vast throng already here, or coming, are people from all walks of life—from the humble shop girl to the chief executives of states. Mayor J. Walker of New York City is here and his friend, Governor Al Smith, who is on a vacation at the Seaview golf club, near here is also expected to be among the Sunday promenaders. Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia will be present.

Famous Boardwalk Groomed.

The famous boardwalk, which faces the ocean, is groomed, manicured and polished for the big parade tomorrow. The great wooden way will be guarded by the "beauty squad," seventeen of the most handosme of the local police force. Detectives will mingle with the throng to watch for pickpockets.

Pretty girls and women, with and without male escorts, and attired in their most alluring finery, will stroll along the boardwalk or loll in rolling chairs pushed by negroes.

A wide variety of entertainment has been arranged for the visitors by the hotels, piers and theatres—not to mention the cabarets. There are 82 cafes here and all apparently are doing business. It is the annual custom of the visitors to remain in the cabarets into the wee hours of Easter Sunday, making merry, and there is every reason to believe this will be done tonight. It is no secret, either, that the bibulously inclined are having no trouble in finding liquor.

All the churches in the city will join in a mammoth outdoor service at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning on the beach front.

These confessions, police say, with those made by James McFarland, New York; Robert Arlington, Cleveland, and James Madden, Chicago, will solve the many depredations of this territory. Napoleon crossed the Alps in winter and told those that complimented him on the "great achievement": "Winter is the best time to cross: the snow does not slip. I deserve credit only for not believing fools who said it could not be done."

German flyers don't believe it cannot be done, therefore they are establishing a commercial flying service that amazes the world. It would interest Napoleon to know that a German passenger ship yesterday flew from Munich to Milan, over the Alps, 225 miles, in a heavy snowstorm, in three hours. That's flying.

WE are getting back into the good old "war spirit." A photograph shows the "famous alley where three British soldiers and two volunteers held up 600 Northern Chinese soldiers." That is inspiring, showing what a wonderful thing a "Nordic" is. When the war is over we shall hear the side of the 600 Chinese soldiers and know more.

LOWELL FESS' WIFE SUES HIM FOR DIVORCE

Former High School Teacher Named in Sensational Case.

GRAVE CHARGES

Mrs. Fess, Alleging Cruelty, Asks $100 Monthly Alimony.

Thomas Lowell Fess, former member of the East Liverpool High school faculty, is defendant in a separation suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Fess, in a New York court.

Mrs. Fess charges her husband with cruelty and failure to provide. She asks that she be granted $100 per month alimony and $2,000 counsel fees. There are no children. Supreme Court Justice has taken the case under advisement.

The complaint, filed by Attorney Samuel J. Solomon, counsel for Mrs. Fess, says that the couple was married August 14, 1924, at Greenup, Ky., and that "there was such a lack of accord between them" that a year later they signed an agreement to separate under which the wife was to receive $150 per month. She claims that she returned to him several weeks later upon his promise to give up certain habits which the wife thought objectionable.

Mrs. Fess sets up as reasons for a separation that her husband used abusive language and called her vile names, that he was friendly with "another woman" and that he drank in excess. She alleges that the drunkenness and bad language resulted in scenes that caused her "great mental pain and anguish."

She cities as places where there were domestic clashes as the Gregstone hotel, Columbus, the Aberdeen hotel and the Woolsey Apartments in New York. As an added offense she cites that she found he had given an automobile and a caracul coat, costing $700, to "another woman."

Fess is represented by Representative Emmanuel Celler, 51 Chamber's street, New York. According to the papers filed he is a salesman for Lehn and Fink, manufacturers of toilet articles and medical supplies at 250 Park Avenue, New York. His address was given as the Times Square hotel, New York.

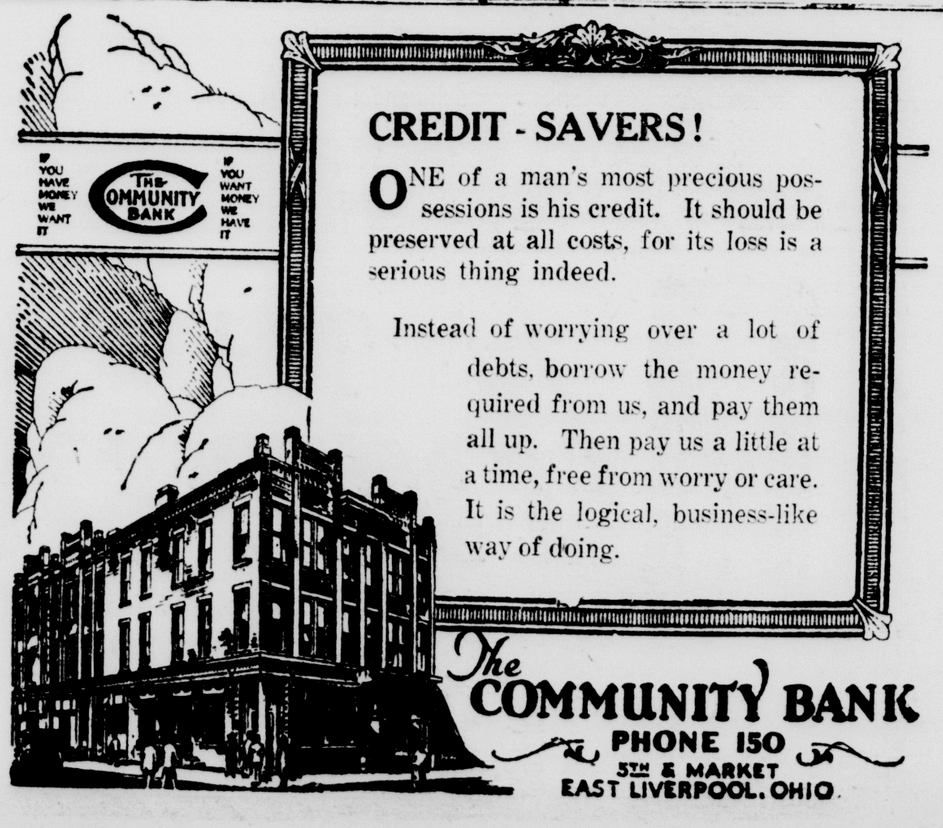

Fess taught in the local nigh school for two terms. His younger brother, Samuel Fess, graduated here. The elder brother was connected with the Ohio Retail Merchants' association at Columbus for several years before going to New York. He last visited in East Liverpool about two years ago.

NEW YORK READY FOR FIFTH AVENUE EASTER PARADE

SKIRTS REVEAL KNEE CAP; BOBS WEAR HELMETS

Reptile Shoes and "Black Bottom" Stockings all Rage.

GOWNS COLORFUL

"Typical" Outfit for Girls Will Cost $160.

By James L. Kilgallen.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Easter styles, as viewed along fashionable Fifth Avenue today, disclosed that skirts continue to reveal the knee cap, that bobbed heads are adorned with helmet hats and that reptile shoes and "Black Bottom" stockings are all the rage.

Not in years have the Fifth avenue shops done such a heavy pre-Easter business. The weather man has more than done his part.

The gowns are colorful but not freakish, snappy yet tasty—and all of them express the spirit of youth.

Spend Less Money for Clothes.

Inquiry in the shops revealed that girls are spending less money for their Easter layouts than they used to. They "change" oftener. Instead of one or two Sunday gowns they now have quite a wardrobe.

Miss Gertrude Andrus, assistant manager of a Fifth avenue shop, said that girls and women are going in for more but less expensive clothes. She estimated that the average Easter outfit the girls will parade to church in tomorrow will cost between $125 to $200. Taking pencil in hand, she outlined a "typical" outfit, the cost amounting to $160 It is:

Shoes $10, stockings $4, dress $25, hat $10, gloves $6, underwear $10, either a fur piece or spring coat $75, accessories $20—total $160.

Getting Away From Masculine Modes.

"I notice the girls are getting away from masculine modes," said Miss Andrus. "They're wearing fluffier things. The skirts are fuller and many of them have pleats. We are getting away somewhat from the severe straight lines that make for the boyish figure.

Greens, violets and beige are the favorite colors for dresses. There is a warm spot for black and whites, too.

"Snake skin oxfords, garish in design and quite unique, have taken the popular fancy.

"Every other girl you see is wearing the 'Black Bottom' stocking—either light or dark stockings with a black heel.

Furs—Silver fox, beige and red fox—are part of every girl's attire."

Straight Lines Passe.

"I think the straight lines are passe; that skirts will remain fuller with the waist more ample. The only masculine style being affected is a brown man-tailored suit that many of the very young girls regards as specially snappy. For evening wear there is a popular dress which is cut above the knee in front and comes down below the knee in back. But for the most part skirts are exactly knee length. I don't see how they can go any higher."

In another shop the information was imparted that many of the girls in the Easter parade are wearing what is called a "pantee-too"—a combination and a corset together which doesn't do the shape a bit of harm.

Carnival Spirit in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 16.—Ablaze with color and with a carnival spirit in the air, Atlantic City today prepared with evident relish for its annual Eastern Sunday parade tomorrow.

Special trains arriving at brief intervals brought visitors by the thousands from all over the east—tumbling over each other in their eagerness to take part in the festivities.

It was estimated today that 300,000 persons, bedecked in Eastern finery, will parade along the expansive boardwalk Sunday providing, of course, that the weather is as nice as anticipated.

In the vast throng already here, or coming, are people from all walks of life—from the humble shop girl to the chief executives of states. Mayor J. Walker of New York City is here and his friend, Governor Al Smith, who is on a vacation at the Seaview golf club, near here is also expected to be among the Sunday promenaders. Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia will be present.

Famous Boardwalk Groomed.

The famous boardwalk, which faces the ocean, is groomed, manicured and polished for the big parade tomorrow. The great wooden way will be guarded by the "beauty squad," seventeen of the most handosme of the local police force. Detectives will mingle with the throng to watch for pickpockets.

Pretty girls and women, with and without male escorts, and attired in their most alluring finery, will stroll along the boardwalk or loll in rolling chairs pushed by negroes.

A wide variety of entertainment has been arranged for the visitors by the hotels, piers and theatres—not to mention the cabarets. There are 82 cafes here and all apparently are doing business. It is the annual custom of the visitors to remain in the cabarets into the wee hours of Easter Sunday, making merry, and there is every reason to believe this will be done tonight. It is no secret, either, that the bibulously inclined are having no trouble in finding liquor.

All the churches in the city will join in a mammoth outdoor service at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning on the beach front.

11 MEN NABBED IN LOOTING OF BANKS IN OHIO

NINE CONFESS

Two Other Suspects Identified, According to Authorities.

With eleven men under arrest in Ohio charged with robbing small town banks and stores, authorities believe they have broken up three bands who have terrorized as many sections of the state during the past winter. Nine of the men are said to have confessed, while the other two have been identified, according to police.

Gerald Hinkle, 24, this city, who was arrested late Friday while acting as pallbearer for his slain companion, Earl Turney, has confessed his part in numerous holdups in this section. Robert Johnson, 19, Akron, is also reported to have confessed several holdups.

These confessions, police say, with those made by James McFarland, New York; Robert Arlington, Cleveland, and James Madden, Chicago, will solve the many depredations of this territory. McFarland, Arlington and Madden were arrested during a battle in which Turney was slain, following the robbery of a jewelry store at Lodi.

Action, Bliffton, Ind., and George Androinette, Johnstown, Pa., were being arraigned at Paulding on charges of having robbed the Farmers' and Citizens' bank at Payne, O., Merrill Dull, member of a prominent family at Wiltshire was charged in a warrant with complicity in the holdup.

Action and Androinette were both held under $50,000 bond each after waiving arraignment, and are held in the Paulding county jail.

While Sheriff Betz, Paulding county, attempted to serve his warrant, Dull was undergoing an investigation for insanity before probate Judge Lawhead.

Both Action and Androinette have been identified as the men who held up the Lingrove, Ind., bank, by Merle Lybarger, cashier of the bank.

Sheriff Obtains Confession.

Patterson, Belle Center, under arrest here for complicity in the hold-up of the state bank at Huntsville, have confessed their guilt, it was declared here today by Sheriff Vermillion, and will be taken to the Logan county jail at Bellefontaine.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., April 16.—Willard Grothjan, Minster, is locked in the county jail here today pending further investigation of the bank at Huntsville, March 29. He is under indictment in Auglaize county for carrying concealed weapons but denies his complicity with two men who confessed at Wapakoneta. Grothjan was arrested Thursday night at Dayton.

German flyers don't believe it cannot be done, therefore they are establishing a commercial flying service that amazes the world. LOWELL FESS' WIFE SUES HIM FOR DIVORCE

Former High School Teacher Named in Sensational Case.

GRAVE CHARGES

Mrs. Fess, Alleging Cruelty, Asks $100 Monthly Alimony.

Thomas Lowell Fess, former member of the East Liverpool High school faculty, is defendant in a separation suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Fess, in a New York court.

Mrs. Fess charges her husband with cruelty and failure to provide. She asks that she be granted $100 per month alimony and $2,000 counsel fees. There are no children. Supreme Court Justice has taken the case under advisement.

The complaint, filed by Attorney Samuel J. Solomon, counsel for Mrs. Fess, says that the couple was married August 14, 1924, at Greenup, Ky., and that "there was such a lack of accord between them" that a year later they signed an agreement to separate under which the wife was to receive $150 per month. She claims that she returned to him several weeks later upon his promise to give up certain habits which the wife thought objectionable.

Mrs. Fess sets up as reasons for a separation that her husband used abusive language and called her vile names, that he was friendly with "another woman" and that he drank in excess. She alleges that the drunkenness and bad language resulted in scenes that caused her "great mental pain and anguish."

She cities as places where there were domestic clashes as the Gregstone hotel, Columbus, the Aberdeen hotel and the Woolsey Apartments in New York. As an added offense she cites that she found he had given an automobile and a caracul coat, costing $700, to "another woman."

Fess is represented by Representative Emmanuel Celler, 51 Chamber's street, New York. According to the papers filed he is a salesman for Lehn and Fink, manufacturers of toilet articles and medical supplies at 259 Park Avenue, New York. His address was given as the Times Square hotel, New York.

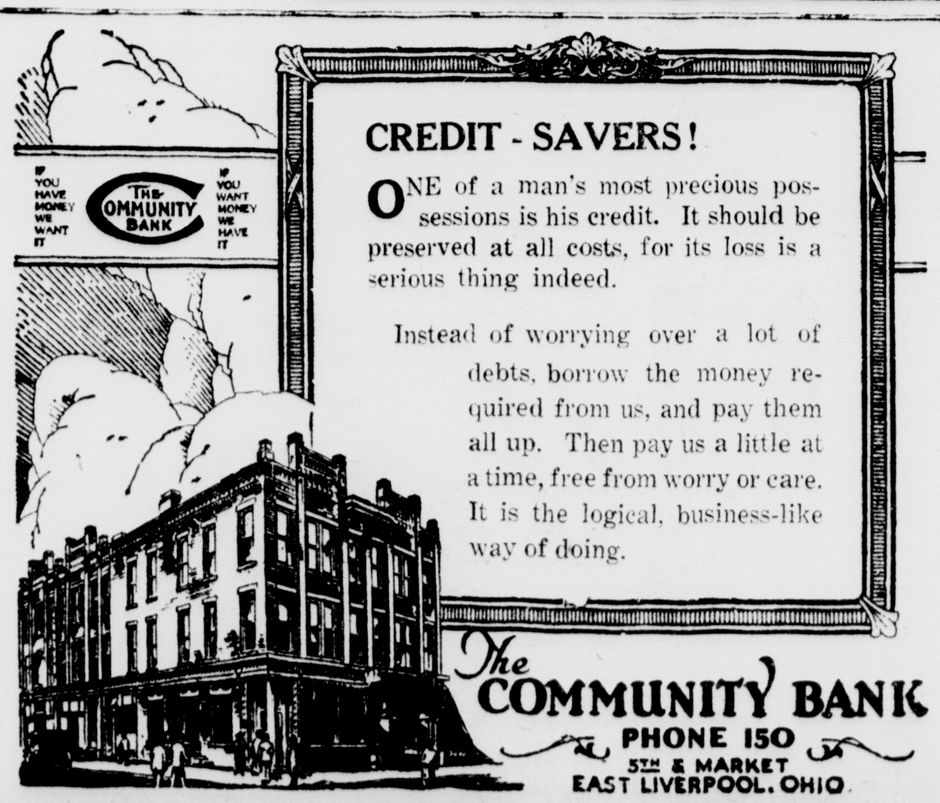

Fess taught in the local nigh school for two terms. His younger brother, Samuel Fess, graduated here. The elder brother was connected with the Ohio Retail Merchants' association at Columbus for several years before going to New York. He last visited in East Liverpool about two years ago.

Blue Bonnet Revue Heads Monday Bill At Ceramic

Seven Clever Dancers and Singers Will Appear With Feature Picture, "New York."

The Blue Bonnet Revue, a novel idea in singing and dancing will be the stage feature at the Ceramic theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in conjunction with the feature picture, "New York."

Seven artists who have just completed a long engagement on the Keith-Albee circuit, will offer an extraordinary act. The company carries pretty scenery and beautiful costumes.

Imagine the situation in which a young man sits down at a piano and remains there all night composing a love ballad to his sweetheart—not knowing that in a room less than ten feet away lies the body of a friend who has been murdered.

That's one of the punch situations contained in Paramount's latest production, "New York." Ricardo Cortez is the musician; Lois Wilson, his finance, and Estelle Taylor, the victim.

Briefly, the story is that of four Bowery boys who have evidenced a "gang spirit" since childhood. All four attain maturity and branch out to make their own way in the world. One becomes a politician, two join a jazz band and the fourth develops into a professional gangster. Then, a shadow in the form of a woman comes between them. Miss Taylor finds it hard to hide her love for Cortez, but his mind is enraptured by a society belle. Cortez spurning her, she marries William Powell so that she may stay near his friend.

One night, the girl determines to make a last attempt to win Cortez. She goes to his apartment and telephones her husband. Powell arrives there first and in a jealous tirade shoots her. He sticks the body in a neighboring room and—

Sounds thrilling, doesn't it? From what we hear, "New York" shapes up as great entertainment. Luther Reed directed. Forrest Halsey adapted an original screen story by Barbara Chambers and Becky Gardner.

Blue Bonnet Revue Heads Monday Bill At Ceramic

Seven Clever Dancers and Singers Will Appear With Feature Picture, "New York."

The Blue Bonnet Revue, a novel idea in singing and dancing will be the stage feature at the Ceramic theatre, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in conjunction with the feature picture, "New York."

Seven artists who have just completed a long engagement on the Keith-Albee circuit, will offer an extraordinary act. The company carries pretty scenery and beautiful costumes.

Imagine the situation in which a young man sits down at a piano and remains there all night composing a love ballad to his sweetheart—not knowing that in a room less than ten feet away lies the body of a friend who has been murdered.

That's one of the punch situations contained in Paramount's latest production, "New York." Ricardo Cortez is the musician; Lois Wilson, his finance, and Estelle Taylor, the victim.

Briefly, the story is that of four Bowery boys who have evidenced a "gang spirit" since childhood. All four attain maturity and branch out to make their own way in the world. One becomes a politician, two join a jazz band and the fourth develops into a professional gangster. Then, a shadow in the form of a woman comes between them. Miss Taylor finds it hard to hide her love for Cortez, but his mind is enraptured by a society belle. Cortez spurning her, she marries William Powell so that she may stay near his friend.

One night, the girl determines to make a last attempt to win Cortez. She goes to his apartment and telephones her husband. Powell arrives there first and in a jealous tirade shoots her. He sticks the body in a neighboring room and—

Sounds thrilling, doesn't it? From what we hear, "New York" shapes up as great entertainment. Luther Reed directed. Forrest Halsey adapted an original screen story by Barbara Chambers and Becky Gardner.

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

VIVID MEMORIES OF SUNRISE IN HOLY CITY ON EASTER SUNDAY

Portrayal of Last Year Celebration in Jerusalem is Given by Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Last Easter I was in Jerusalem, and from a housetop on the old city wall I saw the day dawn o er the Mount of Olives. The city was full of pilgrims, from every branch of the world-wide Christian church The Holy City is a crowded, cosmopolitan center on the days of the Resurrection rendezvous! All colors and classes and creeds are represented, mellowed an ' merged by the common quest for a new experience of the Risen Christ. To be in Jerusalem for Holy Week—what a dream come true is this for myriads of devout disciples!

In fullest fellowship with this multitude of pilgrims, we two, my wife and I, yet kept Easter apart from the throng. We had gone with a multitude to the Garden of Gethsemane on the anniversary of our Lord's agony; and we had visited the sombre-draped church of the Holy Sepuchre on Good Friday; but for the dawn of Easter we arranged to have all to ourselves the highest housetop on the northern wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate.

This spot which we had chosen overlooked the city, and the highway outside of the wall, and Gordon's Calvary and the Garden Tomb. Whichever way we turned, some spot associated with the death and burial and resurrection of Jesus fell under our eyes. South was the Temple Area and the Tower of Antonia; and running westward to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre was the Via Dolorosa. Eastward, still wrapped in the shadows of night, lay the Mount of Olives, with Bethany around its shoulder.

All of the events of the last week of our Lord's life were enacted within a small area, at the center of which we stood. We could easily imagine the huzzahs of the Triumphal Entry multitudes; the hot, hate-filled cries, "Crucify Him!;" the tumult of the Crucifixion, perhaps on that very hill to the North, a stone's throw away, called "Gordon's Calvary," where is now a Moslem cemetery; the slow, heart-broken wail of the women bearing spices to the neighboring grave; and the swift rush of Peter and Pohn, after they had heard Mary's incredible news. As near as mortal could get to the theatre of the greatest events in the history of eternity were we two, alone on that houstop on the wall of Jerusalem, at break of day on Easter, 1926.

Watching Jerusalem Awaken.

Amidst the soft stillness of dawn, we stood watching the scene, with its overtone of gray. The roof on which we were standing was gray, the wall was gray, the dominant color of the old city was gray, and the shadowed face of the Mount of Olives was gray. Although we were on the highest spot in the city, yet we could perceive how entirely, on every side, Jerusalem is surrounded by greater heights: truly, "the mountains are round about Jerusalem."

Out of the Arabian desert the sun had pointed his spears westward, and these soon shone above the crest of Olivet, striking first the towers of Government House and of the Church of the Ascension, on the top of the hill. Swiftly the King of Day marched onward, and points of light touched the tops of the Masque of Omar, of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, and of the two German church towers in the City of Jerusalem. The face of the Mount of Olives, where stately cypresses lifted their spires like ascending flames of prayer, began to lighten. Even as we watched the day dawn, so the earliest friends of Jesus, whose heart-broken love had outrun the morning, had looked for the coming of the first Easter.

The city began to wake up Smoke ascended from a group of black tents outside of the wall. Some traffic appeared on the streets. The bells of the churches began to toll—one insistently affirming its faith in the Trinity by striking in solemn groups of three. Greek churches jangled their bells out of tune, in their customary jumble of sound. Here and there, on the tortuous streets below us, we caught glimpses of Christians hurrying to worship. This was a day of days in the city of memories.

Dawn on the Housetop

It seems almost a violation of the sanctities to relate the Easter service which we two held on that Jerusalem housetop, as dawn merged into full day. We read together all the Gospel narratives of the Resurrection of immortality. Insistently there crowded upon us the place-sense of all the events of which the Scripture tells. We could lift up our eyes and behold the very scenes of the Story. The time, the place and the incidents all illuminated the theme. Across the road a little company of American and British Christians, gathered for a sunrise service in the Garden Tomb, sang familiar Easter hymns. The great churches which abound in Jerusalem repeated the same jubilation by their bells. Eagerfaced pedestrians gave testimony to the same Resurrection Message.

Somewhere, within a few rods of where we stood and worshipped, Jesus Christ was crucified and buried and rose again from the dead. That stupendous realization tinged all of our thinking. Yet we were glad that the exact spots are not known of a certainty. For the redemption of mankind is not bound up with any one site. It is a universal truth; and its real scene is in the Father heart of God. Our spirits kept repeating, "He is not here; He is risen!" The mystery of the Resurrection is for every one as personal and near as if enacted in his own home town. One writer has pictured the truth more vividly than could we whose privilege it was to behold the setting of the Great Tranaction from a housetop on the wall of Jerusalem on Easter morning:

"Under an Eastern sky,
Amid a rabble's cry,
A Man went forth to die
For me.
"Thorn-crowned His blessed head;
Blood-stained His very tread;
Blood-stained His every tread;
For me.
"Pierced glow His hands and feet;
Three hours o'er Him beat
Fierce rays of noontide heat
For me.
"Thus wert Thou made all mine;
Lord, make me wholly Thine;
Grant grace and strength divine
To me."

Easter in the Heart.

All other meanings of Easter are gathered up into this one of its personal application. That Jesus died in order that man might live is the supreme mystery and mercy of time and eternity. Theologians used to debate and define: our modern mood in less calculating. We cannot explain the Atonement, nor measure the heinousness of sin nor the height of Divine Love. We only know that, in a way beyond our telling, God's only Son was crucified and rose again from the dead in order that an At-one-ment of man and God might be secured.

Death's terror, too, died for the Christian when Christ died. The ageless, intangible hope of immortality became a definite reality in the Resurrection of Jesus. Every life that has seen the cold, still form of a dear one go down into the grave places all hope for a reunion in the pledge given by the Risen Christ: "Because I live, ye shall live also." John W. Chadwick's poem voices this yearning for those who once lived with us on earth and are again to live with us ni heaven:

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

" 'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened every frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When ye are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

"More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
Thy cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore.
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides,
Our God, forevermore!"

CHESTER'S FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH FORMED IN 1900

Organized on June 14, 1900, with a charter membership of 46, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chester today has the names of approximately 430 persons on its rolls ministering to a growing constituency of more than 800.

The first meetings held by the denomination were conducted in the old school house near the ferry boat landing in the lower end of town. The church was organized by Rev. James Mechem, D. D., then superintendent or presiding elder of the Washington district of the Pittsburgh conference.

Twenty-one persons who were affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of East Liverpool, 18 members of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church and about a half dozen others banded themselves together to build the Chester church.

Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan was the first pastor. Two years later when Rev. Earl C. Lindsay was pastor, a parsonage was erected. Ground for a new parsonage costing $10,000 was broken in August, 1925, and the dwelling occupied in January, 1926. Rev. R. B. Ward was pastor when this improvement was started, while Rev. R. C. Ehrheart was the first pastor to occupy it.

The church has had 12 pastors during the 27 years of its existence, the longest pastorate being that of Rev. Charles F. Bollinger, who was stationed in Chester for five years from 1908 to 1913. Rev. Mr. Ehrheart assumed charge of the local church two years ago. Other pastors and their terms of service were:

Services on Easter Sunday will begin with a sunrise prayer service starting at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a Sunday school rally at 9:45 a. m. and the Easter sermon and reception of new members at 11 a. m. Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock with a Bible drama of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, entitled "The Triumph of Love," at the 7:30 p. m. services. The evening service will be of especial interest to children and young people.

"TO KNOW GOD MEANS HONEST SERVICE, NO REWARD THOUGHT"

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church.

By Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D.

John 14:14. Job was a man of long ago. But he was a man. And wherever you find a man, though centuries have intervened, he is the same in the essentials. Job wanted to know if he died if he should live again. He had little knowledge of the outside world. No telephone connected him up, no daily press brought him news from outside his limited area. No Twentieth Century Limited ever carried him to his destination. No airplane ever whirred over his head. But it matters not how news comes or how a man is transported, this question never changes. In the presence of immortality, modernism never makes any change. Job was one of us.

But Job made the same mistake many modern people make. He was thinking of immortality as a future state, a sort of something that would be given as a reward in the world to come. Immortality has not to do with time but rather with quality. Whether we continue to live after what we call death is wholly contingent on whether we are living now. Man holds life everlasting in his own hand. It is not a question whether we shall live but do we live? Man can rise into the heights or sink into the depths at will. He can worship the spirit or become a devotee of the flesh. He can rule the body or let the body rule him. Jesus put it right, "This is life eternal to know the only true and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." If we would live physically we must know hygiene, therapeutics, physiology, psychology, for these make for physical life. If we would live spiritually we must know the eternal Spirit of God, and Jesus Christ whom God has sent.

There are many ways in which we have come to know God, but none of these prove immortality. The spiritualist declares he can prove immortality, but this is the great reason I would never become a spiritualist. If it ever could be established, then the human race would be reduced to the low level of dancing tables and spurious mediums. As it is the human soul reaches out not after a voice once heard, but after an infinite soul. Could Bach, Bethoven, Handel been led to their oratorios by a dancing table or a mysteriously moving pencil? Did Dante and Milton write out of physical sense? What about DeVinci's work and Raphael's and Michael Angelo's? Did they put down things seen with their eyes and heard with their ears? If they had they would have produced nothing immortal.

Now that life is continuous, no one will deny the possibility, just as no one has proven it otherwise. If some point out reasons why life ends with the grave, we should show reasons why it does not. And they are legion. The universe itself indicates immortality, for it is a rational creation.

A skeptical soldier writing home from France, to his pastor, discussed this great question. He had arrived at the conclusion that the soldier boy who "had gone west" still lived on.

Rev. F. G. Fowler, D. D.

He had read Dr. Fosdick's little book, "The Assurance of Immortality," in which he meets the outstanding objections to this fundamental Christian belief. Even though many appearances are against the doctrines of immortality, we are not to base our conclusions on appearances. The heavens seem to be vaulted, but they are not. The sun appears to move but it is comparatively stationary. Melanchton said in condemnation of Copernicus, "The eyes are witnesses that the heavens revolve in the space of twenty-four hours. But certain men either from love of novelty, or to make display of ingenuity, have contended that the earth moves." So because outer evidence may seem to be against the doctrine of immortality, it is by no means conclusive.

The materialist laughs at the thought of immortality because he says it goes back to primitive superstition. But all our accomplishments go back to lowly beginnings. On the same ground the straw huts of the aboriginies would outlaw the great cathedrals, and Handel and Bach and Beethoven would be laughed off the stage because music was once coaxed from conch shell or beaten sticks. We must not compel the lark to live under the water because its forefathers were fishes.

Again the materialist says we are dependent on our physical brain to think and on our physical members to act. Memory can be destroyed by paralyzing the brain with a piece of steel. But Dr. Fosdick well points out, how about the alternative; if it is difficult to conceive of the spirit without the physical organs, it is yet more difficult to conceive of the physical organs producing the marvelous results that remain after they have rotted away. Can one conceive of a physical cell writing Hamlet or painting a Sistine Madonna, or giving us a Gettysburg address?

So the soldier goes on to build his belief on reason. For instance he cites the orderliness of nature. You can have faith in the rationality and equilibrim of nature and she always makes good. A French astronomer could account for certain derangements in the orbits of heavenly bodies, only by the presence of a body of a certain size at a certain point. Years after Neptune was discovered within one degree of this point, and of the size calculated. The universe is reliable and rational. It is reasonable to believe all this rational reliable universe would be built up to be swept away with the brush of the hand. Is it rational to believe that all the travail and sorrow of this life should end in nought? Did the many soldiers who laid down their life in the great war, make their sacrifice in vain? When one considers the duration of the world, in relation to infinity, and knows that its millions of years are as but the tick of the clock, can one believe that it is rational that great souls have come and gone, to be annihilated in the end? If there is no immortality then the story of the universe as we know it is confusion. The picture of Nero getting drunk in the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the Creator of a world without immortality.

But the soldier arrived at his belief without faith in a personal God. Such a belief is cold and lifeless. It will not bring comfort to sad hearts. But it can be fanned into life and made to throb with a personal touch. Sweep away all scientific evidence, and there is much, and let a man in the simplest faith approach God, and he will find himself imbibing the thought and habit of immortality. "This is life eternal that they should know Thee the only true and living God, and Him who Thou didst send even Jesus Christ." Through Christ we can know God, and he who knows God, begins then and there the immortal life.

The Egyptians probably broke through to God as did the Babylonians and Greeks. But theirs was a very vague conception. They thought of Him as many Gods. The old Israelite said something new when he cried: "The Lord our God is one God." They supplicated Him and made sacrifices to Him. They feared Him as a terrible God. He thundered and breathed flames of fire on them. But there was One who came from God, even Jesus Christ. T. R. Glover says, "The first thing that Jesus had to do as a teacher was to induce men to rethink God," and "we are still rethinking God on the lines of Jesus Christ." How much there is yet for us to learn.

To know God means simplicity. Any other life is artificial. It appeals only to the morbid and distorted. The high complexity of our day is working hardships on millions. If we could but simplify our relationships we would have gone far toward millenial condi-

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

VIVID MEMORIES OF SUNRISE IN HOLY CITY ON EASTER SUNDAY

Portrayal of Last Year Celebration in Jerusalem is Given by Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Last Easter I was in Jerusalem, and from a housetop on the old city wall I saw the day dawn o er the Mount of Olives. The city was full of pilgrims, from every branch of the world-wide Christian church The Holy City is a crowded, cosmopolitan center on the days of the Resurrection rendezvous! All colors and classes and creeds are represented, mellowed a' ' merged by the common quest for a new experience of the Risen Christ. To be in Jerusalem for Holy Week—what a dream come true is this for myriads of devout disciples!

In fullest fellowship with this multitude of pilgrims, we two, my wife and I, yet kept Easter apart from the throng. We had gone with a multitude to the Garden of Gethsemane on the anniversary of our Lord's agony; and we had visited the sombre-draped church of the Holy Sepulchre on Good Friday; but for the dawn of Easter we arranged to have all to ourselves the highest housetop on the northern wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate.

This spot which we had chosen overlooked the city, and the highway outside of the wall, and Gordon's Calvary and the Garden Tomb. Whichever way we turned, some spot associated with the death and burial and resurrection of Jesus fell under our eyes. South was the Temple Area and the Tower of Antonia; and running westward to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre was the Via Dolorosa. Eastward, still wrapped in the shadows of night, lay the Mount of Olives, with Bethany around its shoulder.

All of the events of the last week of our Lord's life were enacted within a small area, at the center of which we stood. We could easily imagine the huzzahs of the Triumphal Entry multitudes; the hot, hate-filled cries, "Crucify Him!;" the tumult of the Crucifixion, perhaps on that very hill to the North, a stone's throw away, called "Gordon's Calvary," where is now a Moslem cemetery; the slow, heart-broken wail of the women bearing spices to the neighboring grave; and the swift rush of Peter and John, after they had heard Mary's incredible news. As near as mortal could get to the theatre of the greatest events in the history of eternity were we two, alone on that housetop on the wall of Jerusalem, at break of day on Easter, 1926.

Watching Jerusalem Awaken.

Amidst the soft stillness of dawn, we stood watching the scene, with its overtone of gray. The roof on which we were standing was gray, the wall was gray, the dominant color of the old city was gray, and the shadowed face of the Mount of Olives was gray. Although we were on the highest spot in the city, yet we could perceive how entirely, on every side, Jerusalem is surrounded by greater heights: truly, "the mountains are round about Jerusalem."

Out of the Arabian desert the sun had pointed his spears westward, and these soon shone above the crest of Olivet, striking first the towers of Government House and of the Church of the Ascension, on the top of the hill. Swiftly the King of Day marched onward, and points of light touched the tops of the Masque of Omar, of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, and of the two German church towers in the City of Jerusalem. The face of the Mount of Olives, where stately cypresses lifted their spires like ascending flames of prayer, began to lighten. Even as we watched the day dawn, so the earliest friends of Jesus, whose heart-broken love had outrun the morning, had looked for the coming of the first Easter.

The city began to wake up Smoke ascended from a group of black tents outside of the wall. Some traffic appeared on the streets. The bells of the churches began to toll—one insistently affirming its faith in the Trinity by striking in solemn groups of three. Greek churches jangled their bells out of tune, in their customary jumble of sound. Here and there, on the tortuous streets below us, we caught glimpses of Christians hurrying to worship. This was a day of days in the city of memories.

Dawn on the Housetop

It seems almost a violation of the sanctities to relate the Easter service which we two held on that Jerusalem housetop, as dawn merged into full day. We read together all the Gospel narratives of the Resurrection of immortality. Insistently there crowded upon us the place-sense of all the events of which the Scripture tells. We could lift up our eyes and behold the very scenes of the Story. The time, the place and the incidents all illuminated the theme. Across the road a little company of American and British Christians, gathered for a sunrise service in the Garden Tomb, sang familiar Easter hymns. The great churches which abound in Jerusalem repeated the same jubilation by their bells. Eagerfaced pedestrians gave testimony to the same Resurrection Message.

Somewhere, within a few rods of where we stood and worshipped, Jesus Christ was crucified and buried and rose again from the dead. That stupendous realization tinged all of our thinking. Yet we were glad that the exact spots are not known of a certainty. For the redemption of mankind is not bound up with any one site. It is a universal truth; and its real scene is in the Father heart of God. Our spirits kept repeating, "He is not here; He is risen!" The mystery of the Resurrection is for every one as personal and near as if enacted in his own home town. One writer has pictured the truth more vividly than could we whose privilege it was to behold the setting of the Great Tranaction from a housetop on the wall of Jerusalem on Easter morning:

"Under an Eastern sky,
Amid a rabble's cry,
A Man went forth to die
For me.
"Thorn-crowned His blessed head;
Blood-stained His very tread;
Blood-stained His every tread;
For me.
"Pierced glow His hands and feet;
Three hours o'er Him beat
Fierce rays of noontide heat
For me.
"Thus wert Thou made all mine;
Lord, make me wholly Thine;
Grant grace and strength divine
To me."

Easter in the Heart.

All other meanings of Easter are gathered up into this one of its personal application. That Jesus died in order that man might live is the supreme mystery and mercy of time and eternity. Theologians used to debate and define; our modern mood in less calculating. We cannot explain the Atonement, nor measure the heinousness of sin nor the height of Divine Love. We only know that, in a way beyond our telling, God's only Son was crucified and rose again from the dead in order that an At-one-ment of man and God might be secured.

Death's terror, too, died for the Christian when Christ died. The ageless, intangible hope of immortality became a definite reality in the Resurrection of Jesus. Every life that has seen the cold, still form of a dear one go down into the grave places all hope for a reunion in the pledge given by the Risen Christ: "Because I live, ye shall live also." John W. Chadwick's poem voices this yearning for those who once lived with us on earth and are again to live with us ni heaven:

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

" 'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened every frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When ye are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

"More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
Thy cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore.
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides,
Our God, forevermore!"

Organized on June 14, 1900, with a charter membership of 46, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chester today has the names of approximately 430 persons on its rolls ministering to a growing constituency of more than 800.

The first meetings held by the denomination were conducted in the old school house near the ferry boat landing in the lower end of town. The church was organized by Rev. James Mechem, D. D., then superintendent or presiding elder of the Washington district of the Pittsburgh conference.

Twenty-one persons who were affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of East Liverpool, 18 members of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church and about a half dozen others banded themselves together to build the Chester church.

Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan was the first pastor. Two years later when Rev. Earl C. Lindsay was pastor, a parsonage was erected. Ground for a new parsonage costing $10,000 was broken in August, 1925, and the dwelling occupied in January, 1926. Rev. R. B. Ward was pastor when this improvement was started, while Rev. R. C. Ehrheart was the first pastor to occupy it.

The church has had 12 pastors during the 27 years of its existence, the longest pastorate being that of Rev. Charles F. Bollinger, who was stationed in Chester for five years from 1908 to 1913. Rev. Mr. Ehrheart assumed charge of the local church two years ago. Other pastors and their terms of service were:

Services on Easter Sunday will begin with a sunrise prayer service starting at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a Sunday school rally at 9:45 a. m. and the Easter sermon and reception of new members at 11 a. m. Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock with a Bible drama of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, entitled "The Triumph of Love," at the 7:30 p. m. services. The evening service will be of especial interest to children and young people.

"TO KNOW GOD MEANS HONEST SERVICE, NO REWARD THOUGHT"

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church.

By Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D.

John 14:14. Job was a man of long ago. But he was a man. And wherever you find a man, though centuries have intervened, he is the same in the essentials. Job wanted to know if he died if he should live again. He had little knowledge of the outside world. No telephone connected him up, no daily press brought him news from outside his limited area. No Twentieth Century Limited ever carried him to his destination. No airplane ever whirred over his head. But it matters not how news comes or how a man is transported, this question never changes. In the presence of immortality, modernism never makes any change. Job was one of us.

Rev. F. G. Fowler, D. D.

But Job made the same mistake many modern people make. He was thinking of immortality as a future state, a sort of something that would be given as a reward in the world to come. Immortality has not to do with time but rather with quality. Whether we continue to live after what we call death is wholly contingent on whether we are living now. Man holds life everlasting in his own hand. It is not a question whether we shall live but do we live? Man can rise into the heights or sink into the depths at will. He can worship the spirit or become a devotee of the flesh. He can rule the body or let the body rule him. Jesus put it right, "This is life eternal to know the only true and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." If we would live physically we must know hygiene, therapeutics, physiology, psychology, for these make for physical life. If we would live spiritually we must know the eternal Spirit of God, and Jesus Christ whom God has sent.

There are many ways in which we have come to know God, but none of these prove immortality. The spiritualist declares he can prove immortality, but this is the great reason I would never become a spiritualist. If it ever could be established, then the human race would be reduced to the low level of dancing tables and spurious mediums. As it is the human soul reaches out not after a voice once heard, but after an infinite soul. Could Bach, Bethoven, Handel been led to their oratorios by a dancing table or a mysteriously moving pencil? Did Dante and Milton write out of physical sense? What about DeVinci's work and Raphael's and Michael Angelo's? Did they put down things seen with their eyes and heard with their ears? If they had they would have produced nothing immortal.

Now that life is continuous, no one will deny the possibility, just as no one has proven it otherwise. If some point out reasons why life ends with the grave, we should show reasons why it does not. And they are legion. The universe itself indicates immortality, for it is a rational creation.

A skeptical soldier writing home from France, to his pastor, discussed this great question. He had arrived at the conclusion that the soldier boy who "had gone west" still lived on. He had read Dr. Fosdick's little book, "The Assurance of Immortality," in which he meets the outstanding objections to this fundamental Christian belief. Even though many apppearances are against the doctrines of immortality, we are not to base our conclusions on appearances. The heavens seem to be vaulted, but they are not. The sun appears to move but it is comparatively stationary. Melanchton said in condemnation of Copernicus, "The eyes are witnesses that the heavens revolve in the space of twenty-four hours. But certain men either from love of novelty, or to make display of ingenuity, have contended that the earth moves." So because outer evidence may seem to be against the doctrine of immortality, it is by no means conclusive.

The materialist laughs at the thought of immortality because he says it goes back to primitive superstition. But all our accomplishments go back to lowly beginnings. On the same ground the straw huts of the aboriginies would outlaw the great cathedrals, and Handel and Bach and Beethoven would be laughed off the stage because music was once coaxed from conch shell or beaten sticks. We must not compel the lark to live under the water because its forefathers were fishes.

Again the materialist says we are dependent on our physical brain to think and on our physical members to act. Memory can be destroyed by paralyzing the brain with a piece of steel. But Dr. Fosdick well points out, how about the alternative; if it is difficult to conceive of the spirit without the physical organs, it is yet more difficult to conceive of the physical organs producing the marvelous results that remain after they have rotted away. Can one conceive of a physical cell writing Hamlet or painting a Sistine Madonna, or giving us a Gettysburg address?

So the soldier goes on to build his belief on reason. For instance he cites the orderliness of nature. You can have faith in the rationality and equilibrim of nature and she always makes good. A French astronomer could account for certain derangements in the orbits of heavenly bodies, only by the presence of a body of a certain size at a certain point. Years after Neptune was discovered within one degree of this point, and of the size calculated. The universe is reliable and rational. It is reasonable to believe all this rational reliable universe would be built up to be swept away with the brush of the hand. Is it rational to believe that all the travail and sorrow of this life should end in nought? Did the many soldiers who laid down their life in the great war, make their sacrifice in vain? When one considers the duration of the world, in relation to infinity, and knows that its millions of years are as but the tick of the clock, can one believe that it is rational that great souls have come and gone, to be annihilated in the end? If there is no immortality then the story of the universe as we know it is confusion. The picture of Nero getting drunk in the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the Creator of a world without immortality.

But the soldier arrived at his belief without faith in a personal God. Such a belief is cold and lifeless. It will not bring comfort to sad hearts. But it can be fanned into life and made to throb with a personal touch. Sweep away all scientific evidence, and there is much, and let a man in the simplest faith approach God, and he will find himself imbibing the thought and habit of immortality. "This is life eternal that they should know Thee the only true and living God, and Him who Thou didst send even Jesus Christ." Through Christ we can know God, and he who knows God, begins then and there the immortal life.

The Egyptians probably broke through to God as did the Babylonians and Greeks. But theirs was a very vague conception. They thought of Him as many Gods. The old Israelite said something new when he cried: "The Lord our God is one God." They supplicated Him and made sacrifices to Him. They feared Him as a terrible God. He thundered and breathed flames of fire on them. But there was One who came from God, even Jesus Christ. T. R. Glover says, "The first thing that Jesus had to do as a teacher was to induce men to rethink God," and "we are still rethinking God on the lines of Jesus Christ." How much there is yet for us to learn.

To know God means simplicity. Any other life is artificial. It appeals only to the morbid and distorted. The high complexity of our day is working hardships on millions. If we could but simplify our relationships we would have gone far toward millenial condi-

HE HAS RISEN
No Greater Fact of History than that of the Resurrection of the Christ from the Tomb.
What gave to Easter its meaning?
As many forsook their Lord during His trial and death but returned at the news of His victory over the grave, so, also do many who have left the church return to the Worship of the Christ at Easter time.
Great morning service from 9:30 to 11:30. Come.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

625. Then how should Isaiah 35:1 read?

Answer: "The wilderness and the dry place (land) shall be glad for them," etc.—See also Verse 2.

626. Do we already see the work of reclaiming the desert land started?

Answer: Yes; the United States are now furnishing from dams and streams water to irrigate 3,000,000 acres of land and these formerly desert lands are now growing crops that average about double those on other lands.

627. What other blessings for the world are mentioned in this connection?

Answer: "The eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Verse 5) Read also Verses 6 and 7.

628. When are these blessings to come to the world?

Answer: At the establishment of the Lord's kingdom; for "Behold your God will come," etc. (Verse 4) "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened," etc.—Verse 5.

629. What is meant by the words: "He will come and save you?"

Answer: For mankind to be saved means for them to have life and all the blessings that come with perfect health; for that is just what was lost by father Adam's disobedience. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23) See also Genesis 2:17 and Luke 19:10.

630. Who are the 'you" (Verse 4) that are to be saved then?

Answer: Those that have had "weak hands," "Feeble knees" and "a fearful heart" (Verse 3, 4)—those humble, teachable ones who feel their lack of strength and who will then look to the Lord for help.—Isaiah 40:29-31.

631. What is meant (Verse 8) by "the wayfaring men though fools shall not err therein?"

Answer: Wayfaring here means "to go on in the way." (Young) The passage therefore means that those who continue to make progress upon "the way of holiness," "shall not err therein"—shall not go astray.

Answer: "The wilderness and the dry place (land) shall be glad for them," etc.—See also Verse 2.

626. Do we already see the work of reclaiming the desert land started?

Answer: Yes; the United States are now furnishing from dams and streams water to irrigate 3,000,000 acres of land and these formerly desert lands are now growing crops that average about double those on other lands.

627. What other blessings for the world are mentioned in this connection?

Answer: "The eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Verse 5) Read also Verses 6 and 7.

628. When are these blessings to come to the world?

Answer: At the establishment of the Lord's kingdom; for "Behold your God will come," etc. (Verse 4) "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened," etc.—Verse 5.

629. What is meant by the words: "He will come and save you?"

Answer: For mankind to be saved means for them to have life and all the blessings that come with perfect health; for that is just what was lost by father Adam's disobedience. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23) See also Genesis 2:17 and Luke 19:10.

630. Who are the 'you" (Verse 4) that are to be saved then?

Answer: Those that have had "weak hands," "Feeble knees" and "a fearful heart" (Verse 3, 4)—those humble, teachable ones who feel their lack of strength and who will then look to the Lord for help.—Isaiah 40:29-31.

631. What is meant (Verse 8) by "the wayfaring men though fools shall not err therein?"

Answer: Wayfaring here means "to go on in the way." (Young) The passage therefore means that those who continue to make progress upon "the way of holiness," "shall not err therein"—shall not go astray.

VIVID MEMORIES OF SUNRISE IN HOLY CITY ON EASTER SUNDAY

Portrayal of Last Year Celebration in Jerusalem is Given by Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Last Easter I was in Jerusalem, and from a housetop on the old city wall I saw the day dawn o er the Mount of Olives. The city was full of pilgrims, from every branch of the world-wide Christian church The Holy City is a crowded, cosmopolitan center on the days of the Resurrection rendezvous! All colors and classes and creeds are represented, mellowed ar ' merged by the common quest for a new experience of the Risen Christ. To be in Jerusalem for Holy Week—what a dream come true is this for myriads of devout disciples!

In fullest fellowship with this multitude of pilgrims, we two, my wife and I, yet kept Easter apart from the throng. We had gone with a multitude to the Garden of Gethsemane on the anniversary of our Lord's agony; and we had visited the sombre-draped church of the Holy Sepulchre on Good Friday; but for the dawn of Easter we arranged to have all to ourselves the highest housetop on the northern wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate.

This spot which we had chosen overlooked the city, and the highway outside of the wall, and Gordon's Calvary and the Garden Tomb. Whichever way we turned, some spot associated with the death and burial and resurrection of Jesus fell under our eyes. South was the Temple Area and the Tower of Antonia; and running westward to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre was the Via Dolorosa. Eastward, still wrapped in the shadows of night, lay the Mount of Olives, with Bethany around its shoulder.

All of the events of the last week of our Lord's life were enacted within a small area, at the center of which we stood. We could easily imagine the huzzahs of the Triumphal Entry multitudes; the hot, hate-filled cries, "Crucify Him!;" the tumult of the Crucifixion, perhaps on that very hill to the North, a stone's throw away, called "Gordon's Calvary," where is now a Moslem cemetery; the slow, heart-broken wail of the women bearing spices to the neighboring grave; and the swift rush of Peter and Pohn, after they had heard Mary's incredible news. As near as mortal could get to the theatre of the greatest events in the history of eternity were we two, alone on that houstop on the wall of Jerusalem, at break of day on Easter, 1926.

Watching Jerusalem Awaken.

Amidst the soft stillness of dawn, we stood watching the scene, with its overtone of gray. The roof on which we were standing was gray, the wall was gray, the dominant color of the old city was gray, and the shadowed face of the Mount of Olives was gray. Although we were on the highest spot in the city, yet we could perceive how entirely, on every side, Jerusalem is surrounded by greater heights: truly, "the mountains are round about Jerusalem."

Out of the Arabian desert the sun had pointed his spears westward, and these soon shone above the crest of Olivet, striking first the towers of Government House and of the Church of the Ascension, on the top of the hill. Swiftly the King of Day marched onward, and points of light touched the tops of the Masque of Omar, of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, and of the two German church towers in the City of Jerusalem. The face of the Mount of Olives, where stately cypresses lifted their spires like ascending flames of prayer, began to lighten. Even as we watched the day dawn, so the earliest friends of Jesus, whose heart-broken love had outrun the morning, had looked for the coming of the first Easter.

The city began to wake up Smoke ascended from a group of black tents outside of the wall. Some traffic appeared on the streets. The bells of the churches began to toll—one insistently affirming its faith in the Trinity by striking in solemn groups of three. Greek churches jangled their bells out of tune, in their customary jumble of sound. Here and there, on the tortuous streets below us, we caught glimpses of Christians hurrying to worship. This was a day of days in the city of memories.

Dawn on the Housetop

It seems almost a violation of the sanctities to relate the Easter service which we two held on that Jerusalem housetop, as dawn merged into full day. We read together all the Gospel narratives of the Resurrection of immortality. Insistently there crowded upon us the place-sense of all the events of which the Scripture tells. We could lift up our eyes and behold the very scenes of the Story. The time, the place and the incidents all illuminated the theme. Across the road a little company of American and British Christians, gathered for a sunrise service in the Garden Tomb, sang familiar Easter hymns. The great churches which abound in Jerusalem repeated the same jubilation by their bells. Eagerfaced pedestrians gave testimony to the same Resurrection Message.

Somewhere, within a few rods of where we stood and worshipped, Jesus Christ was crucified and buried and rose again from the dead. That stupendous realization tinged all of our thinking. Yet we were glad that the exact spots are not known of a certainty. For the redemption of mankind is not bound up with any one site. It is a universal truth; and its real scene is in the Father heart of God. Our spirits kept repeating, "He is not here; He is risen!" The mystery of the Resurrection is for every one as personal and near as if enacted in his own home town. One writer has pictured the truth more vividly than could we whose privilege it was to behold the setting of the Great Tranaction from a housetop on the wall of Jerusalem on Easter morning:

"Under an Eastern sky,
Amid a rabble's cry,
A Man went forth to die
For me.
"Thorn-crowned His blessed head;
Blood-stained His very tread;
Blood-stained His every tread;
For me.
"Pierced glow His hands and feet;
Three hours o'er Him beat
Fierce rays of noontide heat
For me.
"Thus wert Thou made all mine;
Lord, make me wholly Thine;
Grant grace and strength divine
To me."

Easter in the Heart.

All other meanings of Easter are gathered up into this one of its personal application. That Jesus died in order that man might live is the supreme mystery and mercy of time and eternity. Theologians used to debate and define: our modern mood in less calculating. We cannot explain the Atonement, nor measure the heinousness of sin nor the height of Divine Love. We only know that, in a way beyond our telling, God's only Son was crucified and rose again from the dead in order that an At-one-ment of man and God might be secured.

Death's terror, too, died for the Christian when Christ died. The ageless, intangible hope of immortality became a definite reality in the Resurrection of Jesus. Every life that has seen the cold, still form of a dear one go down into the grave places all hope for a reunion in the pledge given by the Risen Christ: "Because I live, ye shall live also." John W. Chadwick's poem voices this yearning for those who once lived with us on earth and are again to live with us ni heaven:

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

" 'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened every frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When ye are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

"More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
Thy cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore.
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides.
Our God, forevermore!"

Organized on June 14, 1900, with a charter membership of 46, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chester today has the names of approximately 430 persons on its rolls ministering to a growing constituency of more than 800.

The first meetings held by the denomination were conducted in the old school house near the ferry boat landing in the lower end of town. The church was organized by Rev. James Mechem, D. D., then superintendent or presiding elder of the Washington district of the Pittsburgh conference.

Twenty-one persons who were affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of East Liverpool, 18 members of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church and about a half dozen others banded themselves together to build the Chester church.

Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan was the first pastor. Two years later when Rev. Earl C. Lindsay was pastor, a parsonage was erected. Ground for a new parsonage costing $10,000 was broken in August, 1925, and the dwelling occupied in January, 1926. Rev. R. B. Ward was pastor when this improvement was started, while Rev. R. C. Ehrheart was the first pastor to occupy it.

The church has had 12 pastors during the 27 years of its existence, the longest pastorate being that of Rev. Charles F. Bollinger, who was stationed in Chester for five years from 1908 to 1913. Rev. Mr. Ehrheart assumed charge of the local church two years ago. Other pastors and their terms of service were:

Services on Easter Sunday will begin with a sunrise prayer service starting at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a Sunday school rally at 9:45 a. m. and the Easter sermon and reception of new members at 11 a. m. Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock with a Bible drama of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, entitled "The Triumph of Love," at the 7:30 p. m. services. The evening service will be of especial interest to children and young people.

"TO KNOW GOD MEANS HONEST SERVICE, NO REWARD THOUGHT"

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church.

By Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D.

John 14:14. Job was a man of long ago. But he was a man. And wherever you find a man, though centuries have intervened, he is the same in the essentials. Job wanted to know if he died if he should live again. He had little knowledge of the outside world. No telephone connected him up, no daily press brought him news from outside his limited area. No Twentieth Century Limited ever carried him to his destination. No airplane ever whirred over his head. But it matters not how news comes or how a man is transported, this question never changes. In the presence of immortality, modernism never makes any change. Job was one of us.

But Job made the same mistake many modern people make. He was thinking of immortality as a future state, a sort of something that would be given as a reward in the world to come. Immortality has not to do with time but rather with quality. Whether we continue to live after what we call death is wholly contingent on whether we are living now. Man holds life everlasting in his own hand. It is not a question whether we shall live but do we live? Man can rise into the heights or sink into the depths at will. He can worship the spirit or become a devotee of the flesh. He can rule the body or let the body rule him. Jesus put it right. "This is life eternal to know the only true and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." If we would live physically we must know hygiene, therapeutics, physiology, psychology, for these make for physical life. If we would live spiritually we must know the eternal Spirit of God, and Jesus Christ whom God has sent.

There are many ways in which we have come to know God, but none of these prove immortality. The spiritualist declares he can prove immortality, but this is the great reason I would never become a spiritualist. If it ever could be established, then the human race would be reduced to the low level of dancing tables and spurious mediums. As it is the human soul reaches out not after a voice once heard, but after an infinite soul. Could Bach, Bethoven, Handel been led to their oratorios by a dancing table or a mysteriously moving pencil? Did Dante and Milton write out of physical sense? What about DeVinci's work and Raphael's and Michael Angelo's? Did they put down things seen with their eyes and heard with their ears? If they had they would have produced nothing immortal.

Now that life is continuous, no one will deny the possibility, just as no one has proven it otherwise. If some point out reasons why life ends with the grave, we should show reasons why it does not. And they are legion. The universe itself indicates immortality, for it is a rational creation.

A skeptical soldier writing home from France, to his pastor, discussed this great question. He had arrived at the conclusion that the soldier boy who "had gone west" still lived on.

Rev. F. G. Fowler, D. D.

He had read Dr. Fosdick's little book, "The Assurance of Immortality," in which he meets the outstanding objections to this fundamental Christian belief. Even though many appearances are against the doctrines of immortality, we are not to base our conclusions on appearances. The heavens seem to be vaulted, but they are not. The sun appears to move but it is comparatively stationary. Melanchton said in condemnation of Copernicus, "The eyes are witnesses that the heavens revolve in the space of twenty-four hours. But certain men either from love of novelty, or to make display of ingenuity, have contended that the earth moves." So because outer evidence may seem to be against the doctrine of immortality, it is by no means conclusive.

The materialist laughs at the thought of immortality because he says it goes back to primitive superstition. But all our accomplishments go back to lowly beginnings. On the same ground the straw huts of the aboriginies would outlaw the great cathedrals, and Handel and Bach and Beethoven would be laughed off the stage because music was once coaxed from conch shell or beaten sticks. We must not compel the lark to live under the water because its forefathers were fishes.

Again the materialist says we are dependent on our physical brain to think and on our physical members to act. Memory can be destroyed by paralyzing the brain with a piece of steel. But Dr. Fosdick well points out, how about the alternative; if it is difficult to conceive of the spirit without the physical organs, it is yet more difficult to conceive of the physical organs producing the marvelous results that remain after they have rotted away. Can one conceive of a physical cell writing Hamlet or painting a Sistine Madonna, or giving us a Gettysburg address?

So the soldier goes on to build his belief on reason. For instance he cites the orderliness of nature. You can have faith in the rationality and equilibrim of nature and she always makes good. A French astronomer could account for certain derangements in the orbits of heavenly bodies, only by the presence of a body of a certain size at a certain point. Years after Neptune was discovered within one degree of this point, and of the size calculated. The universe is reliable and rational. It is reasonable to believe all this rational reliable universe would be built up to be swept away with the brush of the hand. Is it rational to believe that all the travail and sorrow of this life should end in nought? Did the many soldiers who laid down their life in the great war, make their sacrifice in vain? When one considers the duration of the world, in relation to infinity, and knows that its millions of years are as but the tick of the clock, can one believe that it is rational that great souls have come and gone, to be annihilated in the end? If there is no immortality then the story of the universe as we know it is confusion. The picture of Nero getting drunk in the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the Creator of a world without immortality.

But the soldier arrived at his belief without faith in a personal God. Such a belief is cold and lifeless. It will not bring comfort to sad hearts. But it con be fanned into life and made to throb with a personal touch. Sweep away all scientific evidence, and there is much, and let a man in the simplest faith approach God, and he will find himself imbibing the thought and habit of immortality. "This is life eternal that they should know Thee the only true and living God, and Him who Thou didst send even Jesus Christ." Through Christ we can know God, and he who knows God, begins then and there the immortal life.

The Egyptians probably broke through to God as did the Babylonians and Greeks. But theirs was a very vague conception. They thought of Him as many Gods. The old Israelite said something new when he cried: "The Lord our God is one God." They supplicated Him and made sacrifices to Him. They feared Him as a terrible God. He thundered and breathed flames of fire on them. But there was One who came from God, even Jesus Christ. T. R. Glover says, "The first thing that Jesus had to do as a teacher was to induce men to rethink God," and "we are still rethinking God on the lines of Jesus Christ." How much there is yet for us to learn.

To know God means simplicity. Any other life is artificial. It appeals only to the morbid and distorted. The high complexity of our day is working hardships on millions. If we could but simplify our relationships we would have gone far toward millenial condi-

The city began to wake up Smoke ascended from a group of black tents outside of the wall. Some traffic appeared on the streets. The bells of the churches began to toll—one insistently affirming its faith in the Trinity by striking in solemn groups of three. Greek churches jangled their bells out of tune, in their customary jumble of sound. Here and there, on the tortuous streets below us, we caught glimpses of Christians hurrying to worship. This was a day of days in the city of memories.

Dawn on the Housetop

It seems almost a violation of the sanctities to relate the Easter service which we two held on that Jerusalem housetop, as dawn merged into full day. We read together all the Gospel narratives of the Resurrection of immortality. Insistently there crowded upon us the place-sense of all the events of which the Scripture tells. We could lift up our eyes and behold the very scenes of the Story. The time, the place and the incidents all illuminated the theme. Across the road a little company of American and British Christians, gathered for a sunrise service in the Garden Tomb, sang familiar Easter hymns. The great churches which abound in Jerusalem repeated the same jubilation by their bells. Eagerfaced pedestrians gave testimony to the same Resurrection Message.

Somewhere, within a few rods of where we stood and worshipped, Jesus Christ was crucified and buried and rose again from the dead. That stupendous realization tinged all of our thinking. Yet we were glad that the exact spots are not known of a certainty. For the redemption of mankind is not bound up with any one site. It is a universal truth; and its real scene is in the Father heart of God. Our spirits kept repeating, "He is not here; He is risen!" The mystery of the Resurrection is for every one as personal and near as if enacted in his own home town. One writer has pictured the truth more vividly than could we whose privilege it was to behold the setting of the Great Tranaction from a housetop on the wall of Jerusalem on Easter morning:

"Under an Eastern sky,
Amid a rabble's cry,
A Man went forth to die
For me.
"Thorn-crowned His blessed head;
Blood-stained His very tread;
Blood-stained His every tread;
For me.
"Pierced glow His hands and feet;
Three hours o'er Him beat
Fierce rays of noontide heat
For me.
"Thus wert Thou made all mine;
Lord, make me wholly Thine;
Grant grace and strength divine
To me."

Easter in the Heart.

All other meanings of Easter are gathered up into this one of its personal application. That Jesus died in order that man might live is the supreme mystery and mercy of time and eternity. Theologians used to debate and define: our modern mood in less calculating. We cannot explain the Atonement, nor measure the heinousness of sin nor the height of Divine Love. We only know that, in a way beyond our telling, God's only Son was crucified and rose again from the dead in order that an At-one-ment of man and God might be secured.

Death's terror, too, died for the Christian when Christ died. The ageless, intangible hope of immortality became a definite reality in the Resurrection of Jesus. Every life that has seen the cold, still form of a dear one go down into the grave places all hope for a reunion in the pledge given by the Risen Christ: "Because I live, ye shall live also." John W. Chadwick's poem voices this yearning for those who once lived with us on earth and are again to live with us ni heaven:

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

" 'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened every frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When ye are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

"More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
Thy cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore.
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides.
Our God, forevermore!"

Organized on June 14, 1900, with a charter membership of 46, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chester today has the names of approximately 430 persons on its rolls ministering to a growing constituency of more than 800.

The first meetings held by the denomination were conducted in the old school house near the ferry boat landing in the lower end of town. The church was organized by Rev. James Mechem, D. D., then superintendent or presiding elder of the Washington district of the Pittsburgh conference.

Twenty-one persons who were affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of East Liverpool, 18 members of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church and about a half dozen others banded themselves together to build the Chester church.

Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan was the first pastor. Two years later when Rev. Earl C. Lindsay was pastor, a parsonage was erected. Ground for a new parsonage costing $10,000 was broken in August, 1925, and the dwelling occupied in January, 1926. Rev. R. B. Ward was pastor when this improvement was started, while Rev. R. C. Ehrheart was the first pastor to occupy it.

The church has had 12 pastors during the 27 years of its existence, the longest pastorate being that of Rev. Charles F. Bollinger, who was stationed in Chester for five years from 1908 to 1913. Rev. Mr. Ehrheart assumed charge of the local church two years ago. Other pastors and their terms of service were:

Services on Easter Sunday will begin with a sunrise prayer service starting at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a Sunday school rally at 9:45 a. m. and the Easter sermon and reception of new members at 11 a. m. Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock with a Bible drama of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, entitled "The Triumph of Love," at the 7:30 p. m. services. The evening service will be of especial interest to children and young people.

"TO KNOW GOD MEANS HONEST SERVICE, NO REWARD THOUGHT"

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church.

By Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D.

John 14:14. Job was a man of long ago. But he was a man. And wherever you find a man, though centuries have intervened, he is the same in the essentials. Job wanted to know if he died if he should live again. He had little knowledge of the outside world. No telephone connected him up, no daily press brought him news from outside his limited area. No Twentieth Century Limited ever carried him to his destination. No airplane ever whirred over his head. But it matters not how news comes or how a man is transported, this question never changes. In the presence of immortality, modernism never makes any change. Job was one of us.

But Job made the same mistake many modern people make. He was thinking of immortality as a future state, a sort of something that would be given as a reward in the world to come. Immortality has not to do with time but rather with quality. Whether we continue to live after what we call death is wholly contingent on whether we are living now. Man holds life everlasting in his own hand. It is not a question whether we shall live but do we live? Man can rise into the heights or sink into the depths at will. He can worship the spirit or become a devotee of the flesh. He can rule the body or let the body rule him. Jesus put it right, "This is life eternal to know the only true and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." If we would live physically we must know hygiene, therapeutics, physiology, psychology, for these make for physical life. If we would live spiritually we must know the eternal Spirit of God, and Jesus Christ whom God has sent.

There are many ways in which we have come to know God, but none of these prove immortality. The spiritualist declares he can prove immortality, but this is the great reason I would never become a spiritualist. If it ever could be established, then the human race would be reduced to the low level of dancing tables and spurious mediums. As it is the human soul reaches out not after a voice once heard, but after an infinite soul. Could Bach, Bethoven, Handel been led to their oratorios by a dancing table or a mysteriously moving pencil? Did Dante and Milton write out of physical sense? What about DeVinci's work and Raphael's and Michael Angelo's? Did they put down things seen with their eyes and heard with their ears? If they had they would have produced nothing immortal.

Now that life is continuous, no one will deny the possibility, just as no one has proven it otherwise. If some point out reasons why life ends with the grave, we should show reasons why it does not. And they are legion. The universe itself indicates immortality, for it is a rational creation.

A skeptical soldier writing home from France, to his pastor, discussed this great question. He had arrived at the conclusion that the soldier boy who "had gone west" still lived on.

Rev. F. G. Fowler, D. D.

He had read Dr. Fosdick's little book, "The Assurance of Immortality," in which he meets the outstanding objections to this fundamental Christian belief. Even though many apppearances are against the doctrines of immortality, we are not to base our conclusions on appearances. The heavens seem to be vaulted, but they are not. The sun appears to move but it is comparatively stationary. Melanchton said in condemnation of Copernicus, "The eyes are witnesses that the heavens revolve in the space of twenty-four hours. But certain men either from love of novelty, or to make display of ingenuity, have contended that the earth moves." So because outer evidence may seem to be against the doctrine of immortality, it is by no means conclusive.

The materialist laughs at the thought of immortality because he says it goes back to primitive superstition. But all our accomplishments go back to lowly beginnings. On the same ground the straw huts of the aboriginies would outlaw the great cathedrals, and Handel and Bach and Beethoven would be laughed off the stage because music was once coaxed from conch shell or beaten sticks. We must not compel the lark to live under the water because its forefathers were fishes.

Again the materialist says we are dependent on our physical brain to think and on our physical members to act. Memory can be destroyed by paralyzing the brain with a piece of steel. But Dr. Fosdick well points out, how about the alternative; if it is difficult to conceive of the spirit without the physical organs, it is yet more difficult to conceive of the physical organs producing the marvelous results that remain after they have rotted away. Can one conceive of a physical cell writing Hamlet or painting a Sistine Madonna, or giving us a Gettysburg address?

So the soldier goes on to build his belief on reason. For instance he cites the orderliness of nature. You can have faith in the rationality and equilibrim of nature and she always makes good. A French astronomer could account for certain derangements in the orbits of heavenly bodies, only by the presence of a body of a certain size at a certain point. Years after Neptune was discovered within one degree of this point, and of the size calculated. The universe is reliable and rational. It is reasonable to believe all this rational reliable universe would be built up to be swept away with the brush of the hand. Is it rational to believe that all the travail and sorrow of this life should end in nought? Did the many soldiers who laid down their life in the great war, make their sacrifice in vain? When one considers the duration of the world, in relation to infinity, and knows that its millions of years are as but the tick of the clock, can one believe that it is rational that great souls have come and gone, to be annihilated in the end? If there is no immortality then the story of the universe as we know it is confusion. The picture of Nero getting drunk in the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the Creator of a world without immortality.

But the soldier arrived at his belief without faith in a personal God. Such a belief is cold and lifeless. It will not bring comfort to sad hearts. But it con be fanned into life and made to throb with a personal touch. Sweep away all scientific evidence, and there is much, and let a man in the simplest faith approach God, and he will find himself imbibing the thought and habit of immortality. "This is life eternal that they should know Thee the only true and living God, and Him who Thou didst send even Jesus Christ." Through Christ we can know God, and he who knows God, begins then and there the immortal life.

The Egyptians probably broke through to God as did the Babylonians and Greeks. But theirs was a very vague conception. They thought of Him as many Gods. The old Israelite said something new when he cried: "The Lord our God is one God." They supplicated Him and made sacrifices to Him. They feared Him as a terrible God. He thundered and breathed flames of fire on them. But there was One who came from God, even Jesus Christ. T. R. Glover says, "The first thing that Jesus had to do as a teacher was to induce men to rethink God," and "we are still rethinking God on the lines of Jesus Christ." How much there is yet for us to learn.

To know God means simplicity. Any other life is artificial. It appeals only to the morbid and distorted. The high complexity of our day is working hardships on millions. If we could but simplify our relationships we would have gone far toward millenial condi-

Two Great Easter Services, 9:45 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
In the Morning a great program of music by the Sunday School, combined with a baptismal service and reception of new members.
At Night a big crowd to hear the "EASTER MESSAGE"—a great cantata by a choir of twenty-six voices. Solos, duets, quartettes and chorus. A pretentious undertaking.
Don't Miss These Two Services.

HE HAS RISEN
No Greater Fact of History than that of the Resurrection of the Christ from the Tomb.
What gave to Easter its meaning?
As many forsook their Lord during His trial and death but returned at the news of His victory over the grave, so, also do many who have left the church return to the Worship of the Christ at Easter time.
Great morning service from 9:30 to 11:30. Come.
At 7:30 P. M. The Choir, directed by Kurt Bergner, will give the Cantata "THE EASTER VICTORY." This is one of the best we have ever given. If you love good music, the song of victory placed in the soul by the triumph of the World's Savior over the tomb, hear this program of music.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

625. Then how should Isaiah 35:1 read?

Answer: "The wilderness and the dry place (land) shall be glad for them," etc.—See also Verse 2.

626. Do we already see the work of reclaiming the desert land started?

Answer: Yes; the United States are now furnishing from dams and streams water to irrigate 3,000,000 acres of land and these formerly desert lands are now growing crops that average about double those on other lands.

627. What other blessings for the world are mentioned in this connection?

Answer: "The eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Verse 5) Read also Verses 6 and 7.

628. When are these blessings to come to the world?

Answer: At the establishment of the Lord's kingdom; for "Behold your God will come," etc. (Verse 4) "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened," etc.—Verse 5.

629. What is meant by the words: "He will come and save you?'

Answer: For mankind to be saved means for them to have life and all the blessings that come with perfect health; for that is just what was lost by father Adam's disobedience. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23) See also Genesis 2:17 and Luke 19:10.

630. Who are the 'you" (Verse 4) that are to be saved then?

Answer: Those that have had "weak hands," "Feeble knees" and "a fearful heart" (Verse 3, 4)—those humble, teachable ones who feel their lack of strength and who will then look to the Lord for help.—Isaiah 40:29-31.

631. What is meant (Verse 8) by "the wayfaring men though fools shall not err therein?"

Answer: Wayfaring here means "to go on in the way." (Young) The passage therefore means that those who continue to make progress upon "the way of holiness," "shall not err therein"—shall not go astray.

"FIRE BRIGADE" AT AMERICAN

Charles Ray and May McAvoy in Great Picture.

Not since Charles Ray played in "The Girl I Loved" has he had a part that approached in dramatic sincerity that of Terry O'Neill in "The Fire Brigade," the epic love story coming next week to the American theatre. Terry O'Neill is a part that would delight the heart of any actor, and one that has afforded Ray opportunities he has never before been granted. This role, which inclines to the highly dramatic as well as to the romantic, is balanced by a wealth of typical Charles Ray comedy.

May McAvoy has the feminine lead opposite Ray in this big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature spectacle, and plays the part brilliantly. The cast includes Holmes Herbert, Tom O'Brien, Eugenie Besserer, Warner P. Richmond, Bert Woodruff and others.

"FIRE BRIGADE" AT AMERICAN

Charles Ray and May McAvoy in Great Picture.

Not since Charles Ray played in "The Girl I Loved" has he had a part that approached in dramatic sincerity that of Terry O'Neill in "The Fire Brigade," the epic love story coming next week to the American theatre. Terry O'Neill is a part that would delight the heart of any actor, and one that has afforded Ray opportunities he has never before been granted. This role, which inclines to the highly dramatic as well as to the romantic, is balanced by a wealth of typical Charles Ray comedy.

May McAvoy has the feminine lead opposite Ray in this big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature spectacle, and plays the part brilliantly. The cast includes Holmes Herbert, Tom O'Brien, Eugenie Besserer, Warner P. Richmond, Bert Woodruff and others.

Sermon by Dr. Fowler

tions. A large part of the complexity of our day is due to selfishness, which is foreign to the idea of God in Christ. The livest man in the world today is the man who lived the most unselfish life, though he may be dead.

To know God is to develop beauty by conforming to his laws of life. The styles to which the human race is a slave, are but creations of commercial mongers who would live off the credulity of society. Consider the lily. Solomon who had wealth and women at his feet could not compare to her. Live simply and obey God and you will be beautiful, and beauty is one of the ear marks of immortality. One can have a roughly hewn face and be as beautiful as the morning light. There was no beauty about Jesus that they should desire Him, yet He is the Lily of the Valley, the Bright and Morning Star the Fairest of ten thousand to my soul.

To know God means to bear true and honest service without thought of reward. To do that mean eternal life. To refuse to do that means death. Eternal life does not lie in the future, but is in the present. It is not to be sensed in quantity but in quality. It is today within the grasp of all who will appropriate it. He who has God in his life cannot be held in the grasp of death, just as Jesus could not be held in its grasp. "This is life eternal, that they should know Thee the only and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ."

A real spirit should never court neglect nor dread to bear it.—Byron.

Drudgery, calamity, exasperation, want, are instructors in eloquence and wisdom.—Emerson.

'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours,
And ask them what report they bore to heaven.—Edward Young.

The brave man carves out his fortune, and every man is the son of his own works.—Cervantes.

As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.—Psalm 103:12.

For when the Great Scorer comes
To write against your name,
He writes not that you won or lost
But how you played the game.

EASTER

I GOT me flowers to straw thy way.
I got me boughs off many a tree,
But thou wast up by break of day,
And brought'st thy sweets along with thee.

The Sunne arising in the East,
Though he give light, and th' East perfume
If they should offer to contest
With thy arising, they presume.

Can there be any day but this,
Though many sunnes to shine endeavour?
We count three hundred, but we misse;
There is but one, and that one ever.

—George Herbert.

Famous Song Maker Passes.

With the death in London recently of Miss Victoria Monks, who made "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?" and other songs famous, vaudeville lost one of the old-fashioned type of robust comediennes. Twenty years ago Miss Monks at 23 was a star of the English music halls. She first appeared on the stage at 11, and gradually made her way until she introduced the Bill Bailey song. Then her salary jumped from $50 to $500 a week and later went higher. While audiences applauded her gaiety on the stage, in private life she always was in trouble. She was tried and acquitted of thefts, named as corespondent, sued for wages, bankrupt and divorced. Fearing that her Pekinese, "Lulu," would pine for her, she gave instructions that following her death the aged animal should be destroyed.

REV. G. H. ROWE TO SPEAK HERE

Humorist Will Lecture in Tabernacle Church of Christ.

Rev. G. H. Rowe.

Rev. G. Hallwick Rowe, lecturer, humorist and traveler, will deliver an address at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Tabernacle Church of Christ, Pennsylvania avenue.

In addition, a special musical program will be given by members of the church.

Rev. Mr. Rowe, who has spent most of his life traveling, is said to be a gifted speaker.

"CHINA" TOPIC OF SERMON HERE

Rev. A. H. O'Brien Speaks at Closing Holy Week Services.

With what was held to be the largest week-night religious service held here in years, union Holy week series of meetings was brought to an end by an appealing discourse on "The Cross of Christ" and "China" by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church, at the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal auditorium last evening.

In the absence of Dr. F. A. Dean, of the Second Presbyterian church, who preached a pre-Communion sermon at the First United Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. George Westlake, presided. "This concludes an outstanding series of Holy week meetings," he said in his introduction of Rev. Mr. O'Brien. "Had they been begun sooner I am convinced they would have culminated in a genuine revival. The people, regularly attending, have become deeply concerned. They have been mightily benefited. These services have been a spiritual departure."

Mrs. Robert Wirth directed the music with Miss Berenaddie Arnold at the organ. Mesdames H. Dan Smith and Meiser of the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal church sang "The Ivory Palace." Miss Arnold was the accompanist.

The invocation was made by James Miles.

"It is not a system of Christianity but the Christ himself that China and the remainder of the world needs," asserted Rev. Mr. O'Brien, a former Chinese missionary himself. "The Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodist and all other denominations give color, perhaps unconsciously to Christianity. The foreigners are not interested in our religious divisions. What they demand is the fact of Christ himself."

Rev. Mr. O'Brien deprecated what he averred was big contributions of cigarettes even to the farthest recesses of China to engender a taste for tobacco and make for resulting trade. "Then we are asked to have Uncle Sam protect such a business with war vessels," he commented. "While in China I saw but one Chinaman drunk," he said. "But I did see many Americans under the influence of liquor."

That there are now 175 world power battleships in Chinese ports was averred by Rev. Mr. O'Brien, who is keeping in close touch with the present chaotic situation there. He told how Gen. Chiang, the National leader had accepted the principles of Christianity.

"America will not fight China," he affirmed. "Neither will England. But Russia, jealous of the latter's world-wide activities, particularly in India, may combat the country with the end of lessening the power of the Union Jack in the Orient.

"It is not battleships or force, but the Christ that the yellow men need. They take their conception of Christianity from the lives of the white men among them. Its standard is not enhanced by bullets, bayonets and sky-whirling military aeroplanes."

Woman Seeks Divorce.

In a divorce petition filed in common pleas court by Attorney Frank E. Grosshans of East Liverpool in behalf of Genevieve Taylor against her husband, Wilbert Taylor, residing in East End, the charge of gross neglect of duty is made.

The couple were married at Lisbon, October 20, 1924. Mrs. Taylor declares that her husband has failed to provide for her.

Jackson Funeral.

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Jackson, 87 years old, who died in the Rochester General hospital, were held this afternoon in the home of Mrs. Ellen Jackson, 130 Etruria street, in charge of Rev. J. Lloyd McQueen, pastor of the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church. Burial was made in Spring Grove cemetery.

Special Musical Programs.

Musical programs will be featured tomorrow in the churches of this section of the city. Sermons appropriate to Easter will be given by the respective pastors.

Sermon by Dr. Fowler

tions. A large part of the complexity of our day is due to selfishness, which is foreign to the idea of God in Christ. The livest man in the world today is the man who lived the most unselfish life, though he may be dead.

To know God is to develop beauty by conforming to his laws of life. The styles to which the human race is a slave, are but creations of commercial mongers who would live off the credulity of society. Consider the lily. Solomon who had wealth and women at his feet could not compare to her. Live simply and obey God and you will be beautiful, and beauty is one of the ear marks of immortality. One can have a roughly hewn face and be as beautiful as the morning light. There was no beauty about Jesus that they should desire Him, yet He is the Lily of the Valley, the Bright and Morning Star the Fairest of ten thousand to my soul.

To know God means to bear true and honest service without thought of reward. To do that mean eternal life. To refuse to do that means death. Eternal life does not lie in the future but is in the present. It is not to be sensed in quantity but in quality, it is today within the grasp of all who will appropriate it. He who has God in his life cannot be held in the grasp of death, just as Jesus could not be held in its grasp. "This is life eternal, that they should know Thee the only and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ."

A real spirit should never court neglect nor dread to bear it.—Byron.

Drudgery, calamity, exasperation, want, are instructors in eloquence and wisdom.—Emerson.

'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours,
And ask them what report they bore to heaven.—Edward Young.

The brave man carves out his fortune, and every man is the son of his own works.—Cervantes.

As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.—Psalm 103:12.

For when the Great Scorer comes
To write against your name,
He writes not that you won or lost
But how you played the game.

EASTER

I GOT me flowers to straw thy way,
I got me boughs off many a tree,
But thou wast up by break of day,
And brought'st thy sweets along with thee.

The Sunne arising in the East,
Though he give light, and th' East perfume
If they should offer to contest
With thy arising, they presume.

Can there be any day but this,
Though many sunnes to shine endeavour?
We count three hundred, but we misse;
There is but one, and that one ever.

—George Herbert.

Famous Song Maker Passes.

With the death in London recently of Miss Victoria Monks, who made "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?" and other songs famous, vaudeville lost one of the old-fashioned type of robust comediennes. Twenty years ago Miss Monks at 23 was a star of the English music halls. She first appeared on the stage at 11, and gradually made her way until she introduced the Bill Bailey song. Then her salary jumped from $50 to $500 a week and later went higher. While audiences applauded her gaiety on the stage, in private life she always was in trouble. She was tried and acquitted of thefts, named as co-respondent, sued for wages, bankrupt and divorced. Fearing that her Pekinese, "Lulu," would pine for her, she gave instructions that following her death the aged animal should be destroyed.

REV. G. H. ROWE TO SPEAK HERE

Humorist Will Lecture in Tabernacle Church of Christ.

Rev. G. H. Rowe.

Rev. G. Hallwick Rowe, lecturer, humorist and traveler, will deliver an address at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Tabernacle Church of Christ, Pennsylvania avenue.

In addition, a special musical program will be given by members of the church.

Rev. Mr. Rowe, who has spent most of his life traveling, is said to be a gifted speaker.

"CHINA" TOPIC OF SERMON HERE

Rev. A. H. O'Brien Speaks at Closing Holy Week Services.

With what was held to be the largest week-night religious service held here in years, union Holy week series of meetings was brought to an end by an appealing discourse on "The Cross of Christ" and "China" by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church, at the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal auditorium last evening.

In the absence of Dr. F. A. Dean, of the Second Presbyterian church, who preached a pre-Communion sermon at the First United Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. George Westlake, presided. "This concludes an outstanding series of Holy week meetings," he said in his introduction of Rev. Mr. O'Brien. "Had they been begun sooner I am convinced they would have culminated in a genuine revival. The people, regularly attending, have become deeply concerned. They have been mightily benefited. These services have been a spiritual departure."

Mrs. Robert Wirth directed the music with Miss Berenaddie Arnold at the organ. Mesdames H. Dan Smith and Meiser of the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal church sang "The Ivory Palace." Miss Arnold was the accompanist.

The invocation was made by James Miles.

"It is not a system of Christianity but the Christ himself that China and the remainder of the world needs," asserted Rev. Mr. O'Brien, a former Chinese missionary himself. "The Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodist and all other denominations give color, perhaps unconsciously to Christianity. The foreigners are not interested in our religious divisions. What they demand is the fact of Christ himself."

Rev. Mr. O'Brien deprecated what he averred was big contributions of cigarettes even to the farthest recesses of China to engender a taste for tobacco and make for resulting trade. "Then we are asked to have Uncle Sam protect such a business with war vessels," he commented. "While in China I saw but one Chinaman drunk," he said. "But I did see many Americans under the influence of liquor."

That there are now 175 world power battleships in Chinese ports was averred by Rev. Mr. O'Brien, who is keeping in close touch with the present chaotic situation there. He told how Gen. Chiang, the National leader had accepted the principles of Christianity.

"America will not fight China," he affirmed. "Neither will England. But Russia, jealous of the latter's world-wide activities, particularly in India, may combat the country with the end of lessening the power of the Union Jack in the Orient.

"It is not battleships or force, but the Christ that the yellow men need. They take their conception of Christianity from the lives of the white men among them. Its standard is not enhanced by bullets, bayonets and sky-whirling military aeroplanes."

Connie Mack's "Heirlooms" On Pan After Opening Contests

Cobb, Collins Fail In Pinches As A's Fall Before Yanks

Cobb, Say Critics, Looks Bad on Fly Balls in Right While Collins Didn't Hit During the Series; Season Still Young, Says Mack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Connie Mack's collection of human heirlooms were on their way out of New York today, leaving in their wake three ball games and, apparently, a highly unfavorable impression upon the local intelligencia. The latter, after a reasonable interval of tolerance during which they viewed with some restraint the combined efforts of Eddie Collins to get a base hit and Ty Cobb to catch a fly ball, today felt the barrier was raised and they had at Connie's speculative investments with great enthusiasm.

"Cobb looks like one of the worst outfielders in the major leagues" wrote one man, after the four game series with the Yankees ended yesterday.

Speaking of the 9 to 9 tie of Thursday another declared.

"If the Mackmen had had a real right fielder in the first inning, Lazzeri would have got no triple. Cobb's creaky joints stretched a single into a three bagger and the Yanks collected a couple of counters. Ty's move or Tony's blow gave him away. There is a cavern in right when the Philadelphians are in the field."

Cobb "Takes" Orders.

Frankly, Cobb so far has looked exactly what he happens to be: An old timer who might get by on what he knows. As to that it may yet develop that he knows too much for the good of the ball club.

I saw Connie come out in front of the dugout yesterday to wave Cobb over toward the foul line with Gehrig at the plate. Ty moved with apparent good grace, but the next moment he returned to his former position.

This time Connie let the matter go by default. Cobb's hitting during the series was good; yet two of them were scratches and on the whole he seemed to lack something of his old punch. However, Cobb probably will be a hitter at fifty.

Now for Eddie Collins.

"Collins didn't get a hit during the series," declared one of our most eminent minds today. "And, at that, he figures to hit better than he fields."

Having said which, he then launched into a learned dissertation, purporting to show that Collins' advancing years had made him too stiff in the joints to get down rapidly on ground balls and that no longer could he wheel rapidly on relay throws when trying for doble plays.

First Class Club on Bench.

True enough, Collins uncovered an almost alarming disposition to kick the ball away during the series just concluded, particularly on fast-skipping ground balls, and his critic at least has circumstantial evidence in his favor when he charges Eddie with the great sin of growing old.

What the boys in the rack room seem to be concerned about is how long Connie plans to string along with his antiques. They candidly declared today that the Philadelphia Athletics, as at present constituted, are going nowhere with considerable haste and, in a spirit of helpfulness so characteristic of the enraged journalist at large, they intimate that they wish to remind Connie that he has a first class ball club sitting placidly on the bench.

Of course, boys will be boys and the natural rejoinder is that you can't convict a ball club on four games. But, as to that, men of the age of Cobb and Collins figure to become less effective as the season wears on into the double headers and their legs wear out into stumps.

Connie has $60,000 tied up in Cobb and $20,000 in Collins and, if the old club continues to cull the cloak and suit trade at its present rate, the "nut" on this pair will be written off in a few weeks. But I don't think Mack is concerned about that, although it may as well be admitted that no dollar ever will be able to sue him for alienated affections. Still, he paid $30,000 for Dudley Branon and, after the second game, hesitated less than 9 3-5 seconds, all three watches agreeing, in removing Dudley to a zone of safety in favor of Jim Poole. He also paid critical money for Zach Wheat but when he found that the veteran couldn't throw hard enough to break a window, he also took old Zach right out of there.

Season Young Yet, Says Connie.

"Some of them don't look so good," he said, sadly. "However, we are only getting started."

That point, of course, is well taken, with the season still having 150 games to run. You couldn't say, for example, that Connie's pitching is a lot of eye wash; yet no pitcher finished a game in the local series and the average used each game was three.

Being notoriously charitable in my views, I will merely venture that perhaps the whole ball club is off to one of those standing starts. However, as to Cobb and Collins, I must refuse to alter an opinion I contracted carelessly in the south; that neither of them will be able to finish the season.

College Socker

Benefit Cage Game Boosts Fund $104

The Frank Neilson fund, for whom the Elks and the Midland Collegians played in a benefit cage tilt last night at the high school, was boosted to the extent of $104, officials of the Elks' club announced today.

Everything in connection with the game was done without charge, the Collegians coming down for the game for only actual traveling expenses.

Will Blake, member of the committee in charge of the fund, today publicly expressed his thanks to the two teams, the referee and all others who aided in the benefit in any extent.

SHAFFER, MORRIS BOW TO CUE STAR

William F. Greenleaf, middle west pocket billiard champion, won both his match games at the American Billiard parlors yesterday.

In the afternoon he defeated Shaffer, 75 to 52, and at his exhibition last night he won from Morris, the American tourney champion, 75 to 23.

Greenleaf's high runs were 25, 28 and 29 for the day.

Large crowds attended both performances and were well pleased, especially with the fancy shots. Greenleaf made 15 balls in one shot in the afternoon exhibition.

Step-ins for Men? I Should Say Not, Growls Vet Coach

CHICAGO, April 16.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, whom veterans recall as a football player of note, stepped into the break and kicked a verbal placement goal today at the University of Chicago for the first score against "Step-ins," the new fangled piece of underwear for men.

The "grand old man" of football with other directors of athletics at the university, has been disturbed by the report that men are wearing "step-ins" where B. V. D.'s ought to be.

"If any male person shows up around here wearing the darling slips," he said, pointing to the football field, "we'll use him for a pigskin and boot him all over the place."

JINX TRAILS BILL SHERDEL

Holds Cubs to Two Hits But Loses Game, 1 to 0.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Lady Luck, that fickle goddess, continues to frown upon Bill Sherdel, southpaw of the champion St. Louis Cardinals. Wee Willie, whose tough luck was one of the features of the world's series last fall, held the Cubs to two hits yesterday—and lost.

Sherdel lost because one of the two hits happened to be a home run by Hack Wilson. The score was 1 to 0, three double plays by the Cubs enabling Percy Jones to hold the Cards scoreless.

Pirates walloped the Reds, 10 to 6, and still lead the league.

The Bucs nicked Rixey and Neluf for fourteen hits, while Mahaffey and Morrison managed to hold the Reds in check.

With "No Hit" Charley Robertson on the mound, the sprightly Braves made it three straight from Brooklyn by a score of 3 to 1. The Robins, still on a pop-fly diet, made only five hits and two Boston runs came in when Max Carey played ping-pong with Moore's single.

Philadelphia, supposedly restored to lethargy by the departure of the fiery Arthur Fletcher, was the scene of a near-riot as the Giants beat the Phillies, 6 to 2. When Eddie Roush delivered his first hit of the season, a grounder along the third base line, the fans thought it was a foul and said so with cushions, hot dogs and assorted debris. Manager Stuffy McInnis further distinguished himself by being ejected from the pastime for the second time during the series.

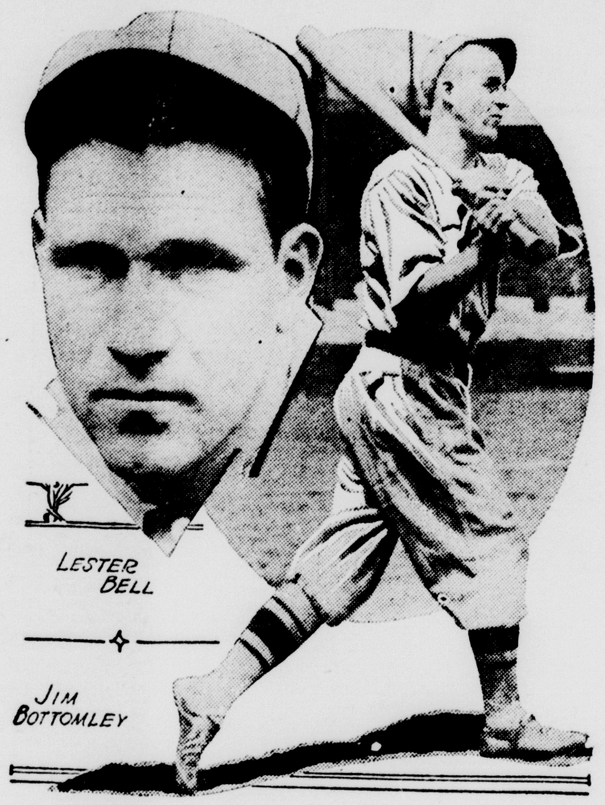

The American league got under way officially when Babe Ruth clouted his first homer of the season. This blow, combined with grade A pitching by Herb Pennock, enabled the Yankees to trim the Athletics, 6 to 3, for their third straight victory. Incidentally the result eased the throbbing pain in Col. Ruppert's pocketbook, caused by meeting the salary demands of Ruth and Pennock during the winter.

The Washington Senators kept pace with the Yanks by swamping the Red Sox, 7 to 1, sweeping the series. General Crowder held the Sox to five hits and Speaker and Goslin led the attack on the back bay hurlers.

Joe Shaute of Cleveland limited the White Sox to one hit in six innings, but the Sox bunched their blows thereafter and won, 6 to 1, evening the series. A homer by Bernie Neis prevented Ted Lyons from registering a shutout.

The Tigers and Browns finally got started, but rain stopped the contest at the end of the fifth inning with the score tied, 2 to 2. Sisler knocked in both of the Browns' tallies.

THE "PUSH 'EM IN" PAIR

Jim Bottomley, first baseman, and Lester Bell, infielder, are being counted on to repeat their brilliant performances of last year for the world's champion Cardinals. Only three National League players drove in 100 runs or more last season. Two of them were Bottomley and Bell, the former shoving in 120 and the latter 100.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

IN addition to the fact that he was troubled with nerves" at times last season young Mark Koenig, Yankee shortstop, failed to hit at a clip desired by the boss. For these reasons it was rumored at various times during the off months that Miller Huggins would shift his lineup and that Koenig might start the season on the bench.

But he didn't.

He started it with a bang—two bangs out of three times up.

The next game he added five bangs in five trips to the plate.

And at the writing he was still going strong.

• • •

Of course the pitching isn't of mid-season caliber as yet and it takes more than two or three good days to carry a season average, but right now Mr. Koenig seems to have found himself, at least at the plate. And if he wallops the pill around .300 with the other ball murderers of the team, it will take two or three ocean-going tugs to pull him out of the lineup.

• • •

Philadelphia fight fans have just been handed the most unusual titbit for discussion.

Benny Bass and Joe Glick, boxers of parts, did battle there on a recent night. In the third round Bass dropped to the canvas and was counted out by the referee.

A few moments later, the state athletic commission, upon advice of a physician that Bass had been fouled, declared the bout 'no contest."

This odd decision created many interesting angles.

First of all it permitted the commission to act without altering the referee's decison, which was that Glick had won by a knockout.

It relieved Bass of the odium of being knocked out—a set-back that would have meant many thousands of dollars to him in view of possible fights already lined up for the near future.

While the action was taken on the strength of the physician's report of Bass' condition, the decision does not hinge on the doctor's findings. It rather ignores the entire contest because of the questionable ending.

Which may or may not set a precedent for similar bodies.

Antlers Cop Torrid Tilt With Old Foes

East Liverpool basketball fans who have never seen the professional brand of the court game as it is played in the American and other leagues, last night were given a fairly accurate exhibition of the compensated branch of the sport when the East Liverpool Elks and the Midland Collegians clashed on the high school court here in a benefit game for the Frank Neilson fund.

The Elks won by actual count, 40 to 39, after a torrid encounter, and also by forfeit when the Collegians, with 50 seconds of play remaining, left the floor following a free for all scuffle growing out of a double foul.

The game was as nearly like the "pro" brand as anything could be, even to the benching of a couple of players, such as happened in the last Celtics-Rosenblum world's series match when Holman and Kerr were chased for scrapping.

The two teams grappled evenly all the way down to the last couple of minutes of play. With the score 34-34, the Elks made a foul. Midland retaliated with a field goal, to make it 36-35. A field goal put the Elks in the lead, 37 to 36. The visitors then dropped in two fouls and led, 39 to 37, at the one-minute mark. A one-hander under the basket shot from out of scrimmage by Paulsey knotted up the count as the crowd went into a frenzy and the players into a tangle in one corner of the court.

Lippe, cutting for the basket, was tripped. Guard Minehart, right behind him, in the heat of the battle, banged into the play, as nearly as could be figured out afterward, and the battle of the Argonne was re-enacted for a couple of minutes, as the fans in the front line benches went over the top.

After the game, Referee Dim Zange declared that he had ordered both Campbell, of the Midland team, and Minehart, of the Elks, to the showers, and had called a double foul. In other words, each team was to get a free shot at the hoop as a result of the misdemeanors of the two players.

Following the hubbub, however, the visitors decided to leave the floor, with 50 seconds of the game still to be played.

Lippe then stepped to the foul line and dropped in the shot ordered by Referee Zange.

Aside from the final proceedings leading to the forfeit, the game was as fast and furious an exhibition of the floor sport as any dyed in the wool fan would want to witness.

Big Tony Paulsey led the scorers on both teams with five field goals and five fouls for 15 points, Dave Shupe at a forward post ringing up 12.

Parry, Midland forward, topped the visiting point makers with 11 points, three field goals and five fouls.

The Elks finished on the big end of a 12-9 count in the first quarter, but the visitors made it up in the second quarter and the half ended all even, 18-18. Midland then stepped out to a one-point lead in the third period which ended with the score 31-30. In the concluding period the Elks annexed 10 and the Collegians eight points.

Reforms In Sulky Game May Bring About Sport Revival

By Norman E. Brown.

Ran into a group of prominent leaders in the trotting horse game here while wandering home from the sunny south and the ball fields and they express the general feeling that the "sulky game" is in for the biggest season that it has enjoyed in many years—in fact is once more on all four legs after a few seasons which caused the more lugubrious ones to fear the eventual death of the sport.

Three or four very valid reasons are advanced for the predictions of a bigger and better season.

Topping these is the general acceptance of the Harness Horse association's plan of the "money earning" system for the classification of horses.

The reduction of shipping rates.

The reduction of entry fees.

The elimination of the deduction from the money winners' purses.

"The nationwide acceptance of the system of classifying horses on a basis of winnings, rather than on their winrace records has made every heat a race. The failure of some drivers to race it out in every heat was putting the sport in the hippodrome class and was causing many of its followers to tire of the game," said "Sep" Palin, famous as a trainer of pacers, a director of the H. H. A. and called the father of the money earning system.

"Under the old system a horse with a mark of 2:11 for instance, was placed in the 2:04 class the moment he had won a race in, say 2:03¾. The result of this was that trainers and drivers, to prevent the rapid advancement of their horses in the classifications, were tempted to "pull" their horses. Rather than win a race in fast time and thereby automatically send their horses into a much faster class they would be content with second money.

How New System Works.

"Under the new "money-earned" system, horses are advanced on a saner basis. A horse's classification is reduced each time he earns $1,000. That is, a horse with a classification of 2:11 is placed in the 2:10 class the moment he wins a total of $1,000 as a 2:11 pacer or trotter.

"Under this plan the fact that a horse wins the 2:11 event, for instance, in 2:04 does not immediately shove him down into that fast class. If the purse won is $1,000 or the money won brings his earnings in the 2:11 class to that amount he moves up just one class.

"This means that his driver can drive to win without fear of driving his horse out of his class. In other words he can let his horse out every heat. The object of every race is to win a part of the purse at least and he cannot benefit his horse in any way by holding him back."

Palin and other trainers, owners and followers of the game feel that the elimination of the "deduction from winners" evil worked a great good. The money thus deducted—a certain percentage—went to the association conducting the meets. Horsemen long felt the injustice of turning back part of their earnings after paying willingly the entry fee asked.

Small Owners Helped.

The size of the entry fee in many cases was unjust. The shipping rates in vogue prevented many of the smaller owners from taking in the more distant meets and worked a hardship on the shippers of large stables.

That the new money-earned system of classification and other features met with approval of the horsemen is indicated by the fact, according to Palin, that it is being used on 90 per cent of the tracks now.

Three associations are directing the destinies of the harness game—the H. H. A., the American Trotting association and the National Trotting association. The Union Trotting association was taken over by the National this year.

Connie Mack's "Heirlooms" On Pan After Opening Contests

Cobb, Collins Fail In Pinches As A's Fall Before Yanks

Cobb, Say Critics, Looks Bad on Fly Balls in Right While Collins Didn't Hit During the Series; Season Still Young, Says Mack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Connie Mack's collection of human heirlooms were on their way out of New York today, leaving in their wake three ball games and, apparently, a highly unfavorable impression upon the local intelligencia. The latter, after a reasonable interval of tolerance during which they viewed with some restraint the combined efforts of Eddie Collins to get a base hit and Ty Cobb to catch a fly ball, today felt the barrier was raised and they had at Connie's speculative investments with great enthusiasm.

"Cobb looks like one of the worst outfielders in the major leagues" wrote one man, after the four game series with the Yankees ended yesterday.

Speaking of the 9 to 9 tie of Thursday another declared.

"If the Mackmen had had a real right fielder in the first inning, Lazzeri would have got no triple. Cobb's creaky joints stretched a single into a three bagger and the Yanks collected a couple of counters. Ty's move on Tony's blow gave him away. There is a cavern in right when the Philadelphians are in the field."

Cobb "Takes" Orders.

Frankly, Cobb so far has looked exactly what he happens to be: An old timer who might get by on what he knows. As to that it may yet develop that he knows too much for the good of the ball club.

I saw Connie come out in front of the dugout yesterday to wave Cobb over toward the foul line with Gehrig at the plate. Ty moved with apparent good grace, but the next moment he returned to his former position.

This time Connie let the matter go by default. Cobb's hitting during the series was good; yet two of them were scratches and on the whole he seemed to lack something of his old punch. However, Cobb probably will be a hitter at fifty.

Now for Eddie Collins.

"Collins didn't get a hit during the series," declared one of our most eminent minds today. "And, at that, he figures to hit better than he fields."

Having said which, he then launched into a learned dissertation, purporting to show that Collins' advancing years had made him too stiff in the joints to get down rapidly on ground balls and that no longer could he wheel rapidly on relay throws when trying for doble plays.

First Class Club on Bench.

True enough, Collins uncovered an almost alarming disposition to kick the ball away during the series just concluded, particularly on fast-skipping ground balls, and his critic at least has circumstantial evidence in his favor when he charges Eddie with the great sin of growing old.

What the boys in the rack room seem to be concerned about is how long Connie plans to string along with his antiques. They candidly declared today that the Philadelphia Athletics, as at present constituted, are going nowhere with considerable haste and, in a spirit of helpfulness so characteristic of the enraged journalist at large, they intimate that they wish to remind Connie that he has a first class ball club sitting placidly on the bench.

Of course, boys will be boys and the natural rejoinder is that you can't convict a ball club on four games. But, as to that, men of the age of Cobb and Collins figure to become less effective as the season wears on into the double headers and their legs wear out into stumps.

Connie has $60,000 tied up in Cobb and $20,000 in Collins and, if the old club continues to cull the cloak and suit trade at its present rate, the "nut" on this pair will be written off in a few weeks. But I don't think Mack is concerned about that, although it may as well be admitted that no dollar ever will be able to sue him for alienated affections. Still, he paid $30,000 for Dudley Branon and, after the second game, hesitated less than 9 3-5 seconds, all three watches agreeing, in removing Dudley to a zone of safety in favor of Jim Poole. He also paid critical money for Zach Wheat but when he found that the veteran couldn't throw hard enough to break a window, he also took old Zach right out of there.

Season Young Yet, Says Connie.

"Some of them don't look so good," he said, sadly. "However, we are only getting started."

That point, of course, is well taken, with the season still having 150 games to run. You couldn't say, for example, that Connie's pitching is a lot of eye wash; yet no pitcher finished a game in the local series and the average used each game was three.

Being notoriously charitable in my views, I will merely venture that perhaps the whole ball club is off to one of those standing starts. However, as to Cobb and Collins, I must refuse to alter an opinion I contracted carelessly in the south; that neither of them will be able to finish the season.

SHAFFER, MORRIS BOW TO CUE STAR

William F. Greenleaf, middle west pocket billiard champion, won both his match games at the American Billiard parlors yesterday.

In the afternoon he defeated Shaffer, 75 to 52, and at his exhibition last night he won from Morris, the American tourney champion, 75 to 23.

Greenleaf's high runs were 25, 28 and 29 for the day.

Large crowds attended both performances and were well pleased, especially with the fancy shots. Greenleaf made 15 balls in one shot in the afternoon exhibition.

Benefit Cage Game Boosts Fund $104

The Frank Neilson fund, for whom the Elks and the Midland Collegians played in a benefit cage tilt last night at the high school, was boosted to the extent of $104, officials of the Elks' club announced today.

Everything in connection with the game was done without charge, the Collegians coming down for the game for only actual traveling expenses.

Will Blake, member of the committee in charge of the fund, today publicly expressed his thanks to the two teams, the referee and all others who aided in the benefit in any extent.

Step-ins for Men? I Should Say Not, Growls Vet Coach

CHICAGO, April 16.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, whom veterans recall as a football player of note, stepped into the break and kicked a verbal placement goal today at the University of Chicago for the first score against "Step-ins," the new fangled piece of underwear for men.

The "grand old man" of football with other directors of athletics at the university, has been disturbed by the report that men are wearing "step-ins" where B. V. D.'s ought to be.

"If any male person shows up around here wearing the darling slips," he said, pointing to the football field, "we'll use him for a pigskin and boot him all over the place."

JINX TRAILS BILL SHERDEL

Holds Cubs to Two Hits But Loses Game, 1 to 0.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Lady Luck, that fickle goddess, continues to frown upon Bill Sherdel, southpaw of the champion St. Louis Cardinals. Wee Willie, whose tough luck was one of the features of the world's series last fall, held the Cubs to two hits yesterday—and lost.

Sherdel lost because one of the two hits happened to be a home run by Hack Wilson. The score was 1 to 0, three double plays by the Cubs enabling Percy Jones to hold the Cards scoreless.

Pirates walloped the Reds, 10 to 6, and still lead the league.

The Bues nicked Rixey and Neiff for fourteen hits, while Mahaffey and Morrison managed to hold the Reds in check.

With "No Hit" Charley Robertson on the mound, the sprightly Braves made it three straight from Brooklyn by a score of 3 to 1. The Robins, still on a pop-fly diet, made only five hits and two Boston runs came in when Max Carey played ping-pong with Moore's single.

Philadelphia, supposedly restored to lethargy by the departure of the fiery Arthur Fletcher, was the scene of a near-riot as the Giants beat the Phillies, 6 to 3. When Eddie Roush delivered his first hit of the season, a grounder along the third base line, the fans thought it was a foul and said so with cushions, hot dogs and assorted debris. Manager Stuffy McInnis further distinguished himself by being ejected from the pastime for the second time during the series.

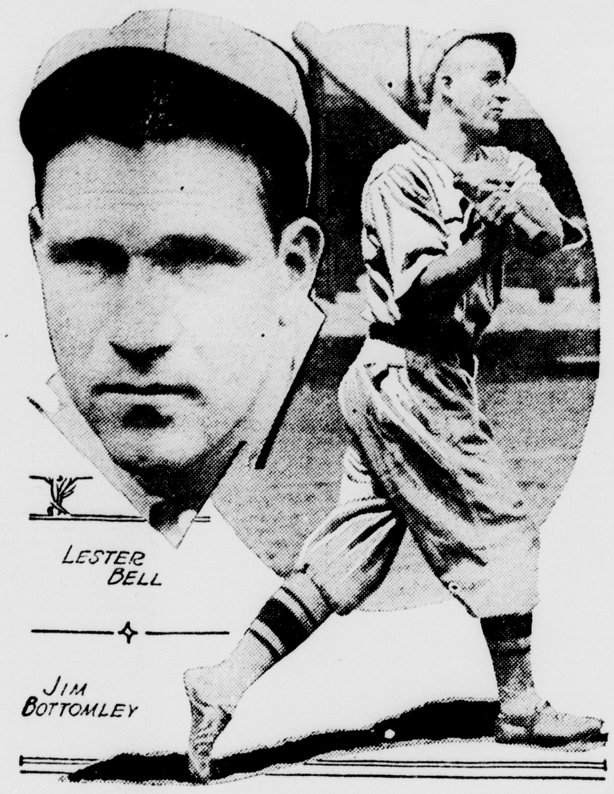

The American league got under way officially when Babe Ruth clouted his first homer of the season. This blow, combined with grade A pitching by Herb Pennock, enabled the Yankees to trim the Athletics, 6 to 3, for their third straight victory. Incidentally the result eased the throbbing pain in Col. Ruppert's pocketbook, caused by meeting the salary demands of Ruth and Pennock during the winter.

The Washington Senators kept pace with the Yanks by swamping the Red Sox, 7 to 1, sweeping the series. General Crowder held the Sox to five hits and Speaker and Goslin led the attack on the back bay hurlers.

Joe Shaute of Cleveland limited the White Sox to one hit in six innings, but the Sox bunched their blows thereafter and won, 6 to 1, evening the series. A homer by Bernie Neis prevented Ted Lyons from registering a shutout.

The Tigers and Browns finally got started, but rain stopped the contest at the end of the fifth inning with the score tied, 2 to 2. Sisler knocked in both of the Browns' tallies.

THE "PUSH 'EM IN" PAIR

Jim Bottomley, first baseman, and Lester Bell, infielder, are being counted on to repeat their brilliant performances of last year for the world's champion Cardinals. Only three National League players drove in 100 runs or more last season. Two of them were Bottomley and Bell, the former shoving in 120 and the latter 100.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

IN addition to the fact that he was troubled with nerves" at times last season young Mark Koenig, Yankee shortstop, failed to hit at a clip desired by the boss. For these reasons it was rumored at various times during the off months that Miller Huggins would shift his lineup and that Koenig might start the season on the bench.

But he didn't.

He started it with a bang—two bangs out of three times up.

The next game he added five bangs in five trips to the plate.

And at the writing he was still going strong.

* * *

Of course the pitching isn't of mid-season caliber as yet and it takes more than two or three good days to carry a season average, but right now Mr. Koenig seems to have found himself, at least at the plate. And if he wallops the pill around .300 with the other ball murderers of the team, it will take two or three ocean-going tugs to pull him out of the lineup.

* * *

Philadelphia fight fans have just been handed the most unusual titbit for discussion.

Benny Bass and Joe Glick, boxers of parts, did battle there on a recent night. In the third round Bass dropped to the canvas and was counted out by the referee.

A few moments later, the state athletic commission, upon advice of a physician that Bass had been fouled, declared the bout 'no contest."

This odd decision created many interesting angles.

First of all it permitted the commission to act without altering the referee's decison, which was that Glick had won by a knockout.

It relieved Bass of the odium of being knocked out—a set-back that would have meant many thousands of dollars to him in view of possible fights already lined up for the near future.

While the action was taken on the strength of the physician's report of Bass' condition, the decision does not hinge on the doctor's findings. It rather ignores the entire contest because of the questionable ending.

Which may or may not set a precedent for similar bodies.

Antlers Cop Torrid Tilt With Old Foes

East Liverpool basketball fans who have never seen the professional brand of the court game as it is played in the American and other leagues, last night were given a fairly accurate exhibition of the compensated branch of the sport when the East Liverpool Elks and the Midland Collegians clashed on the high school court here in a benefit game for the Frank Neilson fund.

The Elks won by actual count, 40 to 39, after a torrid encounter, and also by forfeit when the Collegians, with 50 seconds of play remaining, left the floor following a free for all scuffle growing out of a double foul.

The game was as nearly like the "pro" brand as anything could be, even to the benching of a couple of players, such as happened in the last Celtics-Rosenblum world's series match when Holman and Kerr were chased for scrapping.

The two teams grappled evenly all the way down to the last couple of minutes of play. With the score 34-34, the Elks made a foul. Midland retaliated with a field goal, to make it 36-35. A field goal put the Elks in the lead, 37 to 36. The visitors then dropped in two fouls and led, 39 to 37, at the one-minute mark. A one-hander under the basket shot from out of scrimmage by Paulsey knotted up the count as the crowd went into a frenzy and the players into a tangle in one corner of the court.

Lippe, cutting for the basket, was tripped. Guard Minehart, right behind him, in the heat of the battle, banged into the play, as nearly as could be figured out afterward, and the battle of the Argonne was re-enacted for a couple of minutes, as the fans in the front line benches went over the top.

After the game, Referee Dim Zange declared that he had ordered both Campbell, of the Midland team, and Minehart, of the Elks, to the showers, and had called a double foul. In other words, each team was to get a free shot at the hoop as a result of the misdemeanors of the two players.

Following the hubbub, however, the visitors decided to leave the floor, with 50 seconds of the game still to be played.

Lippe then stepped to the foul line and dropped in the shot ordered by Referee Zange.

Aside from the final proceedings leading to the forfeit, the game was as fast and furious an exhibition of the floor sport as any dyed in the wool fan would want to witness.

Big Tony Paulsey led the scorers on both teams with five field goals and five fouls for 15 points, Dave Shupe at a forward post ringing up 12.

Parry, Midland forward, topped the visiting point makers with 11 points, three field goals and five fouls.

The Elks finished on the big end of a 12-9 count in the first quarter, but the visitors made it up in the second quarter and the half ended all even, 18-18. Midland then stepped out to a one-point lead in the third period which ended with the score 31-30. In the concluding period the Elks annexed 10 and the Collegians eight points.

Reforms In Sulky Game May Bring About Sport Revival

By Norman E. Brown.

Ran into a group of prominent leaders in the trotting horse game here while wandering home from the sunny south and the ball fields and they express the general feeling that the "sulky game" is in for the biggest season that it has enjoyed in many years—in fact is once more on all four legs after a few seasons which caused the more lugubrious ones to fear the eventual death of the sport.

Three or four very valid reasons are advanced for the predictions of a bigger and better season.

Topping these is the general acceptance of the Harness Horse association's plan of the "money earning" system for the classification of horses.

The reduction of shipping rates.

The reduction of entry fees.

The elimination of the deduction from the money winners' purses.

"The nationwide acceptance of the system of classifying horses on a basis of winnings, rather than on their win-race records has made every heat a race. The failure of some drivers to race it out in every heat was putting the sport in the hippodrome class and was causing many of its followers to tire of the game," said "Sep" Palin, famous as a trainer of pacers, a director of the H. H. A. and called the father of the money earning system.

"Under the old system a horse with a mark of 2:11 for instance, was placed in the 2:04 class the moment he had won a race in, say 2:03¾. The result of this was that trainers and drivers, to prevent the rapid advancement of their horses in the classifications, were tempted to "pull" their horses. Rather than win a race in fast time and thereby automatically send their horses into a much faster class they would be content with second money.

How New System Works.

"Under the new "money-earned" system, horses are advanced on a saner basis. A horse's classification is reduced each time he earns $1,000. That is, a horse with a classification of 2:11 is placed in the 2:10 class the moment he wins a total of $1,000 as a 2:11 pacer or trotter.

"Under this plan the fact that a horse wins the 2:11 event, for instance, in 2:04 does not immediately shove him down into that fast class. If the purse won is $1,000 or the money won brings his earnings in the 2:11 class to that amount he moves up just one class.

"This means that his driver can drive to win without fear of driving his horse out of his class. In other words he can let his horse out every heat. The object of every race is to win a part of the purse at least and he cannot benefit his horse in any way by holding him back."

Palin and other trainers, owners and followers of the game feel that the elimination of the "deduction from winners" evil worked a great good. The money thus deducted—a certain percentage—went to the association conducting the meets. Horsemen long felt the injustice of turning back part of their earnings after paying willingly the entry fee asked.

Small Owners Helped.

The size of the entry fee in many cases was unjust. The shipping rates in vogue prevented many of the smaller owners from taking in the more distant meets and worked a hardship on the shippers of large stables.

That the new money-earned system of classification and other features met with approval of the horsemen is indicated by the fact, according to Palin, that it is being used on 90 per cent of the tracks now.

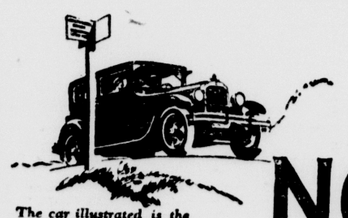

Three associations are directing the destinies of the harness game—the H. H. A., the American Trotting association and the National Trotting association. The Union Trotting association was taken over by the National this year.

STRAND OFFERS A-1 COMPANY IN NEW YORK HITS

"The Patsy" Opens Stock Run Here Monday.

FOUR MATINEES

Miss Marie Ilka and Hamilton Christy are Leads.

Offering a repertoire of dramas, including New York stage successes, the Strand Players, a company of 10 persons, will open an indefinite engagement at the Strand theatre, commencing Monday.

For the first week Barry Connors' comedy, "The Patsy," will be presented. This play has scored big hits in Chicago and New York. Connors is also the author of "Applesauce," and "Hell's Bells."

There will be one show each evening with matinees on Monday, Tuesday Thursday and Saturday for the next week.

The Strand Players are headed by Miss Maria Ilka, leading woman, and Hamilton Christy, playing opposite her. Miss Ilka is a former member of Mrs. Samuel Irisull's company, which filled a long engagement at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago. Previous to that she was with Mrs. Leslie Carter. She toured Australia for two years, playing with "The Tiger Rose." Her home is in Cleveland, where she was born. She was educated in England and France and made her first stage appearance at the Princess theatre, London.

Christy has also had a wide experience with stock productions having been connected with the Castle Square company of Boston, the McGarry Stock company, of Buffalo and Washington, and the Stuart Walker company of Indianapolis. He also played in the stage productions "Peg of My Heart," "The Brat," "Our Children," and others.

Other members of the company are R. A. Bennett, Kelsey Cook, Kathryn Van Esse, Anson Yarney, Peggy Devere and Ann Anderson.

The company will present but one show each week. For the week beginning Monday, April 25, the mystery play, "The Seventh Guest," advertised as a play with a laugh, a thrill and a chill every minute, will be offered.

"The Patsy," the opening play, was originally called "Love Lessons," because it tells the story of Pat Harrington, a charming little miss who loves her big sister's discarded beau. She asks him how to go about winning the man she loves, and he being appropriately handsome and dumb, teaches her the six sure fire ways to win the man she loves, and as fast as she learns them, she applies them to him, and needless to say, he is lost.

The plot depends for much of its punch on the bright sayings of Pat, who, in an effort to improve herself, has bought four volumes of "Wise and Witty Sayings For All Occasions"—one of those how to be popular, though dumb things. Follow six thrilling lessons in love which "The Patsy" turns against her young teacher. Just as they promise success the older sister decides she wants Tony back, and for a time things look pretty dark for Barry Connor's captivating heroine.

"The Patsy" is three acts of comedy, romance, laughter and pathos, telling a most appealing love story.

STRAND OFFERS A-1 COMPANY IN NEW YORK HITS

"The Patsy" Opens Stock Run Here Monday.

FOUR MATINEES

Miss Marie Ilka and Hamilton Christy are Leads.

Offering a repertoire of dramas, including New York stage successes, the Strand Players, a company of 10 persons, will open an indefinite engagement at the Strand theatre, commencing Monday.

For the first week Barry Connors' comedy, "The Patsy," will be presented. This play has scored big hits in Chicago and New York. Connors is also the author of "Applesauce," and "Hell's Bells."

There will be one show each evening with matinees on Monday, Tuesday Thursday and Saturday for the next week.

The Strand Players are headed by Miss Maria Ilka, leading woman, and Hamilton Christy, playing opposite her. Miss Ilka is a former member of Mrs. Samuel Irisull's company, which filled a long engagement at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago. Previous to that she was with Mrs. Leslie Carter. She toured Australia for two years, playing with "The Tiger Rose." Her home is in Cleveland, where she was born. She was educated in England and France and made her first stage appearance at the Princess theatre, London.

Christy has also had a wide experience with stock productions having been connected with the Castle Square company of Boston, the McGarry Stock company, of Buffalo and Washington, and the Stuart Walker company of Indianapolis. He also played in the stage productions "Peg of My Heart," "The Brat," "Our Children," and others.

Other members of the company are R. A. Bennett, Kelsey Cook, Kathryn Van Esse, Anson Yarney, Peggy Devere and Ann Anderson.

The company will present but one show each week. For the week beginning Monday, April 25, the mystery play, "The Seventh Guest," advertised as a play with a laugh, a thrill and a chill every minute, will be offered.

"The Patsy," the opening play, was originally called "Love Lessons," because it tells the story of Pat Harrington, a charming little miss who loves her big sister's discarded beau. She asks him how to go about winning the man she loves, and he being appropriately handsome and dumb, teaches her the six sure fire ways to win the man she loves, and as fast as she learns them, she applies them to him, and needless to say, he is lost.

The plot depends for much of its punch on the bright sayings of Pat, who in an effort to improve herself, has bought four volumes of "Wise and Witty Sayings For All Occasions"—one of those how to be popular, though dumb things. Follow six thrilling lessons in love which "The Patsy" turns against her young teacher. Just as they promise success the older sister decides she wants Tony back, and for a time things look pretty dark for Barry Connor's captivating heroine.

"The Patsy" is three acts of comedy, romance, laughter and pathos, telling a most appealing love story.

Not the Cheapest But the BEST!

Good Gasoline should be judged by the volume that actually burns in the cycinders of your motor. Any fuel that fails to vaporize will not burn. It will drip past your piston rings and wash the oil film off your cylinder walls. Furthermore, it is this unburned portion of the gasoline that causes the carbon troubles in your motor.

SUPER-FLASH GASOLINE vaporizes completely because it has not been adulterated with heavy naptha—to make it cost less to the dealer. Because it vaporizes completely, it burns perfectly. It gives you 100 Per Cent of its power.

The completeness with which SUPER-FLASH GASOLINE burns reduces dilution of the crank case oil and the formation of carbon. That means saving to you in repair bills.

Super-Flash Gasoline leaves no bad taste in the mouth of your motor - - - No ill after-effects - - - It burns cleanly, quickly and thoroughly.

You can buy CHEAPER Gasoline but you can't buy BETTER Gasoline.

8 KILLED IN CHICAGO BLAST

Today

New Flight Record.
Gold Snakes For Ladies.
British "Flappers" Win.
Napoleon and the Air.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

ACCOSTA and Chamberlin stayed up in their Bellanca monoplane 51 hours and 11 minutes, breaking all records for continuous flight. Their joy is not unmixed. When they rose in the air for a test, if they had started straight for Paris instead of flying around New York, to see if they could do it, they would be in Paris now the first ever to have crossed the Atlantic ocean in a straight one-hop unassisted flight.

BRITISH ladies, anxious to attract attention, and perhaps not quite as beautiful as they once were, wear snakes made of fine, flat gold wire twisted around their necks. The snake goes around two or three times, hanging down in front. How do you explain that psychologically?

A FEW years ago, Mrs. Pankhurst, trying to get votes for British women, could be seen struggling in the arms of brawny, good-natured policemen, tearing her away from the entrance to the house of commons.

Now Premier Baldwin tells the commons of his plan to let women vote at 21 years of age. Hitherto British women had to be older than men before they could vote.

THE British "flapper," with her little box of cosmetics, and very little skirt, will get the vote, and probably won't want it.

But that doesn't diminish the value of the work that Mrs. Pankhurst did, when she compelled British statesmen to pay attention to British women.

JACOB Wasserman, able German novelist, author of "The World's Illusions," can "find no happiness in this country." He calls Chicago's industrial life "intensely depressing."

Chicago industrial workers might call Mr. Wassermann's life intensely depressing. It is hard to judge. The prairie dog in his little village may be as happy as Napoleon looking up at the Pyramids. The prairie dog doesn't have to go to St. Helena.

AMERICAN SHELLS RAIN ON NANKING

U. S. S. CINCINNATI'S BROADSIDE SILENCES CHINESE FORTS' GUNS

No Yank Casualties When Gobs Reply to Attack Made as Vessel Proceeds up Yangtze to Hankow.

SECOND CLASH WITHIN 24 HOURS

Shanghai Hints State of Disorder Prevails in City Which is Held by Nationalists Under Chiang Kai Shek.

SHANGHAI, April 16—Once again American shells rained on Nanking today.

The U. S. S. Cincinnati was fired upon by forts in the vicinity of Nanking at 8:45 this morning as the vessel proceeded up the Yangtze to Hankow, where a naval concentration has been ordered due to the tense situation which exists.

Destroyer Ford Fired Upon.

The Cincinnati returned the fire of the Chinese forts with a broadside and silenced the Chinese guns.

As far as reports indicate there were no casualties on the American boat.

The attack today on the Cincinnati, following an attack yesterday which caused the U. S. Destroyer Ford to open fire on Nanking, has led to the opinion here that Nanking may be in a state of disorder.

The attack on the Ford yesterday was attributed to northern troops, but the forts in the vicinity of Nanking are still understood to be held by Nationalists and it is believed they are responsible for today's attacks.

Chiang Kai Shek Dismissed.

Chiang Kai Shek is in command at Nanking and it is not believed that he would countenance order for firing on foreign vessels, and this leads to the belief that the troops may be out of control.

Reports from Tunghchi state that a northern cruiser has engaged southern forts at Chinkiang, but was forced to withdraw after the arrival of the Nationist cruiser Huiyang.

Open Warfare Continues.

SHANGHAI, April 16.—Open warfare between the factions of the Chinese Nationalists continued today, with clashes of a serious nature reported from Canton where approximately 100 Chinese are reported as killed and wounded, while efforts of the centrists and extremists to enter into parleys were delayed.

Denial was made today of reports widely circulated in the United States yesterday to the effect that Chiang Kai Shek and his centrists had met in Nanking and passed a resolution impeaching the Hankow government and ordering the arrest of Michael Borodin and other avowed Communists in Hankow.

Showers Forecast For Coming Week In Ohio Valley

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Weather outlook for the period April 18 to 23, inclusive:

Ohio Valley: A period of showers at the beginning and another near or shortly after the middle of the week. Temperatures normal or above until the latter part of the week when colder is indicated.

HUNDREDS FLEE AS MISSISSIPPI CRASHES LEVEE

Raging River Washes House Away Near Hickman, Ky.

FARMS FLOODED

Steamer's Lifeboats Sent to Rescue Trapped Persons.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 16.—The raging Mississippi river today ripped the main government levee near Hickman, Ky., washed a house away, put several hundred persons in flight and swept across 175,000 acres of the richest farm lands in Missouri.

The gap, a short time after the break, was 500 feet wide with no chance of checking the water flowing through it and rapidly spreading over all the lowlands.

Lifeboats of the U. S. steamer Kankakee were sent out to rescue trapped persons.

New Orleans Streets Flooded.

NEW ORLEANS, April 16. — The lower Mississippi valley today prepared for the greatest flood in its history.

A torrential rainfall during the night added to the dangers of a rapidly rising Mississippi, and as a result a score or more streets in the lower section of the city were flooded. More than five inches of rain fell in New Orleans yesterday.

Town Under Water.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., April 16.—Hollister, Mo., is under ten feet of water; Forsythe, nearby, is abandoned and virtually the whole town washed away, and White river and other streams in the Ozarks are raging torrents, according to reports here at noon today.

Besides her husband, she is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Bert Woods and Grace Gates. She also leaves several brothers and sisters.

FIVE MEN HELD FOR STRIPPING LISBON AUTO

East End Youths Arrested on Charge of Suspicion.

AWAIT HEARING

Alleged Car Thief Bound Over to Grand Jury.

Alleged to have stripped two tires from an automobile owned by George Nick, Lisbon junk dealer, five East End youths, ranging in age from 18 to 22, are being held by police upon suspicion following their arrest early today.

The suspects are Everett and Dale Brookes, brothers; Ernest Stitz, Marzie Banfield and Clinton Murrill. It is probable that they will be taken to Lisbon this afternoon for a hearing before Mayor Robert Clark.

The youths, driving a Ford car, are said to have stopped at the Harry Crubaugh garage, Lincoln highway, near Lisbon, at 1:30 o'clock this morning and removed the tires from the Nick machine which was parked near the building. Another motorist who saw the boys hurried to the Crubaugh home where he awakened the garage owner. When Crubaugh

Fire Turns Row of Buildings Into Seething Furnace.

VICTIMS TRAPPED

Identification of Bodies, Charred and Mangled, Almost Impossible.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Eight were killed and scores injured today in a terrific explosion that fire that turned a row of one-story brick stores into a seething furnace. A dynamite bomb, a still or escaping gas were thought responsible for the tragedy.

Perish Like Rats in Trap.

The dead were members of two families living in the rear of the stores. Trapped as they slept by tons of flaming timbers and bricks, they perished like rats while hundreds of neighbors, hearing their agonized screams, stood by, powerless to extend aid.

Identification of the victims was almost impossible, so badly charred and mangled were the bodies. From information obtained from neighbors however, police believed the dead to be:

Sam Levin, 45, tailor; Rose, 45, his wife; Albert, 20, a son; Leo, 16, a son; Harry Sokolsky; Sarah, his wife; Sam, 15, a son, and Rose, 16, a daughter.

The injured whose exact number police have been unable to ascertain, are persons living in the vicinity of the death scene, struck by flying glass and falling timbers.

The condition of the ruins made it all but impossible for authorities to determine what caused the tragedy.

Graphic Account of Tragedy.

One theory was that escaping gas from the Levin tailor shop slowly filled a room and was suddenly ignited, exploding with tremendous force.

The Levin and Sokolsky stores received the full force of the blast. They were completely destroyed, with only a few charred bricks and timbers to show where they stood.

H. S. Venable, who lives across the street, gave authorities a graphic account of the tragedy.

"I was thrown to the floor by the explosion," said Venable. "I rushed to the windows and found them all broken. Across the street flames 70 feet high were shooting toward the sky. Even from the distance I was I could hear screams and moans."

Venable rushed to help the victims but the heat of the conflagration was so intense that he could approach no nearer than 25 feet.

Two Black Powder Bomb Blasts.

CHICAGO, April 16. — Two black powder bombs were exploded against Chicago buildings today, resulting in no injuries and only slight damage.

One bomb was exploded against the Shirley laboratories and the other against an apartment house.

Owners could give no reason for the blasts.

Cleveland Mansion Wrecked.

CLEVELAND, O., April 16.—Three persons had narrow escapes from death or serious injury here early today when an explosion of mysterious origin which rocked the exclusive Edgewater district for blocks, wrecked the mansion owned by James C. Pettee, causing damage estimated between $15,000 and $25,000. Pettee, his wife and a maid were thrown from their beds by the blast.

Police are searching for owners of an automobile which was seen parked near the residence shortly after midnight.

VILLAGE MAYOR PUTS HIS NAME ON AFFIDAVIT

Lloyd Gearing Charged With Possession of Liquor.

ASSESSED $600

Chief Fultz's Squad Confiscates Whisky and Empty Kegs.

Charged with possession of intoxicating liquors, Lloyd Gearing 22, of Salineville, was arrested last night at 9 o'clock by Chief of Police John Fultz, of Wellsville, and Patrolmen Hanlon and Cole on an affidavit sworn out by Mayor R. B. Smith, Salineville.

Police are said to have found six gallons of liquor and a number of empty kegs.

After filling out the affidavit, the Salineville mayor procured the services of Chief Fultz and the Wellsville patrolmen and went directly to Gearing's home in the East End of Salineville.

Gearing was not at home at the time. Police searched the house from top to bottom but were unable to discover anything but the kegs.

The search then was extended to an outbuilding which apparently was empty, a quantity of straw covering the floor.

Police pushed the straw aside, tore up floor boards and found the liquor cache in a hole directly under the flooring.

The authorities awaited Gearing's return and a short time later placed him under arrest.

He was brought to Wellsville, and, at a hearing before Mayor W. L. Fogo, was fined $600 and committed to the county jail.

Mayor Smith, of Salineville, was unable to act because recent councilmanic legislation placing him on a salary to permit him to try cases under new state statutes, will not be effective until next week.

D. W. LEWIS TO GET POLICE HEARING

D. W. Lewis was arrested last night by local police on a charge of disorderly conduct and is in jail today awaiting a hearing before Mayor W. L. Fogo.

It is charged that Lewis went to the home of his former wife yesterday, broke in a door and destroyed house fixtures of various kinds.

GRANTED LEAVE TO FILE ANSWER

Pete Viola, as plaintiff in error in his case against the City of Wellsville, as defendant in error, has been granted leave by Judge W. F. Lones to file his petition in common pleas court.

In this case, however, Viola has been ordered to give $1,000 bond, with the sureties to be approved by Mayor W. L. Fogo of Wellsville. Viola was recently fined in the Wellsville mayor's court and after the hearing his counsel, J. E. O'Grady, gave notice of intent to appeal. The bill of exceptions has now been admitted to the record.

Local police, accompanied by Viola's attorney, James E. O'Grady, went to the workhouse at Canton today to obtain Viola's release, on the $1,000 bond, pending the appeal hearing.

POLICE FIND RECORD STILL

Get 125-gallon Container in Former Maggio Home.

A 125-gallon still, probably the largest ever uncovered here, was hauled to the city hall this morning by Mayor W. L. Fogo, Chief John Fultz and Patrolman Edward Pugh from the old Frank Maggio residence, in Fifteenth street near Central ball park.

No arrests have been made in connection with the discovery of the still.

The still, as well as 20 gallons of liquor, an empty barrel and seven or eight empty five-gallon cans were found by the authorities.

The equipment was discovered in a false cellar, apparently constructed for the purpose inside of the regular cellar.

The Maggio house had not been used for a number of years as a result of a fire which practically destroyed the upper portions of the structure.

Golf Balls Kill Birds.

That golf balls are becoming destructive to birds, animals and even fish, has been reported following the felling of a sparrow in flight by a sphere that had been driven by H. C. Kinch, a professional, during the Croydon and District Alliance tournament at Chipstead, England. The ball hit the bird over the right eye. J. Bamford, another professional, killed two wagtails in one play at Chester, a gull and weasel were slain by balls at Hawick, a partridge was felled at Hertz, and at Newark a "pill" landing in a river killed a two-pound trout.

CHOIR DEPICTS IN SONG LAST WORDS ON CROSS

HOLY WEEK MEET

Musical Production Features Good Friday Observance.

Depicting in song to an organ accompaniment the "Seven Last Words of the Christ," a cantata by Dubois, which expresses the agony, suffering and death of Jesus on the cross, was rendered at the First Methodist Church by the Congregation's choir of 35 voices last evening. The services concluded the five-day downtown Holy week series of meetings.

Under the direction of Prof. Hugh Laughlin, choral director, with Mrs. T. C. Flick as organist and Miss Grace McNutt and Messers. Rowland T. Kaufman and Wilbur F. Glenn, carrying the soprano, tenor and baritone themes, respectively the rendition in conception, balance and exactness of execution stood out as a distinctive musical contribution and triumph.

Immediately after the Good Friday service under the auspices of the Women's Home Missionary society, led by Mrs. T. T. McCann, which followed Communion given by the pastor, Dr. Frank G. Fowler, the production, presented in semi-darkness amid a rich setting of Easter lilies, tulips, ferns and palms, intermingled candle lights, balustrated by the Christian and American flags and fronted by appointments necessary to the Lord's Supper, deeply impressed, the throng that filled the auditorium.

Miss McNutt, in her solo parts, exhibited a pure soprano voice and rare dramatic quality; Mr. Kaufman was excellent in his slightly robust tenor, rich in its tonal qualities, and Mr. Glenn, with ringing mellow tones, filled admirably the role which called for baritone, prayerful qualities of sounds.

The ensemble response of the chorus to the inter-weaving solo numbers was good and all that was desired from the vehicle utilized.

Both the choral renditions and the solos were splendidly supported by the superb tonal effects produced by Mrs. Flick on the organ. Her work was all that could be desired; her vividness of reproduction of the varied scenes, thunderous, mild and sublime, necessary to be depicted, was keen, exact and recognizable.

With such a setting, the majestic silence engendered, the universal response to parts written by the director, soloists and chorus, the whole made for what it was intended to be—a superior, worship of the Almighty God and His Sacrificial Son through the offices of the prevailing Holy Spirit.

At the missionary gathering preliminary to the cantata, Mrs. Hugh Laughlin spoke on "The Men of the Cross;" Mrs. Charles Larkins discussed, "Our Lenten Offering," and Mrs. E. D. Makle gave an Easter reading. The music was in charge of Mrs. Homer J. Taylor, while Mrs. Barrett assisted Mrs. McCann in the meeting's leadership.

The communion service began at 4:30 o'clock and was carried on intermittedly until the musical production began.

The benediction, beautifully and feeling reinforced by the organ chimes, was made by Dr. Fowler.

What's What in Washington

BY CHARLES P STEWART

SCIENCE FORESEES CHEAP GOLD DUE TO METAL TRANSMUTATION

WASHINGTON, April 16. —To say that science looks forward to a time when gold will be as plentiful and cheap as iron or any other everyday metal that sells by the ton instead of the ounce, troy weight, would be a trifle too previous.

DR. PAUL R. HEYL

To say further that Secretary of the Treasury Mellon has made up his mind what to do if such a thing happens would also be to anticipate somewhat.

But it's only a plain statement of fact to say that atomic experts like Prof. Paul Heyl of the government's bureau of standards, and other scientists, think it quite possible we'll presently be turning base metals into gold whenever we feel like it.

It's equally true that treasury officials have been asked, "Wouldn't it play the dickens with your department if gold were to become as common as pig iron?" and that they've answered, "It wouldn't bother us enough to be worth first page position in the newspapers."

LET'S consider the atomic theory.

A chunk of lead, for example, consists of a vast number of atoms. Each atom, in turn, consists of a little sun, with planets whizzing around it.

Ditto a gold atom, only, for the sake of argument, let's assume that the gold atom's sun has only eleven planets to a lead atom's dozen and that they don't whiz in the same pattern.

Our scientist takes a lead atom, knocks a planet out of it, sets the rest of 'em to whizzing in the right pattern and (behold!) he has a gold atom. All he has to do is to repeat this with a sufficient number of atoms, and his chunk of lead's transmitten into a chunk of golf. Nothing could be simpler.

(Prof. Heyl undoubtedly would cry out loud at such an inaccurate, unscientific description, but it'll do for amateurs.)

SO far is this suppositious performance from being a mere crazy idea that there are reputable experimenters who claim to have accomplished it.

Science isn't altogether sure of it yet, but it thinks maybe they did. It thinks maybe it can be done, even if they didn't. In short, firstclass authorities of today accept "transmutation of metals" as within the bounds of possibility.

However, nobody—not even the experimenters who say they've done it—can suggest any method of changing a chunk, say, of lead into a chunk of gold except at an expense far greater than the golden nugget's value.

Commercially, this certainly is a drawback.

YET a time may come when it can be done at a profit—at an enormous profit. Only, of course, it wouldn't stay enormous. Naturally the price of gold would slump in proportion to gold's availability.

A yellowback would represent only its value in old iron or some such thing.

Then what would the government base its paper money on?

Ask this question at the treasury and they refer you immediately to Actuary Joseph S. McCoy, because there's no imaginable treasury problem he hasn't worked out and isn't prepared to answer.

He had this one pat, without any hesitation.

"The best thing to secure a country's currency on," he said, "is its property. You can't take the value out of real estate and crops and manufactures, by transmutation or any other process. That's what we'd base our money on—our resources."

"But wouldn't it cause no end of confusion?"

"The government could make the transfer just as easily," rejoined Actuary McCoy, "as it started us on the federal reserve system, which hardly caused a ripple."

Business And Stocks

American business this spring is rather peculiar. Some observers say it's good and some say it's bad. The fact seems to be that conditions vary with industries, sections and individuals more than they did last year. Thus opinions often reflect partial views. People can find justification for almost any opinion, good, bad or indifferent, though it is evident that the average is pretty good.

The stock market tells a very different tale. Securities have risen, and there is a steady and growing demand for them. The stocks of many corporations are rising apparently quite out of proportion to their indicated earning power. The investors pay little attention this year to balance sheets. They evidently think that, if stocks are not paying particularly well now, they are going to pay well later on. So we have a bull market, even while some business critics are emitting bearish business reports.

Some of this movement is doubtless due to the plenitude of money for investment in this country, and the easy credit available. But there is more to it than that. The investing public—which is a far larger part of the nation than ever before—evidently expects a renewal of last year's remarkable prosperity, after a slight pause.

There is no evident reason, in fundamental economic conditions, why this should not be the case, and a general belief in good times is a powerful factor in making times good.

More Domestic Equality

The equality between the sexes that women have been demanding for some time is gradually becoming thorough. In Wichita, Kan., the other day a husband threatened to go home to mother if his wife didn't stop beating him. The threat worked. The wife, in the presence of two witnesses, signed a pledge not to hit or in any way injure her husband, the father of her children, so long as they live together.

The threat to go home to mother is supposed to have brought a good many disagreeable husbands to revise their domestic methods. Sometimes it has been used toward perfectly good husbands by tyrannical wives.

It looks like a step toward justice and equality to have an abused husband get away with the same threat—if he really can get away with it. But there may still be a catch. This sort of equality hasn't yet progressed quite far enough to insure the husband who really does go home to mother against prosecution for desertion.

Bows And Arrows

Bows and arrows are coming back. Archery is becoming a popular sport. And a fine sport it is, taking one outdoors and developing strength, skill and health. Mostly the shooting is at targets, but some devotees actually go hunting with these weapons.

Why not come all the way back? Why not equip armies again with bows and arrows, and perhaps occasional spears to vary the monotony? They were good enough for William the Conqueror and many another world hero, and ought to be good enough for modern would-be conquerors, provided opposing armies were similarly equipped.

Fighting is fighting, no matter how it is done.

If all nations agreed on this, and quit making guns and explosives and using poison gas, battles would be just as decisive, and would cost far less, and do infinitely less damage to life and property.

Respectfully referred to the league of nations preliminary arms conference at Geneva and the proposed arms conference at Washington.

Conservatism

Sylvia Pankhurst breaks into the news again. The younger generation may not recognize her name. The middle-aged will remember her as the fiery young daughter of the volcanic Mrs. Pankhurst who 15 years ago was leading the militant suffragette movement in England. The Pankhurst family for several years kept British politics in a turmoil, and Sylvia created her full portion of that turmoil. She was then, to England, about what a Bolshevist would be now, only more so.

Well, the fiery Sylvia, now gentle and broke to the harness of established politics, is running for parliament. On the Labor or Liberal ticket? Not at all. On the Conservative ticket, against an incumbent who belongs to the Labor party.

Thus, having got what she wanted, like many another radical, this once dangerous woman turns respectably conservative. It is the way of the world.

The fact that Sacco and Vanzetti are radicals may be important, but has nothing to do with the charge on which they were declared guilty and sentenced to death. What the public would like to know, before they are electrocuted, is whether they really committed that murder.

"Our Indians are yellow," says a western critic of the once noble redskin. And if that can happen, it may be also that the yellow race is turning red.

WHERE HE REALLY LEARNED TO RUN

When Cuban ball players first began to break into the big leagues, John McGraw, manager of the Giants, took on a youth from Hanava who gave promise of developing into a good batsman and a swift baserunner. The recruit accompanied the team on the spring training tour where he showed considerable speed. But after the Giants had started back North for the beginning of the regular season was when the little brown-skinned chap really proved to his associates how fast he could travel.

To fill a date for an exhibtion game, the players reached Macon, Georgia, on a day when a reunion of Confederate veterans was being held. With the rest of the visitors the young Cubans lined up on a sidewalk curbing to watch the parade.

As the old soldiers came swinging down the street the little chap became enthused. The martial music, the dancing battle-flags, the cheers of the crowd, the decorated store fronts, the patriotic spirit which filled the whole town appealed to his Latin blood.

"Great stuff, eh Kid?" inquired one of the older members of the club, whose reputation as a practical joker still endures.

Almost too full of emotion for utterance the Cuban nodded.

"Well, then, I'll tell you how to make a hit with these people. Coming from a foreigner like you they'll appreciate it more. You just step right out there to the middle of the street and take off your hat and swing it 'round your head and yell out as loud as you can: 'Rurrah for Sherman!' If they don't seem to catch your meaning the first time just keep on yelling it! Sherman was one of our great American generals and these folks down here in Georgia are just crazy about him. All you have to do is just mention his name."

The guileless alien followed instructions. But he only had to yell once. It was immediately after that he demonstrated to Manager McGraw and all others present that he knew how to run.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY
By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 16.—Manhattan is filled with lonely and respectable ladies, who, having grown a trifle passe, come to town in hope of a little youthful rejuvenation. Many were belles in their home towns contracting desirable marriages and were widowed.

Their incomes are sufficient to live in gilded hotels or maintain elaborate apartments. Yet in New York they find it difficult to mingle in that stratum of society to which they have been accustomed. They are often the prey of those designing youths who live by their wits.

The older and eligible men are more interested in flappers, the worth while youths are merely courtous, and so the wastrels often become the only surcease from loneliness. A number have been adroitly jockeyed into paying polite blackmail.

New York is the most difficult of cities for lonely, respectable women of wealth. The odds are against them. They play a lone hand. It is one of the metropolitan complexities that the people they really desire to know adopt an aloof attitude.

If they remain, they are eventually shunted almost completely to themselves or the companionship of a white poodle. New York, more than Paris, is attuned to the spirit of youth. Gay widows have their place but the respectable seem beyond the pale.

On the other hand the lone woman who goes in for business here receives more encouragement, I believe, than almost any place on the globe. The consideration for them is extremely chivalric. And their success is more often than not phenomenal.

It is noted that on Fifth and Madison avenues there are some 50 women in trade who are netting more than $50,000 each yearly. And it is recorded that 75 per cent launched business careers after passing 40.

The cafe caricaturists are arriving here from Europe in large numbers. The stunt has worn out over there and many, who are really artistically ambitious, are regarded as pests. Nearly every dining and dancing place now has a long-haired caricaturist with a corvine manner who stands over your table to make a quick pecking impressionistic caricature. His rewards are what one is disposed to give for the completed work.

Another innovation in the cafe is the picaninny who can twank a banjo or click off a few hot steps. It is quite amazing how many of these half pint youngsters have a genuine flair for entertaining. They have been picked up off the streets of Harlem and some of them are paid $50 and $75 a week for a few hours' work nightly.

I often wonder if the gay old boys have much fun after all. Many of them appear to be merely kidding themselves. There is one long ago burnt out by the Broadway pleasures who is seen everywhere the lights flicker high. His companion is a straw blonde given to cosmetics, diamonds and pricelessly cocooned in ermine. He sits all evening in a state of sleek maleability, answering her gay chatter in monosyllables. Sometimes he nods. Always he seems fearfully bored. The pipe, carpet slippers and chimney corner would fit him perfectly but instead he must carry on—or perhaps face a breach of promise suit.

A sun tanning parlor in the Thirties specializes in removing prison pallor from those just released from prisons. Thus are many able to give the appearance of having returned from Florida.

There is also a lady who makes a good living specializing in "at home" talks on period furniture. She provides a smattering of knowledge on the subject and is said to have a large clientele among the new rich who want to distinguish a Sheraton from a Heppelwhite.

HASKIN'S LETTER
By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Guarding Navy Yard Workers.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Within a short time the industrial workers at the various United States navy yards and naval stations are to be protected from hazards to the head, eyes, and respiratory organs whether they want to be or not. For some years safety apparatus has been supplied to the workers with the request that it be used, but under a new code soon to be issued, the workers will be required to use such apparatus as is given them.

Furthermore, the Navy is endeavoring to standardize the safety devices to be furnished so that the same method of safeguarding the workers at all stations will be used. Formerly it has been customary for each yard and each station to meet its own problems in the best manner that could be devised by those in charge. Naturally this resulted in satisfactory methods in some cases, and in not so satisfactory in others.

In the fall of 1917 definite action was taken by the Navy Department for an efficient organization for the promotion of safety among the workmen and the intensive educational work, which has come to be recognized as indispensable in developing and maintaining a real safety interest among the civilian employes.

A safety engineer was assigned to each of the major navy yards, and these engineers did valuable work in the establishment of safety standards, the installation of needed safeguards, and the promotion of safety in general among the workmen.

In 1911 it was decided to centralize these activities and accordingly two engineers were appointed to direct the safety work of the naval establishment. One of them was assigned to Washington and was in charge of the yards and stations on the East Coast, while the other was assigned to the Mare Island Navy Yard and had supervision of the yards and stations on the West Coast.

In addition to the appointment of these two engineers the Office of Safety Engineering was established in the Department at Washington under the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and functioning as a part of the Navy Yard Division. A safety engineer is in charge and is responsible for the Navy's entire activities in safety work.

At Navy Yards And Stations.

At each of the major navy yards and stations offices of safety engineering are established under the direct supervision of the industrial manager and the general administrative supervision of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy. At each of these yards and stations an officer is assigned as safety engineer who is placed in charge of the work and who has working with him a medical officer and such other personnel as appears necessary.

This safety engineer is required to inspect all shops as often as necessary and practicable, noting all conditions which might be a possible cause of injury or disease. He recommends safety and sanitary measures and appliances in the shops and buildings, as well as throughout the entire yard or station. He must follow up each industrial accident or disease reported and take suitable action to prevent a repetition of such cases. He must keep a record of all such accidents, stating the time lost, the loss in wages, cause, and other pertinent data.

Perhaps one of the most important things required of these safety engineers is that they conduct educational campaigns among the employes. By means of safety posters, lectures, and the distribution of literature the employes are acquainted with the correct methods of protecting themselves against industrial accidents and industrial diseases. They are warned against carelessness and its penalties.

In June, 1926, the Navy Department addressed a plea to the supervisors of all the navy yards and naval stations asking their co-operation in reducing the number of industrial accidents among the civilian employes. It was explained in this that in view of the fact that there are 1,250 civilian supervisors of the 30,500 industrial civilian employes, and only one safety engineer for each of the 16 major yards and stations, it is logical that the civilian workers should be better acquainted with the supervisors. The limited personnel of safety workers must, accordingly, rely to a great extent upon the co-operation of the supervisors in their efforts to afford safety to industrial workers.

Daily Inspections Asked.

The supervisors were urged to make daily inspections of their departments and working locations for the purpose of finding and eliminating dangerous conditions. They were asked to see that all the workmen in their departments complied with the rules; that they were not doing their work in an awkward and unsafe way; that only tools and machinery in good condition were used; and that no guard or safety signs were removed without being replaced. The importance of keeping the passages and aisles free and clear of material, and proper clearances maintained, was stressed.

The Navy has given special attention to protective clothing and devices which are issued to those workmen requiring them in the work they are assigned. Rubber boots and oil skins are issued to laborers when their duties are such as to require such articles, and special goggles to such workers as gas and electric welders, furnace operators, boiler makers and others whose occupations present a hazard to the eyes.

In the new code soon to be issued special attention is given to goggles and face masks. Different occupations present entirely different problems with regard to protection of the head, eyes, and respiratory organs. A face mask which would protect against dust might be entirely useless against certain gases. It is therefore necessary to make a careful study of each type of worker and his requirements.

In order that apparatus of good quality, and such that will furnish adequate protection, is issued the Material Laboratory of the Navy Yard, New York, has been designated as the inspection and testing center for all safety appliances. Special equipment has been installed at the laboratory so that this work may be carried on.

That the Navy has achieved unusually satisfactory results in its study of protective apparatus for industrial workmen is evidenced by the fact that at a recent meeting of the Federal Specification Board, under the direction of the Bureau of Standards, the majority of the specifications of this new code were adopted. They will be used as the basis for Federal specifications which will be the standard for all Government Departments.

HATTIE

By Samuel Merwin

SYNOPSIS.

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, is a somewhat colorless little girl, who works in the mailing room of a printing and bookbinding establishment. One day a girl who had formerly worked in the mailing room comes to call. Her name is

LUCILLE OVERMAN, and she is now working in pictures. She takes Hattie to the studio where she, Lucille, is to have a screen test. Hattie there is seen by the famous director,

DE BRISSAC, who makes a screen test of her and offers her a contract. Hattie lives with her married sister,

ALICE, and her baby daughter, Emily, and

GRANDMA, a querulous semi-invalid. They all start for California with De Brissac, who suggests books for Hattie to read to "form her mind." On the train she meets

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man. De Brissac makes love to Hattie as part of her training for screen work and Hattie seems powerless to resist him. She refuses to go with him on his yacht away from her family, however. O'Malley, to whom she becomes engaged, advises her to try to get work at another studio and invites a lawyer to look over her contract with De Brissac. A rival studio gives her a part and she goes to work for them.

She is a failure without De Brissac and finally she sees him in a restaurant. He asks her not to tie up with the other concern for more than one picture.

The Alice's husband, who has deserted her some years before, comes back—one more for Hattie to support.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR.

There, in the living room, stood Alice's husband; rather shabbily dressed, laughing in an uncertain way, hesitating, not sure whether Hattie would expect to be kissed. His complexion, she thought wasn't very good. It was red on both sides of the nose, over his cheekbones, and he looked softer about the mouth; he seemed aware of this, and kept pressing his lips together with an air of self-conscious firmness. And he had a cough.

"Funny, wasn't it!" he offered. "I dropped into the Alhamabra up in Portland. You know I thought all the time there was something familiar in that name, Harriet John. But I didn't really think it could—you know how you do—until, bless my soul, if there wasn't our little Hattie, big as life! And I said to myself, 'what do you know about that?'"

"You mustn't keep standing, dear," cried Alice, with a sudden almost fierce air of defending him. "You sit right down! He's been sick, poor boy," she explained, with that same defiance, as she sank shamelessly on his lap and hugged him and smoothed his thinning hair. "And I tell him his little wife's just going to take care of him."

The last way's work at Plantagenet Town was light. Mortimer dismissed Hattie at noon. He wasn't unkind about it; took her hand and wished her good luck; but that scene in her heart of failure had been at no moment more final. And she went alone into the studio restaurant.

Someone was waving at her from a table by a window. A slim dark girl, a pretty girl. She hesitated, frightened at first, then incredulous, staring. It was . . . Lucille! She rushed over there, with the sensation of greeting an old friend who was very dear, dearer, in a way, than anyone in Hollywood. There were no old friends here.

Lucille held her off and looked at her, then made her sit opposite and looked at her again.

"Well," she said, "the same little mailing-room girl, as I live! Hattie, how do you do it? Six months in Beverly, the biggest personal success of the past two or three years and yet here you are not changed at all! Even your clothes! Now me—I can't help looking experienced. And they don't like it. They want that wonderful innocence of yours. Why, child, you're a knockout! You're a sensation! Everybody on Broadway's talking nothing but Harriet John! I expected to find you lying back in a Rolls-Royce in summer sables."

Hattie lip quivered.

"I'm through here today. They don't want me any more. They don't like me."

"Wait a minute, child. You've got me all mixed up. Who don't like you?"

"Mr. Mortimer. All of them. I'm no good. I can't act." In a moment, if she didn't take care, she'd be crying, here in the restaurant. She stopped that line of talk, and asked—

"How'd you ever happen to come out here?"

"Oh, I'm with D'Urberville. Picture people all travel in a groove, you know. No use trying to hide from anybody in this business. You can't get away with it. But never mind that—let me understand this astonishing situation! You've been working here?"

"Yes."

"But aren5t you in de Brissac's new company?"

"I didn't know he—"

"You didn't! Why, I thought you—"

"I left him."

"You left him? But good God, child—"

"Lucille—I've got something to—I'm engaged to be married."

"Really! That's nice! But I want to get this de Brissac business straight. You say you left him, and they don't like you here—did you say all that, or am I just naturally losing my poor old brains?"

Hattie nodded. "I'm no good, Lucille I can't act. I don't know anything about it. And when they see this picture everybody's going to know it. Oh, if only I—"

"Don't make me laugh!" said Lucille. "And don't talk so fast. Why did you leave de Brissac? Tell me that first."

Hattie began hesitatingly to tell Here at last was a confidant to whom she could pour out her heart; not the doll, but a real person who would understand her. It was her one heart-breaking need at the moment. She gave up to it. The words and phrases began tumbling hotly forth. Lucille had to caution her to lower her voice. And after a hurried lunch they went out and walked all the way into Beverly, while Hattie talked on and on. She had begun with de Brissac's first words to her, and their stolen moments together. She felt now that she hated him. Her fear of him became, for the moment, anger; the attraction she felt toward him became bitterness. And through the anger and the bitterness ran this new sensation of relief that mounted into savage joy. And yet outwardly she was that same timid girl, with a light high voice that wasn't quite clear in quality.

Lucille heard her out; and at last asked, with a manner of shrewd quiet—they were walking slowly past the Spanish-looking hotel now with its crescent of palm trees in front and with its row on the long porch of actors and continuity writers sitting in the rocking chairs reading the early editions of the evening papers, and its other row of elderly women knitting, and its children playing among the parked automobiles—

"Is this comera man — this man you're engaged to—"

"Henry O'Malley."

"Yes. Does he seem to be of a particularly jealous disposition?"

"No, I don't think so. He's really awfully kind and nice. Of course, his mind is always so full of his inventions that it's hard to get him to think long of anything else."

"I see. . . . . Well, I don't suppose you're especially interested in my opinion of all this."

"You know I am, Lucille. Why, if we weren't dear old friends do you suupose I'd tell any—"

"I think you're the most astounding little fool I ever heard of."

"I don't see how you can say that!" Hattie was hotly red now.

"Think it over for yourself. Here are about a million of us who would give everything in the world to have Armand de Brissac take just a little interest in us. Clever girls, some of us. Ambitious, hard workers. But he passes us all by without a look, picks you off a bush, offers you all his power and influence and all his art, and actually keeps his word—makes good with you—and you run from him—throw it all away." There was bitterness in Lucille's tone, too.

"But to do wrong, Lucille—when you feel it's wrong—"

"Oh what is wrong? And what is right?"

"But we know what's right—"

"Is it right to marry a man you don't love?"

For a moment Hattie was silent. Then she cried—

"But I don't love Henry!"

They were confronting each other, on the corner by the drug store.

"At least," remarked Lucille, drily, "we can go in and have a soda."

Former Pupil Brings Riches.

Kindness to a pupil brought a fortune to Rev. Ernest Owen, who died recently at Ashford, England, leaving an estate valued at more than half a million dollars. While head master at Llandaff Cathedral school at Llandaff, Wales, he won to a remarkable degree the confidence and affection of his pupils. One of his charges later went to the Malay peninsula where he became actively engaged in the rubber industry. Remembering the kindness of his former instructor, he wrote to Reverend Owen and urged him to invest all his savings in certain rubber companies Owen followed the advice and became wealthy. He later asquired Stancliffe School, Derbyshire, and sold it at a large figure.

A Good Thing—Don't Overlook It.

From Jas. Edwards, Montgomery, Ala., comes this letter which contains a valuable suggestion: "I feel like a new man since taking Foley's Honey and Tar. I can now sleep all night, soreness in chest and the bad cough entirely gone. My whole family use it—for coughs, colds and croup, and it always helps." Stops tickling throat, nervous hacking cough, puts a healing, soothing coating on an inflamed throat. Sold and recommended everywhere. Ask for it.

NEW YORK READY FOR FIFTH AVENUE EASTER PARADE

SKIRTS REVEAL KNEE CAP; BOBS WEAR HELMETS

Reptile Shoes and "Black Bottom" Stockings all Rage.

GOWNS COLORFUL

"Typical" Outfit for Girls Will Cost $160.

By James L. Kilgallen.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Easter styles, as viewed along fashionable Fifth Avenue today, disclosed that skirts continue to reveal the knee cap, that bobbed heads are adorned with helmet hats and that reptile shoes and "Black Bottom" stockings are all the rage.

Not in years have the Fifth avenue shops done such a heavy pre-Easter business. The weather man has more than done his part.

The gowns are colorful but not freakish, snappy yet tasty—and all of them express the spirit of youth.

Spend Less Money for Clothes.

Inquiry in the shops revealed that girls are spending less money for their Easter layouts than they used to. They "change" oftener. Instead of one or two Sunday gowns they now have quite a wardrobe.

Miss Gertrude Andrus, assistant manager of a Fifth avenue shop, said that girls and women are going in for more but less expensive clothes. She estimated that the average Easter outfit the girls will parade to church in tomorrow will cost between $125 to $200. Taking pencil in hand, she outlined a "typical" outfit, the cost amounting to $160 it is:

Shoes $10, stockings $4, dress $25, hat $10, gloves $6, underwear $10, either a fur piece or spring coat $75, accessories $20—total $160.

Getting Away From Masculine Modes.

"I notice the girls are getting away from masculine modes," said Miss Andrus. "They're wearing fluffier things. The skirts are fuller and many of them have pleats. We are getting away somewhat from the severe straight lines that make for the boyish figure.

Greens, violets and beige are the favorite colors for dresses. There is a warm spot for black and whites, too.

"Snake skin oxfords, garish in design and quite unique, have taken the popular fancy.

"Every other girl you see is wearing the 'Black Bottom' stocking—either light or dark stockings with a black heel.

Furs—Silver fox, beige and red fox—are part of every girl's attire."

Straight Lines Passe.

"I think the straight lines are passe; that skirts will remain fuller with the waist more ample. The only masculine style being affected is a brown man-tailored suit that many of the very young girls regards as specially snappy. For evening wear there is a popular dress which is cut above the knee in front and comes down below the knee in back. But for the most part skirts are exactly knee length. I don't see how they can go any higher."

In another shop the information was imparted that many of the girls in the Easter parade are wearing what is called a "pantee-too"—a combination and a corset together which doesn't do the shape a bit of harm.

Carnival Spirit in Atlantic City.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 16.—Ablaze with color and with a carnival spirit in the air, Atlantic City today prepared with evident relish for its annual Eastern Sunday parade tomorrow.

Special trains arriving at brief intervals brought visitors by the thousands from all over the east—tumbling over each other in their eagerness to take part in the festivities.

It was estimated today that 300,000 persons, bedecked in Eastern finery, will parade along the expansive boardwalk Sunday providing, of course, that the weather is as nice as anticipated.

In the vast throng already here, or coming, are people from all walks of life—from the humble shop girl to the chief executives of states. Mayor J. Walker of New York City is here and his friend, Governor Al Smith, who is on a vacation at the Seaview golf club, near here, is also expected to be among the Sunday promenaders. Mayor W. Freeland Kendrick of Philadelphia will be present.

Famous Boardwalk Groomed.

The famous boardwalk, which faces the ocean, is groomed, manicured and polished for the big parade tomorrow. The great wooden way will be guarded by the "beauty squad," seventeen of the most handosme of the local police force. Detectives will mingle with the throng to watch for pickpockets.

Pretty girls and women, with and without male escorts, and attired in their most alluring finery, will stroll along the boardwalk or loll in rolling chairs pushed by negroes.

A wide variety of entertainment has been arranged for the visitors by the hotels, piers and theatres—not to mention the cabarets. There are 82 cafes here and all apparently are doing business. It is the annual custom of the visitors to remain in the cabarets into the wee hours of Easter Sunday, making merry, and there is every reason to believe this will be done tonight. It is no secret, either, that the bibulously inclined are having no trouble in finding liquor.

All the churches in the city will join in a mammoth outdoor service at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning on the beach front.

11 MEN NABBED IN LOOTING OF BANKS IN OHIO

Police Believe They Have Broken up Three Bands.

NINE CONFESS

Two Other Suspects Identified, According to Authorities.

With eleven men under arrest in Ohio charged with robbing small town banks and stores, authorities believe they have broken up three bands who have terrorized as many sections of the state during the past winter. Nine of the men are said to have confessed, while the other two have been identified, according to police.

Gerald Hinkle, 24, this city, who was arrested late Friday while acting as pallbearer for his slain companion, Earl Turney, has confessed his part in numerous holdups in this section. Robert Johnson, 19, Akron, is also reported to have confessed several holdups.

These confessions, police say, with those made by James McFarland, New York; Robert Arlington, Cleveland, and James Madden, Chicago, will solve the many depredations of this territory. McFarland, Arlington and Madden were arrested during a battle in which Turney was slain, following the robbery of a jewelry store at Lodi.

Another Arrest at Paulding.

VAN WERT, O., April 16.—While C. T. Action, Bifftton, Ind., and George Androinette, Johnstown, Pa., were being arraigned at Paulding on charges of having robbed the Farmers' and Citizens' bank at Payne, O., Merrill Dull, member of a prominent family at Wiltshire was charged in a warrant with complicity in the holdup.

Action and Androinette were both held under $50,000 bond each after waiving arraignment, and are held in the Paulding county jail.

While Sheriff Betz, Paulding county, attempted to serve his warrant, Dull was undergoing an investigation for insanity before probate Judge Lawhead.

Both Action and Androinette have been identified as the men who held up the Lingrove, Ind., bank, by Merle Lybarger, cashier of the bank.

Sheriff Obtains Confession.

WAPAKONETA, O., April 16.—Bernard Zenz, Osgood, and A. A. Patterson, Belle Center, under arrest here for complicity in the hold-up of the state bank at Huntsville, have confessed their guilt, it was declared here today by Sheriff Vermillion, and will be taken to the Logan county jail at Bellefontaine.

BELLEFONTAINE, O., April 16.—Willard Grothjan, Minster, is locked in the county jail here today pending further investigation of the bank at Huntsville, March 29. He is under indictment in Auglaize county for carrying concealed weapons but denies his complicity with two men who confessed at Wapakoneta. Grothjan was arrested Thursday night at Dayton.

German flyers don't believe it cannot be done, therefore they are establishing a commercial flying service that amazes the world. It would interest Napoleon to know that a German passenger ship yesterday flew from Munich to Milan, over the Alps, 225 miles, in a heavy snowstorm, in three hours. That's flying.

Crubaugh phoned to East Liverpool police, asking that they watch for five men in a Ford car. Captain Conley and Patrolman Lister went to the top of the Pleasant Heights hill to intercept the car but the quintet are believed to have taken the unimproved road past the sub-station into Calcutta and then into East End over the Park way road.

Smith arrested the Brookes brothers and Murrell in East End at 3:30 o'clock. They gave the names of their two companions who were taken into custody at their home about two hours later. The tires, alleged to have been stolen from the Nick car, are said by the police to have been found at the home of one of the youths.

William Steele, 20, Pennsylvania avenue, who was arrested Wednesday night, charged with the theft of the automobile belonging to Mrs. Pearl Smith, St. George street, was held for the grand jury under $1,000 bond when he was arraigned before Municipal Judge Hanley yesterday afternoon. He pleaded not guilty, asserting that the car was driven by a companion, who escaped.

The petition charges that the council of the City of East Liverpool passed an ordinance on June 12, 1922, prohibiting the planting of certain popular trees on streets and sidewalks, and that Service Director Moore has given notice to the plaintiffs that unless shade trees are removed he would remove them or cause them to be removed.

It is also alleged that the trees were planted for the benefit of the property, and that the trees are considered a valuable part of the petitioners' holdings.

LOWELL FESS' WIFE SUES HIM FOR DIVORCE

GRAVE CHARGES

Mrs. Fess, Alleging Cruelty, Asks $100 Monthly Alimony.

Thomas Lowell Fess, former member of the East Liverpool High school faculty, is defendant in a separation suit brought by his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Fess, in a New York court.

Mrs. Fess charges her husband with cruelty and failure to provide. She asks that she be granted $100 per month alimony and $2,000 counsel fees. There are no children. Supreme Court Justice has taken the case under advisement.

The complaint, filed by Attorney Samuel J. Solomon, counsel for Mrs. Fess, says that the couple was married August 14, 1924, at Greenup, Ky., and that "there was such a lack of accord between them" that a year later they signed an agreement to separate under which the wife was to receive $150 per month. She claims that she returned to him several weeks later upon his promise to give up certain habits which the wife thought objectionable.

Mrs. Fess sets up as reasons for a separation that her husband used abusive language and called her vile names, that he was friendly with "another woman" and that he drank in excess. She alleges that the drunkenness and bad language resulted in scenes that caused her "great mental pain and anguish."

She cities as places where there were domestic clashes as the Greystone hotel, Columbus, the Aberdeen hotel and the Woolsey Apartments in New York. As an added offense she cites that she found he had given an automobile and a caracul coat, costing $700, to "another woman."

Fess is represented by Representative Emmanuel Celler, 51 Chamber's street, New York. According to the papers filed he is a salesman for Lehn and Fink, manufacturers of toilet articles and medical supplies at 250 Park Avenue, New York. His address was given as the Times Square hotel, New York.

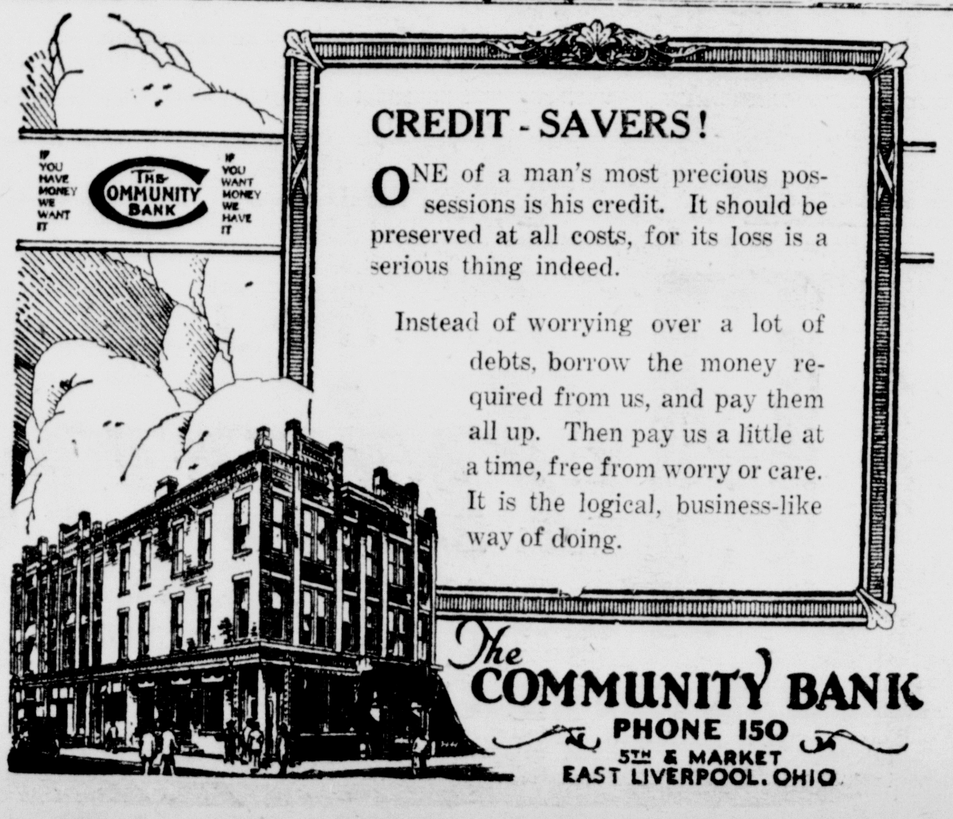

Fess taught in the local high school for two terms. His younger brother, Samuel Fess, graduated here. The elder brother was connected with the Ohio Retail Merchants' association at Columbus for several years before going to New York. He last visited in East Liverpool about two years ago.

Imagine the situation in which a young man sits down at a piano and remains there all night composing a love ballad to his sweetheart—not knowing that in a room less than ten feet away lies the body of a friend who has been murdered.

That's one of the punch situations contained in Paramount's latest production, "New York." Ricardo Cortez is the musician; Lois Wilson, his finance, and Estelle Taylor, the victim.

Briefly, the story is that of four Bowery boys who have evidenced a "gang spirit" since childhood. All four attain maturity and branch out to make their own way in the world. One becomes a politician, two join a jazz band and the fourth develops into a professional gangster. Then, a shadow in the form of a woman comes between them. Miss Taylor finds it hard to hide her love for Cortez, but his mind is enraptured by a society belle. Cortez spurning her, she marries William Powell so that she may stay near his friend.

One night, the girl determines to make a last attempt to win Cortez. She goes to his apartment and telephones her husband. Powell arrives there first and in a jealous tirade shoots her. He sticks the body in a neighboring room and—

Sounds thrilling, doesn't it? From what we hear, "New York" shapes up as great entertainment. Luther Reed directed. Forrest Halsey adapted an original screen story by Barbara Chambers and Becky Gardner.

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

VIVID MEMORIES OF SUNRISE IN HOLY CITY ON EASTER SUNDAY

Portrayal of Last Year Celebration in Jerusalem is Given by Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Last Easter I was in Jerusalem, and from a housetop on the old city wall I saw the day dawn o er the Mount of Olives. The city was full of pilgrims, from every branch of the world-wide Christian church The Holy City is a crowded, cosmopolitan center on the days of the Resurrection rendezvous! All colors and classes and creeds are represented, mellowed ar ' merged by the common quest for a new experience of the Risen Christ. To be in Jerusalem for Holy Week—what a dream come true is this for myriads of devout disciples!

In fullest fellowship with this multitude of pilgrims, we two, my wife and I, yet kept Easter apart from the throng. We had gone with a multitude to the Garden of Gethsemane on the anniversary of our Lord's agony; and we had visited the sombre-draped church of the Holy Sepuchre on Good Friday; but for the dawn of Easter we arranged to have all to ourselves the highest housetop on the northern wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate.

This spot which we had chosen overlooked the city, and the highway outside of the wall, and Gordon's Calvary and the Garden Tomb. Whichever way we turned, some spot associated with the death and burial and resurrection of Jesus fell under our eyes. South was the Temple Area and the Tower of Antonia; and running westward to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre was the Via Dolorosa. Eastward, still wrapped in the shadows of night, lay the Mount of Olives, with Bethany around its shoulder.

All of the events of the last week of our Lord's life were enacted within a small area, at the center of which we stood. We could easily imagine the huzzahs of the Triumphal Entry multitudes; the hot, hate-filled cries, "Crucify Him!;" the tumult of the Crucifixion, perhaps on that very hill to the North, a stone's throw away, called "Gordon's Calvary," where is now a Moslem cemetery; the slow, heart-broken wail of the women bearing spices to the neighboring grave; and the swift rush of Peter and John, after they had heard Mary's incredible news. As near as mortal could get to the theatre of the greatest events in the history of eternity were we two, alone on that houstop on the wall of Jerusalem, at break of day on Easter, 1926.

Watching Jerusalem Awaken.

Amidst the soft stillness of dawn, we stood watching the scene, with its overtone of gray. The roof on which we were standing was gray, the wall was gray, the dominant color of the old city was gray, and the shadowed face of the Mount of Olives was gray. Although we were on the highest spot in the city, yet we could perceive how entirely, on every side, Jerusalem is surrounded by greater heights: truly, "the mountains are round about Jerusalem."

Out of the Arabian desert the sun had pointed his spears westward, and these soon shone above the crest of Olivet, striking first the towers of Government House and of the Church of the Ascension, on the top of the hill. Swiftly the King of Day marched onward, and points of light touched the tops of the Masque of Omar, of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, and of the two German church towers in the City of Jerusalem. The face of the Mount of Olives, where stately cypresses lifted their spires like ascending flames of prayer, began to lighten. Even as we watched the day dawn, so the earliest friends of Jesus, whose heart-broken love had outrun the morning, had looked for the coming of the first Easter.

The city began to wake up Smoke ascended from a group of black tents outside of the wall. Some traffic appeared on the streets. The bells of the churches began to toll—one insistently affirming its faith in the Trinity by striking in solemn groups of three. Greek churches jangled their bells out of tune, in their customary jumble of sound. Here and there, on the tortuous streets below us, we caught glimpses of Christians hurrying to worship. This was a day of days in the city of memories.

Dawn on the Housetop

It seems almost a violation of the sanctities to relate the Easter service which we two held on that Jerusalem housetop, as dawn merged into full day. We read together all the Gospel narratives of the Resurrection of immortality. Insistently there crowded upon us the place-sense of all the events of which the Scripture tells. We could lift up our eyes and behold the very scenes of the Story. The time, the place and the incidents all illuminated the theme. Across the road a little company of American and British Christians, gathered for a sunrise service in the Garden Tomb, sang familiar Easter hymns. The great churches which abound in Jerusalem repeated the same jubilation by their bells. Eagerfaced pedestrians gave testimony to the same Resurrection Message.

Somewhere, within a few rods of where we stood and worshipped, Jesus Christ was crucified and buried and rose again from the dead. That stupendous realization tinged all of our thinking. Yet we were glad that the exact spots are not known of a certainty. For the redemption of mankind is not bound up with any one site. It is a universal truth; and its real scene is in the Father heart of God. Our spirits kept repeating, "He is not here; He is risen!" The mystery of the Resurrection is for every one as personal and near as if enacted in his own home town. One writer has pictured the truth more vividly than could we whose privilege it was to behold the setting of the Great Tranaction from a housetop on the wall of Jerusalem on Easter morning:

"Under an Eastern sky,
Amid a rabble's cry,
A Man went forth to die
For me.
"Thorn-crowned His blessed head;
Blood-stained His very tread;
Blood-stained His every tread;
For me.
"Pierced glow His hands and feet;
Three hours o'er Him beat
Fierce rays of noontide heat
For me.
"Thus wert Thou made all mine;
Lord, make me wholly Thine;
Grant grace and strength divine
To me."

Easter in the Heart.

All other meanings of Easter are gathered up into this one of its personal application. That Jesus died in order that man might live is the supreme mystery and mercy of time and eternity. Theologians used to debate and define: our modern mood in less calculating. We cannot explain the Atonement, nor measure the heinousness of sin nor the height of Divine Love. We only know that, in a way beyond our telling, God's only Son was crucified and rose again from the dead in order that an At-one-ment of man and God might be secured.

Death's terror, too, died for the Christian when Christ died. The ageless, intangible hope of immortality became a definite reality in the Resurrection of Jesus. Every life that has seen the cold, still form of a dear one go down into the grave places all hope for a reunion in the pledge given by the Risen Christ: "Because I live, ye shall live also." John W. Chadwick'c poem voices this yearning for those who once lived with us on earth and are again to live with us ni heaven:

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

" 'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened every frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When ye are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

"More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
Thy cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore.
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides.
Our God, forevermore!"

Organized on June 14, 1900, with a charter membership of 46, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chester today has the names of approximately 430 persons on its rolls ministering to a growing constituency of more than 800.

The first meetings held by the denomination were conducted in the old school house near the ferry boat landing in the lower end of town. The church was organized by Rev. James Mechem, D. D., then superintendent or presiding elder of the Washington district of the Pittsburgh conference.

Twenty-one persons who were affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of East Liverpool, 18 members of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church and about a half dozen others banded themselves together to build the Chester church.

Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan was the first pastor. Two years later when Rev. Earl C. Lindsay was pastor, a parsonage was erected. Ground for a new parsonage costing $10,000 was broken in August, 1925, and the dwelling occupied in January, 1926. Rev. R. B. Ward was pastor when this improvement was started, while Rev. R. C. Ehrheart was the first pastor to occupy it.

The church has had 12 pastors during the 27 years of its existence, the longest pastorate being that of Rev. Charles F. Bollinger, who was stationed in Chester for five years from 1908 to 1913. Rev. Mr. Ehrheart assumed charge of the local church two years ago. Other pastors and their terms of service were:

Services on Easter Sunday will begin with a sunrise prayer service starting at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a Sunday school rally at 9:45 a. m. and the Easter sermon and reception of new members at 11 a. m. Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock with a Bible drama of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, entitled "The Triumph of Love," at the 7:30 p. m. services. The evening service will be of especial interest to children and young people.

"TO KNOW GOD MEANS HONEST SERVICE, NO REWARD THOUGHT"

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church.

By Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D.

John 14:14. Job was a man of long ago. But he was a man. And wherever you find a man, though centuries have intervened, he is the same in the essentials. Job wanted to know if he died if he should live again. He had little knowledge of the outside world. No telephone connected him up, no daily press brought him news from outside his limited area. No Twentieth Century Limited ever carried him to his destination. No airplane ever whirred over his head. But it matters not how news comes or how a man is transported, this question never changes. In the presence of immortality, modernism never makes any change. Job was one of us.

But Job made the same mistake many modern people make. He was thinking of immortality as a future state, a sort of something that would be given as a reward in the world to come. Immortality has not to do with time but rather with quality. Whether we continue to live after what we call death is wholly contingent on whether we are living now. Man holds life everlasting in his own hand. It is not a question whether we shall live but do we live? Man can rise into the heights or sink into the depths at will. He can worship the spirit or become a devotee of the flesh. He can rule the body or let the body rule him. Jesus put it right, "This is life eternal to know the only true and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." If we would live physically we must know hygiene, therapeutics, physiology, psychology, for these make for physical life. If we would live spiritually we must know the eternal Spirit of God, and Jesus Christ whom God has sent.

There are many ways in which we have come to know God, but none of these prove immortality. The spiritualist declares he can prove immortality, but this is the great reason I would never become a spiritualist. If it ever could be established, then the human race would be reduced to the low level of dancing tables and spurious mediums. As it is the human soul reaches out not after a voice once heard, but after an infinite soul. Could Bach, Bethoven, Handel been led to their oratorios by a dancing table or a mysteriously moving pencil? Did Dante and Milton write out of physical sense? What about DeVinci's work and Raphael's and Michael Angelo's? Did they put down things seen with their eyes and heard with their ears? If they had they would have produced nothing immortal.

Now that life is continuous, no one will deny the possibility, just as no one has proven it otherwise. If some point out reasons why life ends with the grave, we should show reasons why it does not. And they are legion. The universe itself indicates immortality, for it is a rational creation.

A skeptical soldier writing home from France, to his pastor, discussed this great question. He had arrived at the conclusion that the soldier boy who "had gone west" still lived on.

Rev. F. G. Fowler, D. D.

He had read Dr. Fosdick's little book, "The Assurance of Immortality," in which he meets the outstanding objections to this fundamental Christian belief. Even though many appearances are against the doctrines of immortality, we are not to base our conclusions on appearances. The heavens seem to be vaulted, but they are not. The sun appears to move but it is comparatively stationary. Melanchton said in condemnation of Copernicus, "The eyes are witnesses that the heavens revolve in the space of twenty-four hours. But certain men either from love of novelty, or to make display of ingenuity, have contended that the earth moves." So because outer evidence may seem to be against the doctrine of immortality, it is by no means conclusive.

The materialist laughs at the thought of immortality because he says it goes back to primitive superstition. But all our accomplishments go back to lowly beginnings. On the same ground the straw huts of the aboriginies would outlaw the great cathedrals, and Handel and Bach and Beethoven would be laughed off the stage because music was once coaxed from conch shell or beaten sticks. We must not compel the lark to live under the water because its forefathers were fishes.

Again the materialist says we are dependent on our physical brain to think and on our physical members to act. Memory can be destroyed by paralyzing the brain with a piece of steel. But Dr. Fosdick well points out, how about the alternative; if it is difficult to conceive of the spirit without the physical organs, it is yet more difficult to conceive of the physical organs producing the marvelous results that remain after they have rotted away. Can one conceive of a physical cell writing Hamlet or painting a Sistine Madonna, or giving us a Gettysburg address?

So the soldier goes on to build his belief on reason. For instance he cites the orderliness of nature. You can have faith in the rationality and equilibrim of nature and she always makes good. A French astronomer could account for certain derangements in the orbits of heavenly bodies, only by the presence of a body of a certain size at a certain point. Years after Neptune was discovered within one degree of this point, and of the size calculated. The universe is reliable and rational. It is reasonable to believe all this rational reliable universe would be built up to be swept away with the brush of the hand. Is it rational to believe that all the travail and sorrow of this life should end in nought? Did the many soldiers who laid down their life in the great war, make their sacrifice in vain? When one considers the duration of the world, in relation to infinity, and knows that its millions of years are as but the tick of the clock, can one believe that it is rational that great souls have come and gone, to be annihilated in the end? If there is no immortality then the story of the universe as we know it is confusion. The picture of Nero getting drunk in the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the Creator of a world without immortality.

But the soldier arrived at his belief without faith in a personal God. Such a belief is cold and lifeless. It will not bring comfort to sad hearts. But it con be fanned into life and made to throb with a personal touch. Sweep away all scientific evidence, and there is much, and let a man in the simplest faith approach God, and he will find himself imbibing the thought and habit of immortality. "This is life eternal that they should know Thee the only true and living God, and Him who Thou didst send even Jesus Christ." Through Christ we can know God, and he who knows God, begins then and there the immortal life.

The Egyptians probably broke through to God as did the Babylonians and Greeks. But theirs was a very vague conception. They thought of Him as many Gods. The old Israelite said something new when he cried: "The Lord our God is one God." They supplicated Him and made sacrifices to Him. They feared Him as a terrible God. He thundered and breathed flames of fire on them. But there was One who came from God, even Jesus Christ. T. R. Glover says, "The first thing that Jesus had to do as a teacher was to induce men to rethink God," and "we are still rethinking God on the lines of Jesus Christ." How much there is yet for us to learn.

To know God means simplicity. Any other life is artificial. It appeals only to the morbid and distorted. The high complexity of our day is working hardships on millions. If we could but simplify our relationships we would have gone far toward millenial condi-

Question: One minute after Midnight is not Sunday, but Monday; Why, then, does the show-man call it Sunday?
Answer: It helps to break down the public concience; and gets us used to the idea of Sunday shows.

Two Great Easter Services, 9:45 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
In the Morning a great program of music by the Sunday School, combined with a baptismal service and reception of new members.
At Night a big crowd to hear the "EASTER MESSAGE"—a great cantata by a choir of twenty-six voices. Solos, duets, quartettes and chorus. A pretentious undertaking.
Don't Miss These Two Services.
Stranger, Why Not Make This Your Church Home?
The Lord Is Risen For You.
GEO. C. WESTLAKE, Pastor.

HE HAS RISEN
No Greater Fact of History than that of the Resurrection of the Christ from the Tomb.
What gave to Easter its meaning?
As many forsook their Lord during His trial and death but returned at the news of His victory over the grave, so, also do many who have left the church return to the Worship of the Christ at Easter time.
Great morning service from 9:30 to 11:30. Come.
At 7:30 P. M. The Choir, directed by Kurt Bergner, will give the Cantata "THE EASTER VICTORY." This is one of the best we have ever given. If you love good music, the song of victory placed in the soul by the triumph of the World's Savior over the tomb, hear this program of music.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

625. Then how should Isaiah 35:1 read?

Answer: "The wilderness and the dry place (land) shall be glad for them," etc.—See also Verse 2.

626. Do we already see the work of reclaiming the desert land started?

Answer: Yes; the United States are now furnishing from dams and streams water to irrigate 3,000,000 acres of land and these formerly desert lands are now growing crops that average about double those on other lands.

627. What other blessings for the world are mentioned in this connection?

Answer: "The eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Verse 5) Read also Verses 6 and 7.

628. When are these blessings to come to the world?

Answer: At the establishment of the Lord's kingdom; for "Behold your God will come," etc. (Verse 4) "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened," etc.—Verse 5.

629. What is meant by the words: "He will come and save you?"

Answer: For mankind to be saved means for them to have life and all the blessings that come with perfect health; for that is just what was lost by father Adam's disobedience. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23) See also Genesis 2:17 and Luke 19:10.

630. Who are the 'you" (Verse 4) that are to be saved then?

Answer: Those that have had "weak hands," "Feeble knees" and "a fearful heart" (Verse 3, 4)—those humble, teachable ones who feel their lack of strength and who will then look to the Lord for help.—Isaiah 40:29-31.

631. What is meant (Verse 8) by "the wayfaring men though fools shall not err therein?"

Answer: Wayfaring here means "to go on in the way." (Young) The passage therefore means that those who continue to make progress upon "the way of holiness," "shall not err therein"—shall not go astray.

BE IN CHURCH SUNDAY

VIVID MEMORIES OF SUNRISE IN HOLY CITY ON EASTER SUNDAY

Portrayal of Last Year Celebration in Jerusalem is Given by Writer.

By William T. Ellis.

Last Easter I was in Jerusalem, and from a housetop on the old city wall I saw the day dawn o er the Mount of Olives. The city was full of pilgrims, from every branch of the world-wide Christian church The Holy City is a crowded, cosmopolitan center on the days of the Resurrection rendezvous! All colors and classes and creeds are represented, mellowed ar ' merged by the common quest for a new experience of the Risen Christ. To be in Jerusalem for Holy Week—what a dream come true is this for myriads of devout disciples!

In fullest fellowship with this multitude of pilgrims, we two, my wife and I, yet kept Easter apart from the throng. We had gone with a multitude to the Garden of Gethsemane on the anniversary of our Lord's agony; and we had visited the sombre-draped church of the Holy Sepuchre on Good Friday; but for the dawn of Easter we arranged to have all to ourselves the highest housetop on the northern wall of Jerusalem, near the Damascus Gate.

This spot which we had chosen overlooked the city, and the highway outside of the wall, and Gordon's Calvary and the Garden Tomb. Whichever way we turned, some spot associated with the death and burial and resurrection of Jesus fell under our eyes. South was the Temple Area and the Tower of Antonia; and running westward to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre was the Via Dolorosa. Eastward, still wrapped in the shadows of night, lay the Mount of Olives, with Bethany around its shoulder.

All of the events of the last week of our Lord's life were enacted within a small area, at the center of which we stood. We could easily imagine the huzzahs of the Triumphal Entry multitudes; the hot, hate-filled cries, "Crucify Him!;" the tumult of the Crucifixion, perhaps on that very hill to the North, a stone's throw away, called "Gordon's Calvary," where is now a Moslem cemetery; the slow, heart-broken wail of the women bearing spices to the neighboring grave; and the swift rush of Peter and Pohn, after they had heard Mary's incredible news. As near as mortal could get to the theatre of the greatest events in the history of eternity were we two, alone on that houstop on the wall of Jerusalem, at break of day on Easter, 1926.

Watching Jerusalem Awaken.

Amidst the soft stillness of dawn, we stood watching the scene, with its overtone of gray. The roof on which we were standing was gray, the wall was gray, the dominant color of the old city was gray, and the shadowed face of the Mount of Olives was gray. Although we were on the highest spot in the city, yet we could perceive how entirely, on every side, Jerusalem is surrounded by greater heights: truly, "the mountains are round about Jerusalem."

Out of the Arabian desert the sun had pointed his spears westward, and these soon shone above the crest of Olivet, striking first the towers of Government House and of the Church of the Ascension, on the top of the hill. Swiftly the King of Day marched onward, and points of light touched the tops of the Masque of Omar, of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, and of the two German church towers in the City of Jerusalem. The face of the Mount of Olives, where stately cypresses lifted their spires like ascending flames of prayer, began to lighten. Even as we watched the day dawn, so the earliest friends of Jesus, whose heart-broken love had outrun the morning, had looked for the coming of the first Easter.

The city began to wake up Smoke ascended from a group of black tents outside of the wall. Some traffic appeared on the streets. The bells of the churches began to toll—one insistently affirming its faith in the Trinity by striking in solemn groups of three. Greek churches jangled their bells out of tune, in their customary jumble of sound. Here and there, on the tortuous streets below us, we caught glimpses of Christians hurrying to worship. This was a day of days in the city of memories.

Dawn on the Housetop

It seems almost a violation of the sanctities to relate the Easter service which we two held on that Jerusalem housetop, as dawn merged into full day. We read together all the Gospel narratives of the Resurrection of immortality. Insistently there crowded upon us the place-sense of all the events of which the Scripture tells. We could lift up our eyes and behold the very scenes of the Story. The time, the place and the incidents all illuminated the theme. Across the road a little company of American and British Christians, gathered for a sunrise service in the Garden Tomb, sang familiar Easter hymns. The great churches which abound in Jerusalem repeated the same jubilation by their bells. Eagerfaced pedestrians gave testimony to the same Resurrection Message.

Somewhere, within a few rods of where we stood and worshipped, Jesus Christ was crucified and buried and rose again from the dead. That stupendous realization tinged all of our thinking. Yet we were glad that the exact spots are not known of a certainty. For the redemption of mankind is not bound up with any one site. It is a universal truth; and its real scene is in the Father heart of God. Our spirits kept repeating, "He is not here; He is risen!" The mystery of the Resurrection is for every one as personal and near as if enacted in his own home town. One writer has pictured the truth more vividly than could we whose privilege it was to behold the setting of the Great Tranaction from a housetop on the wall of Jerusalem on Easter morning:

"Under an Eastern sky,
Amid a rabble's cry,
A Man went forth to die
For me.

"Thorn-crowned His blessed head;
Blood-stained His very tread;
Blood-stained His every tread;
For me.

"Pierced glow His hands and feet;
Three hours o'er Him beat
Fierce rays of noontide heat
For me.

"Thus wert Thou made all mine;
Lord, make me wholly Thine;
Grant grace and strength divine
To me."

Easter in the Heart.

All other meanings of Easter are gathered up into this one of its personal application. That Jesus died in order that man might live is the supreme mystery and mercy of time and eternity. Theologians used to debate and define: our modern mood in less calculating. We cannot explain the Atonement, nor measure the heinousness of sin nor the height of Divine Love. We only know that, in a way beyond our telling, God's only Son was crucified and rose again from the dead in order that an At-one-ment of man and God might be secured.

Death's terror, too, died for the Christian when Christ died. The ageless, intangible hope of immortality became a definite reality in the Resurrection of Jesus. Every life that has seen the cold, still form of a dear one go down into the grave places all hope for a reunion in the pledge given by the Risen Christ: "Because I live, ye shall live also." John W. Chadwick'c poem voices this yearning for those who once lived with us on earth and are again to live with us ni heaven:

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it each and all;
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call.
They throng the silence of the breast
We see them as of yore—
The kind, the true, the brave, the sweet—
Who walk with us no more.

" 'Tis hard to take the burden up
When these have laid it down;
They brightened all the joys of life,
They softened every frown.
But oh! 'tis good to think of them
When ye are troubled sore;
Thanks be to God that such have been,
Although they are no more!

"More homelike seems the vast unknown
Since they have entered there;
To follow them were not so hard
Wherever they may fare.
Thy cannot be where God is not,
On any sea or shore.
Whate'er betides, Thy love abides.
Our God, forevermore!"

Organized on June 14, 1900, with a charter membership of 46, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Chester today has the names of approximately 430 persons on its rolls ministering to a growing constituency of more than 800.

The first meetings held by the denomination were conducted in the old school house near the ferry boat landing in the lower end of town. The church was organized by Rev. James Mechem, D. D., then superintendent or presiding elder of the Washington district of the Pittsburgh conference.

Twenty-one persons who were affiliated with the First Methodist Episcopal church of East Liverpool, 18 members of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church and about a half dozen others banded themselves together to build the Chester church.

Rev. Herbert M. Carnahan was the first pastor. Two years later when Rev. Earl C. Lindsay was pastor, a parsonage was erected. Ground for a new parsonage costing $10,000 was broken in August, 1925, and the dwelling occupied in January, 1926. Rev. R. B. Ward was pastor when this improvement was started, while Rev. R. C. Ehrheart was the first pastor to occupy it.

The church has had 12 pastors during the 27 years of its existence, the longest pastorate being that of Rev. Charles F. Bollinger, who was stationed in Chester for five years from 1908 to 1913. Rev. Mr. Ehrheart assumed charge of the local church two years ago. Other pastors and their terms of service were:

Rev. Herbert Carnahan, 1900-1902; Rev. Earl Lindsay, 1902-1903; Rev. Allen S. Blackmore, 1903-1904; Rev. S. H. Greenlee, 1904-1908; Rev. J. W. McIntyre, 1913-1914; Rev. Alexander Steele, 1914-1917; Rev. H. N. Newell, 1917-1918; Rev. John H. Bickford, 1918-1919; Rev. R. R. Griffith, 1919-1922; Rev. R. B. Ward, 1922-1925.

Services on Easter Sunday will begin with a sunrise prayer service starting at 6 o'clock. This will be followed by a Sunday school rally at 9:45 a. m. and the Easter sermon and reception of new members at 11 a. m. Epworth League will meet at 6:30 o'clock with a Bible drama of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection, entitled "The Triumph of Love," at the 7:30 p. m. services. The evening service will be of especial interest to children and young people.

"TO KNOW GOD MEANS HONEST SERVICE, NO REWARD THOUGHT"

Sermon by Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, Pastor of Methodist Episcopal Church.

By Rev. Frank G. Fowler, D. D.

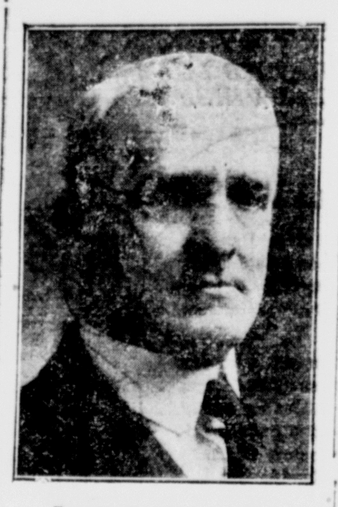

John 14:14. Job was a man of long ago. But he was a man. And wherever you find a man, though centuries have intervened, he is the same in the essentials. Job wanted to know if he died if he should live again. He had little knowledge of the outside world. No telephone connected him up, no daily press brought him news from outside his limited area. No Twentieth Century Limited ever carried him to his destination. No airplane ever whirred over his head. But it matters not how news comes or how a man is transported, this question never changes. In the presence of immortality, modernism never makes any change. Job was one of us.

But Job made the same mistake many modern people make. He was thinking of immortality as a future state, a sort of something that would be given as a reward in the world to come. Immortality has not to do with time but rather with quality. Whether we continue to live after what we call death is wholly contingent on whether we are living now. Man holds life everlasting in his own hand. It is not a question whether we shall live but do we live? Man can rise into the heights or sink into the depths at will. He can worship the spirit or become a devotee of the flesh. He can rule the body or let the body rule him. Jesus put it right, "This is life eternal to know the only true and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." If we would live physically we must know hygiene, therapeutics, physiology, psychology, for these make for physical life. If we would live spiritually we must know the eternal Spirit of God, and Jesus Christ whom God has sent.

There are many ways in which we have come to know God, but none of these prove immortality. The spiritualist declares he can prove immortality, but this is the great reason I would never become a spiritualist. If it ever could be established, then the human race would be reduced to the low level of dancing tables and spurious mediums. As it is the human soul reaches out not after a voice once heard, but after an infinite soul. Could Bach, Bethoven, Handel been led to their oratorios by a dancing table or a mysteriously moving pencil? Did Dante and Milton write out of physical sense? What about DeVinci's work and Raphael's and Michael Angelo's? Did they put down things seen with their eyes and heard with their ears? If they had they would have produced nothing immortal.

Now that life is continuous, no one will deny the possibility, just as no one has proven it otherwise. If some point out reasons why life ends with the grave, we should show reasons why it does not. And they are legion. The universe itself indicates immortality, for it is a rational creation.

A skeptical soldier writing home from France, to his pastor, discussed this great question. He had arrived at the conclusion that the soldier boy who "had gone west" still lived on.

Rev. F. G. Fowler, D. D.

He had read Dr. Fosdick's little book, "The Assurance of Immortality," in which he meets the outstanding objections to this fundamental Christian belief. Even though many apppearances are against the doctrines of immortality, we are not to base our conclusions on appearances. The heavens seem to be vaulted, but they are not. The sun appears to move but it is comparatively stationary. Melanchton said in condemnation of Copernicus, "The eyes are witnesses that the heavens revolve in the space of twenty-four hours. But certain men either from love of novelty, or to make display of ingenuity, have contended that the earth moves." So because outer evidence may seem to be against the doctrine of immortality, it is by no means conclusive.

The materialist laughs at the thought of immortality because he says it goes back to primitive superstition. But all our accomplishments go back to lowly beginnings. On the same ground the straw huts of the aboriginies would outlaw the great cathedrals, and Handel and Bach and Beethoven would be laughed off the stage because music was once coaxed from conch shell or beaten sticks. We must not compel the lark to live under the water because its forefathers were fishes.

Again the materialist says we are dependent on our physical brain to think and on our physical members to act. Memory can be destroyed by paralyzing the brain with a piece of steel. But Dr. Fosdick well points out, how about the alternative; if it is difficult to conceive of the spirit without the physical organs, it is yet more difficult to conceive of the physical organs producing the marvelous results that remain after they have rotted away. Can one conceive of a physical cell writing Hamlet or painting a Sistine Madonna, or giving us a Gettysburg address?

So the soldier goes on to build his belief on reason. For instance he cites the orderliness of nature. You can have faith in the rationality and equilibrim of nature and she always makes good. A French astronomer could account for certain derangements in the orbits of heavenly bodies, only by the presence of a body of a certain size at a certain point. Years after Neptune was discovered within one degree of this point, and of the size calculated. The universe is reliable and rational. It is reasonable to believe all this rational reliable universe would be built up to be swept away with the brush of the hand. Is it rational to believe that all the travail and sorrow of this life should end in nought? Did the many soldiers who laid down their life in the great war, make their sacrifice in vain? When one considers the duration of the world, in relation to infinity, and knows that its millions of years are as but the tick of the clock, can one believe that it is rational that great souls have come and gone, to be annihilated in the end? If there is no immortality then the story of the universe as we know it is confusion. The picture of Nero getting drunk in the light of human torches was intelligent and just by comparison to the Creator of a world without immortality.

But the soldier arrived at his belief without faith in a personal God. Such a belief is cold and lifeless. It will not bring comfort to sad hearts. But it con be fanned into life and made to throb with a personal touch. Sweep away all scientific evidence, and there is much, and let a man in the simplest faith approach God, and he will find himself imbibing the thought and habit of immortality. "This is life eternal that they should know Thee the only true and living God, and Him who Thou didst send even Jesus Christ." Through Christ we can know God, and he who knows God, begins then and there the immortal life.

The Egyptians probably broke through to God as did the Babylonians and Greeks. But theirs was a very vague conception. They thought of Him as many Gods. The old Israelite said something new when he cried: "The Lord our God is one God." They supplicated Him and made sacrifices to Him. They feared Him as a terrible God. He thundered and breathed flames of fire on them. But there was One who came from God, even Jesus Christ. T. R. Glover says, "The first thing that Jesus had to do as a teacher was to induce men to rethink God," and "we are still rethinking God on the lines of Jesus Christ." How much there is yet for us to learn.

To know God means simplicity. Any other life is artificial. It appeals only to the morbid and distorted. The high complexity of our day is working hardships on millions. If we could but simplify our relationships we would have gone far toward millenial condi-

Penna. Ave. M. E. Church, East End
Two Great Easter Services, 9:45 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.
In the Morning a great program of music by the Sunday School, combined with a baptismal service and reception of new members.
At Night a big crowd to hear the "EASTER MESSAGE"—a great cantata by a choir of twenty-six voices. Solos, duets, quartettes and chorus. A pretentious undertaking.
Don't Miss These Two Services.
Stranger, Why Not Make This Your Church Home?
The Lord Is Risen For You.
GEO. C. WESTLAKE, Pastor.

HE HAS RISEN
No Greater Fact of History than that of the Resurrection of the Christ from the Tomb.
What gave to Easter its meaning?
As many forsook their Lord during His trial and death but returned at the news of His victory over the grave, so, also do many who have left the church return to the Worship of the Christ at Easter time.
Great morning service from 9:30 to 11:30. Come.
At 7:30 P. M. The Choir, directed by Kurt Bergner, will give the Cantata "THE EASTER VICTORY." This is one of the best we have ever given. If you love good music, the song of victory placed in the soul by the triumph of the World's Savior over the tomb, hear this program of music.

Juvenile Bible Study

One question for each day is provided. The parent will find it interesting and helpful to have the child take up the question each day and aid it in finding the answer in the Scriptures, thus developing a knowledge of the Bible and where to find in it the things decided. Send or bring the little folks to the class Sunday at 1:45 p. m. The "Ceramic Cafeteria Auditorium," 121 West Fifth Street.

625. Then how should Isaiah 35:1 read?

Answer: "The wilderness and the dry place (land) shall be glad for them," etc.—See also Verse 2.

626. Do we already see the work of reclaiming the desert land started?

Answer: Yes; the United States are now furnishing from dams and streams water to irrigate 3,000,000 acres of land and these formerly desert lands are now growing crops that average about double those on other lands.

627. What other blessings for the world are mentioned in this connection?

Answer: "The eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped." (Verse 5) Read also Verses 6 and 7.

628. When are these blessings to come to the world?

Answer: At the establishment of the Lord's kingdom; for "Behold your God will come," etc. (Verse 4) "Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened," etc.—Verse 5.

629. What is meant by the words: "He will come and save you?"

Answer: For mankind to be saved means for them to have life and all the blessings that come with perfect health; for that is just what was lost by father Adam's disobedience. "The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Romans 6:23) See also Genesis 2:17 and Luke 19:10.

630. Who are the 'you" (Verse 4) that are to be saved then?

Answer: Those that have had "weak hands," "Feeble knees" and "a fearful heart" (Verse 3, 4)—those humble, teachable ones who feel their lack of strength and who will then look to the Lord for help.—Isaiah 40:29-31.

631. What is meant (Verse 8) by "the wayfaring men though fools shall not err therein?"

Answer: Wayfaring here means "to go on in the way." (Young) The passage therefore means that those who continue to make progress upon "the way of holiness," "shall not err therein"—shall not go astray.

"FIRE BRIGADE" AT AMERICAN

Charles Ray and May McAvoy in Great Picture.

Not since Charles Ray played in "The Girl I Loved" has he had a part that approached in dramatic sincerity that of Terry O'Neill in "The Fire Brigade," the epic love story coming next week to the American theatre. Terry O'Neill is a part that would delight the heart of any actor, and one that has afforded Ray opportunities he has never before been granted. This role, which inclines to the highly dramatic as well as to the romantic, is balanced by a wealth of typical Charles Ray comedy.

May McAvoy has the feminine lead opposite Ray in this big Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature spectacle, and plays the part brilliantly. The cast includes Holmes Herbert, Tom O'Brien, Eugenie Besserer, Warner P. Richmond, Bert Woodruff and others.

Good Health for A Trifle a Day

You can get that "Kruschen" feeling of cheerfulness, of freedom from fatigue, of enduring energy and vitality.

In spirit and ambition the old boy is just as young as he ever was. His health is as robust, his enjoyment of life as keen, in spite of his 60 years. Old age he knows not.

Follow his example and more and more as the days pass by you'll appreciate the great blessing that the joy of living brings.

Drop two tablets of Kruschen Salts in your coffee or tea every morning—you can't taste it but the effects are almost magical.

If you are a hot water drinker you can more than double its health value by the addition of two tablets.

Sermon by Dr. Fowler

tions. A large part of the complexity of our day is due to selfishness, which is foreign to the idea of God in Christ. The livest man in the world today is the man who lived the most unselfish life, though he may be dead.

To know God is to develop beauty by conforming to his laws of life. The styles to which the human race is a slave, are but creations of commercial mongers who would live off the credulity of society. Consider the lily. Solomon who had wealth and women at his feet could not compare to her. Live simply and obey God and you will be beautiful, and beauty is one of the ear marks of immortality. One can have a roughly hewn face and be as beautiful as the morning light. There was no beauty about Jesus that they should desire Him, yet He is the Lily of the Valley, the Bright and Morning Star the Fairest of ten thousand to my soul.

To know God means to bear true and honest service without thought of reward. To do that mean eternal life. To refuse to do that means death. Eternal life does not lie in the future but is in the present. It is not to be sensed in quantity but in quality. It is today within the grasp of all who will appropriate it. He who has God in his life cannot be held in the grasp of death, just as Jesus could not be held in its grasp. "This is life eternal, that they should know Thee the only and living God, and Him whom Thou didst send, even Jesus Christ."

A real spirit should never court neglect nor dread to bear it.—Byron.

Drudgery, calamity, exasperation, want, are instructors in eloquence and wisdom.—Emerson.

'Tis greatly wise to talk with our past hours,
And ask them what report they bore to heaven.—Edward Young.

The brave man carves out his fortune, and every man is the son of his own works.—Cervantes.

As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us.—Psalm 103:12.

For when the Great Scorer comes
To write against your name,
He writes not that you won or lost
But how you played the game.

EASTER

I GOT me flowers to straw thy way,
I got me boughs off many a tree,
But thou wast up by break of day,
And brought'st thy sweets along with thee.

The Sunne arising in the East,
Though he give light, and th' East perfume
If they should offer to contest
With thy arising, they presume.

Can there be any day but this,
Though many sunnes to shine endeavour?
We count three hundred, but we misse;
There is but one, and that one ever.

—George Herbert.

Famous Song Maker Passes.

With the death in London recently of Miss Victoria Monks, who made "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey?" and other songs famous, vaudeville lost one of the old-fashioned type of robust comediennes. Twenty years ago Miss Monks at 23 was a star of the English music halls. She first appeared on the stage at 11, and gradually made her way until she introduced the Bill Bailey song. Then her salary jumped from $50 to $500 a week and later went higher. While audiences applauded her gaiety on the stage, in private life she always was in trouble. She was tried and acquitted of thefts, named as co-respondent, sued for wages, bankrupt and divorced. Fearing that her Pekinese, "Lulu," would pine for her, she gave instructions that following her death the aged animal should be destroyed.

REV. G. H. ROWE TO SPEAK HERE

Humorist Will Lecture in Tabernacle Church of Christ.

Rev. G. H. Rowe.

Rev. G. Hallwick Rowe, lecturer, humorist and traveler, will deliver an address at 8 o'clock Monday night in the Tabernacle Church of Christ, Pennsylvania avenue.

In addition, a special musical program will be given by members of the church.

Rev. Mr. Rowe, who has spent most of his life traveling, is said to be a gifted speaker.

"CHINA" TOPIC OF SERMON HERE

Rev. A. H. O'Brien Speaks at Closing Holy Week Services.

With what was held to be the largest week-night religious service held here in years, union Holy week series of meetings was brought to an end by an appealing discourse on "The Cross of Christ" and "China" by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the Baptist church, at the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal auditorium last evening.

In the absence of Dr. F. A. Dean, of the Second Presbyterian church, who preached a pre-Communion sermon at the First United Presbyterian church, the pastor, Rev. George Westlake, presided. "This concludes an outstanding series of Holy week meetings," he said in his introduction of Rev. Mr. O'Brien. "Had they been begun sooner I am convinced they would have culminated in a genuine revival. The people, regularly attending, have become deeply concerned. They have been mightily benefited. These services have been a spiritual departure."

Mrs. Robert Wirth directed the music with Miss Berenaddie Arnold at the organ. Mesdames H. Dan Smith and Meiser of the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal church sang "The Ivory Palace." Miss Arnold was the accompanist.

The invocation was made by James Miles.

"It is not a system of Christianity but the Christ himself that China and the remainder of the world needs," asserted Rev. Mr. O'Brien, a former Chinese missionary himself. "The Baptists, Presbyterians, Methodist and all other denominations give color, perhaps unconsciously to Christianity. The foreigners are not interested in our religious divisions. What they demand is the fact of Christ himself."

Rev. Mr. O'Brien deprecated what he averred was big contributions of cigarettes even to the farthest recesses of China to engender a taste for tobacco and make for resulting trade. "Then we are asked to have Uncle Sam protect such a business with war vessels," he commented. "While in China I saw but one Chinaman drunk," he said. "But I did see many Americans under the influence of liquor."

That there are now 175 world power battleships in Chinese ports was averred by Rev. Mr. O'Brien, who is keeping in close touch with the present chaotic situation there. He told how Gen. Chiang, the National leader had accepted the principles of Christianity.

"America will not fight China," he affirmed. "Neither will England. But Russia, jealous of the latter's world-wide activities, particularly in India, may combat the country with the end of lessening the power of the Union Jack in the Orient.

"It is not battleships or force, but the Christ that the yellow men need. They take their conception of Christianity from the lives of the white men among them. Its standard is not enhanched by bullets, bayonets and sky-whirling military aeroplanes."

Connie Mack's "Heirlooms" On Pan After Opening Contests

Cobb, Collins Fail In Pinches As A's Fall Before Yanks

Cobb, Say Critics, Looks Bad on Fly Balls in Right While Collins Didn't Hit During the Series; Season Still Young, Says Mack.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Connie Mack's collection of human heirlooms were on their way out of New York today, leaving in their wake three ball games and, apparently, a highly unfavorable impression upon the local intelligencia. The latter, after a reasonable interval of tolerance during which they viewed with some restraint the combined efforts of Eddie Collins to get a base hit and Ty Cobb to catch a fly ball, today felt the barrier was raised and they had at Connie's speculative investments with great enthusiasm.

"Cobb looks like one of the worst outfielders in the major leagues" wrote one man, after the four game series with the Yankees ended yesterday.

Speaking of the 9 to 9 tie of Thursday another declared.

"If the Mackmen had had a real right fielder in the first inning, Lazzeri would have got no triple. Cobb's creaky joints stretched a single into a three bagger and the Yanks collected a couple of counters. Ty's move on Tony's blow gave him away. There is a cavern in right when the Philadelphians are in the field."

Cobb "Takes" Orders.

Frankly, Cobb so far has looked exactly what he happens to be: An old timer who might get by on what he knows. As to that it may yet develop that he knows too much for the good of the ball club.

I saw Connie come out in front of the dugout yesterday to wave Cobb over toward the foul line with Gehrig at the plate. Ty moved with apparent good grace, but the next moment he returned to his former position.

This time Connie let the matter go by default. Cobb's hitting during the series was good; yet two of them were scratches and on the whole he seemed to lack something of his old punch. However, Cobb probably will be a hitter at fifty.

Now for Eddie Collins.

"Collins didn't get a hit during the series," declared one of our most eminent minds today. "And, at that, he figures to hit better than he fields."

Having said which, he then launched into a learned dissertation, purporting to show that Collins' advancing years had made him too stiff in the joints to get down rapidly on ground balls and that no longer could he wheel rapidly on relay throws when trying for doble plays.

First Class Club on Bench.

True enough, Collins uncovered an almost alarming disposition to kick the ball away during the series just concluded, particularly on fast-skipping ground balls, and his critic at least has circumstantial evidence in his favor when he charges Eddie with the great sin of growing old.

What the boys in the rack room seem to be concerned about is how long Connie plans to string along with his antiques. They candidly declared today that the Philadelphia Athletics, as at present constituted, are going nowhere with considerable haste and, in a spirit of helpfulness so characteristic of the enraged journalist at large, they intimate that they wish to remind Connie that he has a first class ball club sitting placidly on the bench.

Of course, boys will be boys and the natural rejoinder is that you can't convict a ball club on four games. But, as to that, men of the age of Cobb and Collins figure to become less effective as the season wears on into the double headers and their legs wear out into stumps.

Connie has $60,000 tied up in Cobb and $20,000 in Collins and, if the old club continues to cull the cloak and suit trade at its present rate, the "nut" on this pair will be written off in a few weeks. But I don't think Mack is concerned about that, although it may as well be admitted that no dollar ever will be able to sue him for alienated affections. Still, he paid $30,000 for Dudley Branon and, after the second game, hesitated less than 9 3-5 seconds, all three watches agreeing, in removing Dudley to a zone of safety in favor of Jim Poole. He also paid critical money for Zach Wheat but when he found that the veteran couldn't throw hard enough to break a window, he also took old Zach right out of there.

Season Young Yet, Says Connie.

"Some of them don't look so good," he said, sadly. "However, we are only getting started."

That point, of course, is well taken, with the season still having 150 games to run. You couldn't say, for example, that Connie's pitching is a lot of eye wash; yet no pitcher finished a game in the local series and the average used each game was three.

Being notoriously charitable in my views, I will merely venture that perhaps the whole ball club is off to one of those standing starts. However, as to Cobb and Collins, I must refuse to alter an opinion I contracted carelessly in the south; that neither of them will be able to finish the season.

Step-ins for Men? I Should Say Not, Growls Vet Coach

CHICAGO, April 16.—Amos Alonzo Stagg, whom veterans recall as a football player of note, stepped into the break and kicked a verbal placement goal today at the University of Chicago for the first score against "Step-ins," the new fangled piece of underwear for men.

The "grand old man" of football with other directors of athletics at the university, has been disturbed by the report that men are wearing "step-ins" where B. V. D.'s ought to be.

"If any male person shows up around here wearing the darling slips," he said, pointing to the football field, "we'll use him for a pigskin and boot him all over the place."

JINX TRAILS BILL SHERDEL

Holds Cubs to Two Hits But Loses Game, 1 to 0.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Lady Luck, that fickle goddess, continues to frown upon Bill Sherdel, southpaw of the champion St. Louis Cardinals. Wee Willie, whose tough luck was one of the features of the world's series last fall, held the Cubs to two hits yesterday—and lost.

Sherdel lost because one of the two hits happened to be a home run by Hack Wilson. The score was 1 to 0, three double plays by the Cubs enabling Percy Jones to hold the Cards scoreless.

Pirates walloped the Reds, 10 to 6, and still lead the league.

The Bucs nicked Rixey and Neihf for fourteen hits, while Mahaffey and Morrison managed to hold the Reds in check.

With "No Hit" Charley Robertson on the mound, the sprightly Braves made it three straight from Brooklyn by a score of 3 to 1. The Robins, still on a pop-fly diet, made only five hits and two Boston runs came in when Max Carey played ping-pong with Moore's single.

Philadelphia, supposedly restored to lethargy by the departure of the fiery Arthur Fletcher, was the scene of a near-riot as the Giants beat the Phillies, 6 to 3. When Eddie Roush delivered his first hit of the season, a grounder along the third base line, the fans thought it was a foul and said so with cushions, hot dogs and assorted debris. Manager Stuffy McInnis further distinguished himself by being ejected from the pastime for the second time during the series.

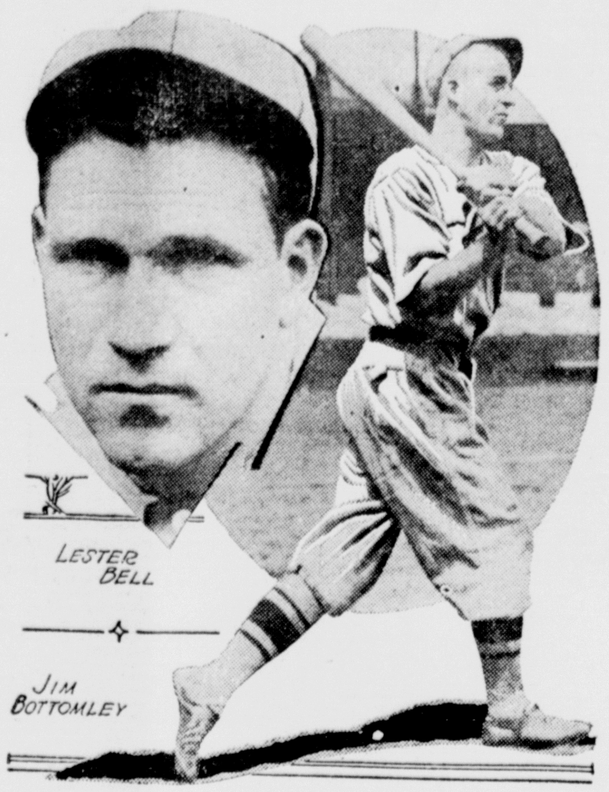

The American league got under way officially when Babe Ruth clouted his first homer of the season. This blow, combined with grade A pitching by Herb Pennock, enabled the Yankees to trim the Athletics, 6 to 3, for their third straight victory. Incidentally the result eased the throbbing pain in Col. Ruppert's pocketbook, caused by meeting the salary demands of Ruth and Pennock during the winter.

The Washington Senators kept pace with the Yanks by swamping the Red Sox, 7 to 1, sweeping the series. General Crowder held the Sox to five hits and Speaker and Goslin led the attack on the back bay hurlers.

Joe Shaute of Cleveland limited the White Sox to one hit in six innings, but the Sox bunched their blows thereafter and won, 6 to 1, evening the series. A homer by Bernie Neis prevented Ted Lyons from registering a shutout.

The Tigers and Browns finally got started, but rain stopped the contest at the end of the fifth inning with the score tied, 2 to 2. Sisler knocked in both of the Browns' tallies.

THE "PUSH 'EM IN" PAIR

Jim Bottomley, first baseman, and Lester Bell, infielder, are being counted on to repeat their brilliant performances of last year for the world's champion Cardinals. Only three National League players drove in 100 runs or more last season. Two of them were Bottomley and Bell, the former shoving in 120 and the latter 100.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

IN addition to the fact that he was troubled with nerves" at times last season young Mark Koenig, Yankee shortstop, failed to hit at a clip desired by the boss. For these reasons it was rumored at various times during the off months that Miller Huggins would shift his lineup and that Koenig might start the season on the bench.

But he didn't.

He started it with a bang—two bangs out of three times up.

The next game he added five bangs in five trips to the plate.

And at the writing he was still going strong.

* * *

Of course the pitching isn't of mid-season caliber as yet and it takes more than two or three good days to carry a season average, but right now Mr. Koenig seems to have found himself, at least at the plate. And if he wallops the pill around .300 with the other ball murderers of the team, it will take two or three ocean-going tugs to pull him out of the lineup.

* * *

Philadelphia fight fans have just been handed the most unusual titbit for discussion.

Benny Bass and Joe Glick, boxers of parts, did battle there on a recent night. In the third round Bass dropped to the canvas and was counted out by the referee.

A few moments later, the state athletic commission, upon advice of a physician that Bass had been fouled, declared the bout 'no contest."

This odd decision created many interesting angles.

First of all it permitted the commission to act without altering the referee's decison, which was that Glick had won by a knockout.

It relieved Bass of the odium of being knocked out—a set-back that would have meant many thousands of dollars to him in view of possible fights already lined up for the near future.

While the action was taken on the strength of the physician's report of Bass' condition, the decision does not hinge on the doctor's findings. It rather ignores the entire contest because of the questionable ending.

Which may or may not set a precedent for similar bodies.

Antlers Cop Torrid Tilt With Old Foes

East Liverpool basketball fans who have never seen the professional brand of the court game as it is played in the American and other leagues, last night were given a fairly accurate exhibition of the compensated branch of the sport when the East Liverpool Elks and the Midland Collegians clashed on the high school court here in a benefit game for the Frank Neilson fund.

The Elks won by actual count, 40 to 39, after a torrid encounter, and also by forfeit when the Collegians, with 50 seconds of play remaining, left the floor following a free for all scuffle growing out of a double foul.

The game was as nearly like the "pro" brand as anything could be, even to the benching of a couple of players, such as happened in the last Celtics-Rosenblum world's series match when Holman and Kerr were chased for scrapping.

The two teams grappled evenly all the way down to the last couple of minutes of play. With the score 34-34, the Elks made a foul. Midland retaliated with a field goal, to make it 36-35. A field goal put the Elks in the lead, 37 to 36. The visitors then dropped in two fouls and led, 39 to 37, at the one-minute mark. A one-hander under the basket shot from out of scrimmage by Paulsey knotted up the count as the crowd went into a frenzy and the players into a tangle in one corner of the court.

Lippe, cutting for the basket, was tripped. Guard Minehart, right behind him, in the heat of the battle, banged into the play, as nearly as could be figured out afterward, and the battle of the Argonne was re-enacted for a couple of minutes, as the fans in the front line benches went over the top.

After the game, Referee Dim Zange declared that he had ordered both Campbell, of the Midland team, and Minehart, of the Elks, to the showers, and had called a double foul. In other words, each team was to get a free shot at the hoop as a result of the misdemeanors of the two players.

Following the hubbub, however, the visitors decided to leave the floor, with 50 seconds of the game still to be played.

Lippe then stepped to the foul line and dropped in the shot ordered by Referee Zange.

Aside from the final proceedings leading to the forfeit, the game was as fast and furious an exhibition of the floor sport as any dyed in the wool fan would want to witness.

Big Tony Paulsey led the scorers on both teams with five field goals and five fouls for 15 points. Dave Shupe at a forward post ringing up 12.

Parry, Midland forward, topped the visiting point makers with 11 points, three field goals and five fouls.

The Elks finished on the big end of a 12-9 count in the first quarter, but the visitors made it up in the second quarter and the half ended all even, 18-18. Midland then stepped out to a one-point lead in the third period which ended with the score 31-30. In the concluding period the Elks annexed 10 and the Collegians eight points.

Benefit Cage Game Boosts Fund $104

The Frank Neilson fund, for whom the Elks and the Midland Collegians played in a benefit cage tilt last night at the high school, was boosted to the extent of $104, officials of the Elks' club announced today.

Everything in connection with the game was done without charge, the Collegians coming down for the game for only actual traveling expenses.

Will Blake, member of the committee in charge of the fund, today publicly expressed his thanks to the two teams, the referee and all others who aided in the benefit in any extent.

Reforms In Sulky Game May Bring About Sport Revival

By Norman E. Brown.

Ran into a group of prominent leaders in the trotting horse game here while wandering home from the sunny south and the ball fields and they express the general feeling that the "sulky game" is in for the biggest season that it has enjoyed in many years—in fact is once more on all four legs after a few seasons which caused the more lugubrious ones to fear the eventual death of the sport.

Three or four very valid reasons are advanced for the predictions of a bigger and better season.

Topping these is the general acceptance of the Harness Horse association's plan of the "money earning" system for the classification of horses.

The reduction of shipping rates.

The reduction of entry fees.

The elimination of the deduction from the money winners' purses.

"The nationwide acceptance of the system of classifying horses on a basis of winnings, rather than on their winrace records has made every heat a race. The failure of some drivers to race it out in every heat was putting the sport in the hippodrome class and was causing many of its followers to tire of the game," said "Sep" Palin, famous as a trainer of pacers, a director of the H. H. A. and called the father of the money earning system.

"Under the old system a horse with a mark of 2:11 for instance, was placed in the 2:04 class the moment he had won a race in, say 2:03¾. The result of this was that trainers and drivers, to prevent the rapid advancement of their horses in the classifications, were tempted to "pull" their horses. Rather than win a race in fast time and thereby automatically send their horses into a much faster class they would be content with second money.

How New System Works.

"Under the new "money-earned" system, horses are advanced on a saner basis. A horse's classification is reduced each time he earns $1,000. That is, a horse with a classification of 2:11 is placed in the 2:10 class the moment he wins a total of $1,000 as a 2:11 pacer or trotter.

"Under this plan the fact that a horse wins the 2:11 event, for instance, in 2:04 does not immediately shove him down into that fast class. If the purse won is $1,000 or the money won brings his earnings in the 2:11 class to that amount he moves up just one class.

"This means that his driver can drive to win without fear of driving his horse out of his class. In other words he can let his horse out every heat. The object of every race is to win a part of the purse at least and he cannot benefit his horse in any way by holding him back."

Palin and other trainers, owners and followers of the game feel that the elimination of the "deduction from winners" evil worked a great good. The money thus deducted—a certain percentage—went to the association conducting the meets. Horsemen long felt the injustice of turning back part of their earnings after paying willingly the entry fee asked.

Small Owners Helped.

The size of the entry fee in many cases was unjust. The shipping rates in vogue prevented many of the smaller owners from taking in the more distant meets and worked a hardship on the shippers of large stables.

That the new money-earned system of classification and other features met with approval of the horsemen is indicated by the fact, according to Palin, that it is being used on 90 per cent of the tracks now.

Three associations are directing the destinies of the harness game—the H. H. A., the American Trotting association and the National Trotting association. The Union Trotting association was taken over by the National this year.

SHAFFER, MORRIS BOW TO CUE STAR

William F. Greenleaf, middle west pocket billiard champion, won both his match games at the American Billiard parlors yesterday.

In the afternoon he defeated Shaffer, 75 to 52, and at his exhibition last night he won from Morris, the American tourney champion, 75 to 23.

Greenleaf's high runs were 25, 28 and 29 for the day.

Large crowds attended both performances and were well pleased, especially with the fancy shots. Greenleaf made 15 balls in one shot in the afternoon exhibition.

STRAND OFFERS A-1 COMPANY IN NEW YORK HITS

"The Patsy" Opens Stock Run Here Monday.

FOUR MATINEES

Miss Marie Ilka and Hamilton Christy are Leads.

Offering a repertoire of dramas, including New York stage successes, the Strand Players, a company of 10 persons, will open an indefinite engagement at the Strand theatre, commencing Monday.

For the first week Barry Connors' comedy, "The Patsy," will be presented. This play has scored big hits in Chicago and New York. Connors is also the author of "Applesauce," and "Hell's Bells."

There will be one show each evening with matinees on Monday, Tuesday Thursday and Saturday for the next week.

The Strand Players are headed by Miss Maria Ilka, leading woman, and Hamilton Christy, playing opposite her. Miss Ilka is a former member of Mrs. Samuel Irisull's company, which filled a long engagement at the Studebaker theatre, Chicago. Previous to that she was with Mrs. Leslie Carter. She toured Australia for two years, playing with "The Tiger Rose." Her home is in Cleveland, where she was born. She was educated in England and France and made her first stage appearance at the Princess theatre, London.

Christy has also had a wide experience with stock productions having been connected with the Castle Square company of Boston, the McGarry Stock company, of Buffalo and Washington, and the Stuart Walker company of Indianapolis. He also played in the stage productions "Peg of My Heart," "The Brat," "Our Children," and others.

Other members of the company are R. A. Bennett, Kelsey Cook, Kathryn Van Esse, Anson Yarney, Peggy Devere and Ann Anderson.

The company will present but one show each week. For the week beginning Monday, April 25, the mystery play, "The Seventh Guest," advertised as a play with a laugh, a thrill and a chill every minute, will be offered.

"The Patsy," the opening play, was originally called "Love Lessons," because it tells the story of Pat Harrington, a charming little miss who loves her big sister's discarded beau. She asks him how to go about winning the man she loves, and he being appropriately handsome and dumb, teaches her the six sure fire ways to win the man she loves, and as fast as she learns them, she applies them to him, and needless to say, he is lost.

The plot depends for much of its punch on the bright sayings of Pat, who, in an effort to improve herself, has bought four volumes of "Wise and Witty Sayings For All Occasions"—one of those how to be popular, though dumb things. Follow six thrilling lessons in love which "The Patsy" turns against her young teacher. Just as they promise success the older sister decides she wants Tony back, and for a time things look pretty dark for Barry Connor's captivating heroine.

"The Patsy" is three acts of comedy, romance, laughter and pathos, telling a most appealing love story.

Not the Cheapest But the BEST!

Good Gasoline should be judged by the volume that actually burns in the cycinders of your motor. Any fuel that fails to vaporize will not burn. It will drip past your piston rings and wash the oil film off your cylinder walls. Furthermore, it is this unburned portion of the gasoline that causes the carbon troubles in your motor.

SUPER-FLASH GASOLINE vaporizes completely because it has not been adulterated with heavy naptha—to make it cost less to the dealer. Because it vaporizes completely, it burns perfectly. It gives you 100 Per Cent of its power.

The completeness with which SUPER-FLASH GASOLINE burns reduces dilution of the crank case oil and the formation of carbon. That means saving to you in repair bills.

Super-Flash Gasoline leaves no bad taste in the mouth of your motor - - - No ill after-effects - - - It burns cleanly, quickly and thoroughly.

You can buy CHEAPER Gasoline but you can't buy BETTER Gasoline.
